Greatest Oil Destruction

By the Associated Press

Batavia, N. E. I., Feb. 17.—The Japanese sped aircraft today to attack islands in the thin Sunda Strait between Sumatra and Java and the people of this last major Indies bastion were told plainly:

"The enemy is at the gates of Java and will soon storm these gates."

The warning came from Charles O. Van der Plas, a member of the Netherlands Indies Council, in a broadcast to the island's 40 million people. He said:

"The population now is called on to meet its test. Much depends on our courage and tenacity."

Bomb and machine-gun attacks on the small Sunda Strait islands killed and wounded some of the inhabitants, but a communique said the material damage was slight.

Bombers Active at Palembang

Meanwhile Dutch bombers were striking at air and sea strength of the Japanese about Palembang, the great south Sumatran oil center which the enemy seized yesterday after bitter fighting and widespread demolitions by the defenders.

The Dutch pilots reported one direct hit on a Japanese transport and one near hit and one probable hit on another transport. Other bombers raided an airdrome occupied by the Japanese at Palembang and shot down two enemy fighters.

Here in Java the Dutch realized the attacks on the Sunda Strait, only 27 miles wide at one point, might well be the preliminary to invasion of this final Indies citadel, and they knew also that the attack could come from three directions—Sumatra, Borneo and Celebes, all holding Japanese invasion bases.

Tonight the Batavia newspaper Nieuwsblad estimated the value of the oilfields destroyed by the Dutch at a billion guilders—some $540,000,000—and said that for the first time the Indies would have to import oil to supplement its supplies.

Low-Gravity Fuel Left

Grim application of the scorched earth policy to Palembang, to Tarakan and Balipapan in Borneo and to other oil-producing areas where the Japanese have landed leaves the Indies defenders only the relatively low-gravity fuel supplied by the wells of Java and Ceram.

Large enough reserves have been stored in Java to obviate immediate

Reported Sunk, Destroyer Shaw Arrives on Coast

Honolulu, Feb. 17 (AP).—Navy officers disclosed today that the destroyer Shaw which the Japanese claimed they destroyed in the attack on Pearl Harbor last December 7, has arrived safely at a West Coast port under her own power.

The Navy officers said the Shaw was in drydock at the time of the attack and was hit repeatedly by bombs, one of which exploded her magazines and completely wrecked the vessel's forward section.

After two months of repairs, and equipped with a stub emergency bow, the Shaw proceeded under her own power to the West Coast, where she now is being reconditioned.

Landis Offers D. C. Defense Program

Civilian Defense Director James M. Landis yesterday proposed a six-point plan to gear civilian defense in the Capital into a practical program which could serve as a model for the Nation.

Warning that the District is in the coastal target area, Landis urged operation of the new plan within four weeks.

Threat to Convoys Lifted

Escape of Nazi Fleet Improves British Position, Churchill Says

By the Associated Press

London, Feb. 17.—Far from being worsened, the British position in the Atlantic has in fact been "definitely eased" by the dash of important German fleet units through the Dover Strait, Winston Churchill told Parliament and the Allied world today in the most reassuring message of all the recent black weeks.

Appearing before Commons for the first time since the fall of Singapore, the prime minister presented a side of the affair of the Dover Strait which was utterly the reverse to that which had been widely accepted as a catastrophic defeat for the Royal Navy.

He was able to postpone, until such time as the current "mood of anger" had left the house, general debate on the subject of British reverses in the Orient. Although there was hostility in the house, he was cheered as he entered and departed, and he gave up nothing of consequence to his critics.

After the session a group of influential midland M. P.'s at a private meeting adopted a resolution of "unabated confidence" in the prime minister. At the same time, however, the group called Churchill's attention to "the grave feeling of unrest and doubt" in the country and urged changes to obtain "effective coordination of defense services" and reconstruction of the British cabinet to enable "entire energy and thought to be concentrated on the war effort."

Churchill disclosed for the first time that the principal breachers of the strait—the 26,000-ton Nazi battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau—had been so heavily hit as to be out of action "for some time to come," and almost as he spoke there was evidence in other quarters that those vessels already had been brought under attack in their new shelter in the North Sea.

This was suggested by an unamplified communique from the R. A. F. reporting British raids overnight on certain unidentified ports in northwest Germany; it was supported by a German communique stating flatly that there had been a bomb attack on Helgoland Bight, the probable berth of the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, although this attack was termed ineffectual by Berlin.

In expressing the view that the channel incident had been "decidedly beneficial to our war situ-

Red Warships Shell Foe Near Sevastopol

German Forces Reported Preparing To Quit Kharkov

By the United Press

London (Wednesday), Feb. 18.—Soviet dispatches said today Russian warships were shelling German land positions around Sevastopol, the Crimean naval base, and Yevpatoriya, 50 miles to the north.

The warships were said to be raining 6-inch shells into the German coastal positions adjacent Sevastopol, under siege since the Axis invaders overran the Crimea last fall, and northwest of Yevpatoriya, the main city on the southwest coast.

[The London radio, according to International News Service, said the Soviet Baltic fleet has carried out a 48-hour shelling of German positions on the Gulf of Finland, west of Leningrad.

[Dispatches from the Crimea to the Russian newspapers Izvestia and Pravda told of daring charges by Soviet units across the ice of the Sea of Azov from the northern side of the Soviet-held Kerch Peninsula. Picked troops making these thrusts were said to have penetrated scores of miles north into the Ukrainian mainland far behind the German spearhead at Taganrog.]

At the other end of the battle line, the Vichy radio reported earlier, Russian troops stormed and penetrated the ancient town of Novgorod below Leningrad, while in the center the Germans were reported by Moscow to be preparing to abandon Kharkov, according to a Nazi war prisoner.

The night communique broadcast from Moscow said:

"On Tuesday our troops continued offensive operations against

Sergt. Courageous

Filipino Wins U. S. Medal Of Honor

The Nation's highest military decoration, the Congressional Medal of Honor, was awarded yesterday to a little Filipino sergeant for a feat of "conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity" in action in Bataan.

It was the second award of the Medal of Honor of the war and the first to an enlisted man. The first was made posthumously by President Roosevelt to Second Lieut. Alexander R. Nininger, a West Point graduate of last June.

The award was made to Sergt. Jose Calugas, Battery B, Eighty-eighth Field Artillery, Philippine Scouts, a veteran of a dozen years' Army service.

Calugas, an expert artillery gunner, was serving as the mess sergeant of an artillery battery at the front January 16. Enemy planes and artillery hit a field-gun position of another battery and put it out of action. All of the cannoneers were killed or wounded and the gun itself hit.

"Voluntarily and without orders," the War Department announced, Calugas ran 1000 yards across the shell-swept area to the damaged gun.

"There he organized a volunteer squad which placed the gun back in commission and fired effectively against the enemy," the Department added, "although the position remained under constant and heavy Japanese artillery fire."

Sergt. Calugas, 33, was born in Barrio Tagsing, Leon, Iloilo, in the Philippines. He finished high school before entering the Philippine Scouts in 1930, and has had an "excellent" record, the War Department said.

The Filipino hero is perhaps the

2 Senators Deplore Ouster Of Donald Duck, Tax Collector

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

While galleryites grinned in delight, Majority Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, and Senator Downey (Democrat), of California, took the Senate floor yesterday afternoon to lament in dignified terms the latest plight of Donald Duck.

They arose merely to praise the bird, however, and not to save for him the $80,000 originally in the deficiency bill before their body.

"I am not trying to restore the Donald Duck money taken out by the House of Representatives," said Senator Barkley mournfully, "and I am sure the gentleman from California is not, but I do want to say I have seen the income tax film and think it is worth that much money to the American people.

"I saw it in Chicago, and I didn't even know it was a Treasury Department movie."

Senator Downey, who is noted for his own financial philosophy, declared he had not always agreed with Secretary of the Treasury

Conversion of Government

President Eliminates State Quotas on Jobs

By Jerry Kluttz
The Post's Federal Diary Editor

The President issued a sweeping order yesterday on the recruitment of Federal employes which has the effect of permitting Federal agencies here to hire unlimited numbers of residents from the District and nearby States through suspension of the State quota system.

New employes, now being hired at the rate of 25,000 a week, will not be permitted to acquire competitive civil service status under the order, which will revolutionize the work of the Civil Service Commission.

Appointments hereafter will be temporary for the duration of the war or, at the longest, six months after the war. The Government now has an estimated 1,600,000 civilian employes of whom an estimated 1,250,000 have or will have civil service status which gives them transfer, reinstatement and retirement privileges.

The order applies to all agencies and employes except the field service or the Postoffice Department.

"In making war service appointments," the commission explained in a statement on the order, "we are going to eliminate all the paper work we possibly can so that all resources will be concentrated on putting men and women in war jobs in the shortest possible time and in positions where their knowledge and skill can be put to the best use."

The order also will revamp the commission's examining processes. Fewer assembled tests will be given. Instead, applicants will be rated on experience and education. Very few numerical ratings will be given to the applicants and in most cases applicants will be rated "eligible" or "ineligible."

It was explained at the commission that where the supply is greater than the demand, such as in the case of typists, mental tests will continue

House Votes 32 Billions For Weapons

Appropriation to Equip 3,600,000 Soldiers, Aid Allies and Build Ships

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

The House yesterday passed and sped to the Senate a $32,070,901,900 appropriation bill to provide tools of war for 3,600,000 American soldiers, fighting equipment for the Allies and ships to carry weapons and troops to world-wide battle fronts.

It was the biggest appropriation Congress ever has been called upon to enact, larger by billions than astronomical sums voted earlier in the Nation's drive for crushing arms superiority over the Axis.

In a single day's session the bill was reported from committee and unanimously approved by a House grimly aware that the country faces the most terrible military crisis of its history.

The measure would bring to the staggering total of 142 billion dollars the arms appropriations for the fiscal years 1941, 1942 and 1943 and to 81 billion dollars the war sums voted since Japan's sneak assault on Pearl Harbor December 7.

The measure carries $22,888,901,000 for the Army, $3,852,000,000 for the Maritime Commission and $5,330,000,000 of direct appropriation for lend-lease. It provides in addition that up to $11,250,000,000 in war materials authorized by the bill may be transferred to the Allies on approximately a 50-50

Senate Backs Tydings Probe Of War Needs

Inquiry Will Aim To 'Streamline' U. S. Agencies for Victory

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Senate yesterday unanimously approved the Tydings resolution to streamline Government personnel and Federal agencies on a war basis. Within the hour the searching inquiry was under way.

To conduct the investigation, Chairman Glass of the Senate Appropriations Committee appointed a three-man subcommittee headed by Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland.

Tydings immediately called a meeting of the subcommittee. A series of questionnaires were approved and directed to the heads of every unit in every Government department and bureau. On replies to more than 50 carefully selected questions, Tydings said the committee should be able within 30 days to make specific recommendations on Government employes who can be released from nonessential work and transferred at once to the war effort.

At the first brief meeting, the subcommittee agreed also to extend the scope of the inquiry to overlappings and duplications of functions bottlenecking the Government's war efficiency. A separate questionnaire was directed to the Civil Service Commission to unearth information on these.

Tydings assured Government workers it is the intention of his group to safeguard the salary and

Hearings to Open Today On Congressional Pensions

The Senate Civil Service Committee, confronted with a leadership-backed move to by-pass it, yesterday scheduled public hearings on the annuities-for-Congressmen issue for 10:30 a. m. today with the understanding that a decision in the controversy will be reached no later than tomorrow.

Senator Bulow (Democrat), of South Dakota, committee chairman, agreed to the procedure after Majority Leader Barkley joined Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, in notifying the Senate in writing of intention to move today for immediate consideration of repeal of so-called Congressional pensions under suspension of the rules.

Byrd, leader of the repeal movement in the Senate, said he believed a two-day delay to be "reasonable," and that he would withhold the motion pending the committee's decision.

The net result of the Byrd-Barkley action, highlight of a bitter senatorial assault on newspapers for "misrepresenting" the issue to the public, was to compel the committee to advance its date for hearings on repeal resolutions, which Bulow announced Monday would not be started until next Tuesday.

Only a few minutes before agreement with Bulow was reached, Senator Mead (Democrat), of New Princeton, N. J., Feb. 17.—Public reaction to the issue of pensions for Congressmen is one of strong opposition, first returns in a Nation-wide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion indicate.

Approximately three voters in every four, on the average, the poll finds, have heard or read about the principle involved in the legislation passed by the House of Representaitves which would allow members of Congress to put themselves under the Civil Service retirement system if they have served five years.

Those who knew about the plan were asked in the poll:

Washington a Rumor Factory Spreading Lies, President Says

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt, in a rare moment of anger, yesterday described Washington as a rumor factory that circulates lies all over the country. He said also that Washington had its own Cliveden Set that seeks to undermine support of Russia and to cause disunity among the United Nations.

The President's vehement remarks were touched off at his regular Tuesday press conference by a question concerning Pearl Harbor. A reporter said there were persistent reports that the damage done there by Japanese bombers on December 7 was much greater than admitted by Secretary of the Navy Knox.

Mr. Roosevelt said there was only one word to apply to such rumors, and he spelled it out: R-o-t.

On Capitol Hill, meantime, Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, said that this country is in an "almost defenseless condition" regarding protection of its shores.

"The day may come," he said, "when we shall have to bring back from the four corners of the world our depleted Navy to be a source of defense for our own shores."

Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), of California, citing the presence of 130,000 Japanese in his State, said that without more positive measures of protection "we are likely to see in the near future another Pearl Harbor."

The Chief Executive disclosed that planes and other weapons and supplies are now flowing to Russia in an ever-growing stream. He said it was true that the United States had fallen behind in its deliveries

Enemy Could Shell N. Y., Roosevelt Says

A Japanese attack on Alaska is perfectly possible, President Roosevelt said yesterday in response to a question at his press conference. For that matter, he said, the enemy might shell New York tonight under certain conditions, or even go as far as to drop bombs on Detroit tonight—under certain conditions.

(Further details on this discussion by the President appears in the accompanying story.)

Blonde Tells Hushed Court Attack Details

Accused Landlord, 53, Pale But Composed Throughout Testimony

Medical testimony from Dr. Meyer Stolar, Gallinger Hospital physician, yesterday concluded the first day of evidence in the case of Orman W. Ewing, 53-year-old landlord and former politician, on trial for his life for allegedly raping a 19-year-old Government girl last fall.

Testimony from the slim, blonde complaining witness highlighted the day's session, which also saw two of her girl friends called to the stand. Today the jury of 11 men and one woman is scheduled to hear evidence from police officers and a youth who was out with the girl on the eve of the alleged attack.

Remaining pale but composed throughout two and a half hours of questioning, the girl accused Ewing of breaking into her room about 2 a. m. October 26 and attacking her.

Guest of Family Friend

She said that she was then staying in an apartment house at 1101 Sixteenth Street Northwest as the guest of a family friend, Miss Hester Chamberlin, co-owner of the building with Ewing. The temporary quarters had been given her, she said, upon her arrival in Washington from Utah October 12 to take a Civil Service post.

Miss Chamberlin and Ewing also are from Utah, Ewing having represented the State on the Democratic National Committee for a number of years prior to 1937.

Speaking in a low voice, so that the entire courtroom hushed to catch her words, she said that she had met the defendant shortly after arrival here and that he had taken

5 More Office Buildings Will Be Built Here

One to Funnel All Data for Those Who Seek War Contracts

Businessmen coming to Washington to seek information—or consolation—about war contracts, priorities and such soon will have a central building to which they can go.

It will be erected on Defense Square, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth Streets, opposite the Willard Hotel, and be known as the V-for-Victory Building.

The two-story temporary structure, to house a centralized information department run by the Office of Government Reports, will have 78,500 square feet of space and be "as self-effacing in design as possible."

Four Others to Be Built

It was one of five more temporary Federal offices for which sites were announced yesterday by W. E. Reynolds, commissioner of public buildings.

Three of the units will be built on the Mall at the southeast corner of Seventeenth Street and Constitution Avenue Northwest and be known as Buildings T-3, T-4 and T-5.

They will provide 463,000 square feet of space for approximately 5700 Navy Department employes.

The fifth, to provide 400,000 square feet, will be known as Building T-7. Located within bounds of the National Airport it will house 5000 employes of the Army Air Corps.

All will be similar in design and probably can be started within the next few days, Reynolds said. He estimated they could be completed within six to eight weeks and said they will be paid for from the 25 million dollar emergency appropriation for temporary office structures in the metropolitan area.

'Larceny With Police Protection'

Proposed Milk Price Increase Branded Raid on Public Purse

In a public hearing that at times took on an intensely personal flavor, Dr. Thomas E. Mattingly yesterday labeled the proposed milk-price increase "a raid under the police protection of the Department of Agriculture on the consumers' purse."

Contending that milk health standards here are so severe that they are now being used "as purely economic weapons to further entrenched and sacrosanct monopoly," Dr. Mattingly and other consumers' representatives urged a reconsideration of these standards with a view to widening competition.

This was by way of answer to the argument that the cent-a-quart milk-price increase is needed to meet the requirements of a growing Washington.

Dr. Mattingly, chairman of the medical advisory committee to social welfare organizations and of the professional services committee of the Washington Self-Help Exchange, made several charges against the "greedy milk interests" in the hearing, held in the South Agriculture Building auditorium, and to be continued at 9:30 a. m. today in Rooms G and H of the United States Chamber of Commerce Building.

He said they "have demonstrated by their past actions that they are not remotely concerned with helping the poor." He spoke of "their present greedy insistence for price increases for penny-milk for our

German Agent 'Put Words Into Mouths' Of U. S. Legislators, Prosecutor Asserts

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

Representative Hamilton Fish was named in the District Court yesterday as the man who arranged with the German agent, George Sylvester Viereck, for 125,000 copies of a speech written by Viereck to be franked to people on Fish's private mailing list.

Special Prosecutor William Power Maloney told the jury trying Viereck that the Government would prove that Fish ordered his secretary, George Hill, now convicted of perjury, to mail out the speech for Viereck.

The speech, entitled "Six Men and War," had been placed in the Congressional Record by the late Senator Ernest Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota. His frank was used in the mailing.

The prosecutors indicated that Fish would be invited to take the witness stand late today to support their charges against Viereck with his testimony.

Trial Before Letts

Viereck went on trial before Justice F. Dickinson Letts Monday on charges of violating the Foreign Agent Act by concealing the use of Congressmen and their franks by the Nazi propaganda machine.

Maloney outlined the Government case after Special Prosecutor Edward J. Hickey, jr., and Viereck's lawyers, Emil Morosini, jr., and Daniel F. Cohalen, jr., had spent a little over a day choosing 12 jurors and 2 alternates.

"What Viereck was doing," Maloney declared, "was to put words in the mouths of legislators on Capitol Hill who were duped with his clever talk—we don't know what else—while he laughed at them in secret reports he sent to Berlin.

"You will see, ladies and gentlemen, how this man, this defendant, Viereck, wrote a speech for the late Senator Lundeen, entitled 'Six Men and War'—that speech was delivered on the floor of the Senate by Senator Lundeen and inserted in the Congressional Record.

Printed at GPO

"Thereafter, 125,000 copies of it were ordered reprinted at the Government Printing Office, a good part of the expense being borne by ourselves, the American taxpayers—125,000 copies printed.

"And where were they sent out from? It was Lundeen's speech, and it was to be sent out under his frank. That speech was not mailed out from Lundeen's office. By arrangement made between this defendant, George Sylvester Viereck and Congressman Hamilton Fish, 125,000 copies of that speech were mailed to Congressman Fish's private mailing list—which the Congressman had acquired by way and as a result of organizing a committee called 'The National Committee to Keep America Out of War.'

"And, ladies and gentlemen, the arrangements for the mailing and

Text of Churchill's Statement on Escape of Nazi Ships Through Channel

Abandonment Of Brest Helps Us, He Says

London, Feb. 17.—The text of Prime Minister Churchill's House of Commons statement today on the air and naval battle in the English Channel last Thursday follows:

I will deal first of all with the naval episode.

In March last two German cruisers, Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, took refuge in Brest harbor where they were joined in May by the Prinz Eugen after destruction of the Bismarck.

The position of these ships became a serious preoccupation for the admiralty.

They lay on the flank of our convoy route to the east. They could make a sortie at any time onto Atlantic trade routes or into the Mediterranean. Accordingly the admiralty have pressed their continual attack from the air in hope of disabling them or preventing them from being repaired.

This process continued for more than 10 months during which time the ships were undoubtedly hit several times and repair work made very difficult.

No less than 4000 tons of bombs were dropped and 3299 bomber sorties were made upon them with the loss of 247 airforce personnel and 43 aircraft.

As we were never in a position to know when some or all of these ships might put to sea the situation entailed almost continuous naval precautions in the hope of being ready at all times to meet various threats which these ships constituted.

Nazis Took Chance

A further serious feature was the very grievous subtraction from the bombing efforts against Germany. Bombing of these ships was, however, so severe that the Germans evidently came to the decision that they could not maintain them any longer at Brest, and that they must return to Germany. We do not know whether this was for the purpose of effecting final repairs or to enable them to work up to full efficiency in the sheltered waters of the Baltic.

However this may be the Germans resolved to try to bring the ships back to Germany. This was a very hazardous operation. It could be done either by sailing around the British islands and returning via Norway or by a dash up the Channel. The Germans rejected the plan of returning by the north route and preferred to run the admittedly serious risk of the Channel passage.

In the Atlantic Ocean they would have to run the great risk of being picked up by our extensive air reconnaissances from the shore and from aircraft carriers, or being slowed down by torpedo attacks and brought to action against an overwhelming force as was the Bismarck.

The Channel route on the other hand, was a run of under 24 hours. Part of it could be made in darkness and they had the opportunity of choosing the weather which would be the most favorable the whole way through the Channel and along the Dutch coast. They had the advantage of a powerful air umbrella. The dangers of passing through the Straits of Dover under suitable weather conditions were not great. Our slow convoys repeatedly have traversed the Straits of Dover and are repeatedly bombarded by German guns on the French shore. But this has not stopped our convoy traffic.

Mines a Great Danger

One great danger was mines, but this they might hope to avoid by energetic sweeping. There remained, therefore, the action of our surface ships and aircraft. Air reconnaissance would show the Germans that there were no heavy ships, or even cruisers, in these waters, and therefore attacks by flotillas of destroyers and small torpedo boats were all that need be expected, apart from the air.

Some people seem to think that heavy forces should have been stationed so as to be able to intercept them in the Channel or North Sea. Had we done so our ships would have been open to the same scale of air attacks as were the Germans at Brest, and such dispositions would have dangerously weakened the protective measures which we have to take to safeguard our convoys on the northern passages and deal with the other heavy German ships, Tirpitz, Leutzow and Scheer.

The admiralty did not consider that an attempt to run up the Channel would be an impossible operation under the conditions which prevailed, and this was certainly much less to be apprehended than that they should break out onto the trade routes or to the Mediterranean.

No one can doubt the vigor and courage with which the enemy squadron was attacked as soon as its movements were perceived.

Of course, everyone is very sorry that these ships were not sunk.

The only questions which are open are:

First, why was their movement not detected shortly after daylight, and secondly, was contact and liaison between the coastal command and the admiralty and also between other R. A. F. commands and the admiralty as close as it should have been.

At the suggestion of the admiralty and the air ministry I have directed that an inquiry shall be held into these points. The inquiry will be secret and I doubt very much whether its results will be found suitable for publication.

I am not prepared to give any information about the inquiry or any undertaking that its results will be made public.

Although it may somewhat surprise the House and the public, I should like to state that in the opinion of the admiralty, with which I most cordially concur, the abandonment by the Germans of their position at Brest has been decidedly beneficial to our war situation.

A threat to our convoy routes has been removed and the enemy has been driven to leave an advantageous position. The diversion of our air bombing effort, which though necessary was so wasteful, is over and a heavier scale of attack on Germany is now possible in which all the near misses will fall on German and not on French dwellings.

Further, both the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau have received damage in their passage which will keep them out of action for some time to come, and they will have to have gunnery and other practice. Before they can again play any part in the war the Royal Navy will be reinforced by various important units of highest quality and a similar strengthening process is going forward in the Navy of the United States.

Whatever smart of disappointment or annoyance may remain in our breasts that the final forfeit was not exacted, there is no doubt that the naval position in the Atlantic, so far from being worsened, is definitely eased.

I have also been asked whether I will make a statement about the fall of Singapore.

This extremely grave event was not unexpected and its possibility was comprised within the scope of the argument which I submitted to the House on the occasion of the vote of confidence three weeks ago.

The House has, of course, many opportunities of discussing this and other aspects of the war situation. I am sure it would be a great mistake for us to start to discuss it this afternoon in the short time available.

I have no information to give to the house other than that contained in the public press nor would it be prudent to speculate in detail upon various evil consequences which may follow from the fall of Singapore.

Moreover it would ill-become the dignity of the government and of the House and would render poor service to the alliance of which we are a part if we were dragged into recriminations at a time when our minds are oppressed with a sense of tragedy and with the sorrow of so lamentable a misfortune. Perhaps at a later date, when we are more fully informed and when carefully considered statements may be made, the House may wish for further debate on the situation in the Far East and on the prospect of its being retrieved by combined action of the Allied Powers concerned.

I should certainly not take part in any such discussion now. However, as some members may be otherwise inclined and as I did not wish to prevent them from expressing their opinion, I decided to move the adjournment as I have done.

The Government will listen to debate which takes place and I hope I may be permitted to remind the House of the extremely serious situation in which we stand, and the use which is made in hostile and even in Allied countries of any loose or intemperate language into which anyone may be drawn, and the importance of the Commons maintaining its reputation for firmness and courage in the face of adversity.

ation," Churchill offered not only his own opinion but that of the British admiralty, a surprise though it might be to house and public.

The main point of all, he said, was that the Germans—the Scharnhorst, the Gneisenau, the 10,000-ton cruiser Prinz Eugen and many smaller vessels—had abandoned at Brest, France, a much better position than they had gained.

At Brest, he explained, the German ships had lain on the flank of the British convoy route to the east and in position to leap at any time both into the Atlantic or Mediterranean, thus necessitating a costly ten-month intermittent British bombing campaign to keep them immobilized—a campaign that, however necessary, was nevertheless somewhat wasteful.

But now, he summed up:

"A threat to our convoy routes has been removed and the enemy has been driven from an advantageous position (this latter based on the view that the German command had no longer been willing to let the ships lie at Brest under British bombing). The diversion of our air-bombing effort . . . is over and a heavier scale of attack is possible in which all the near misses will fall on German and not on French dwellings.

"Further, both the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau have received damage in their passage which will keep them out of action for some time to come, and they will have to have gunnery and other practice. Before they can again play any part in the war, the Royal Navy will be reinforced by various important units of the highest quality and a similar strengthening process is going forward in the Navy of the United States."

The prime minister did disclose that a secret investigation would be made. But he made it plain that probably the findings would not be made public.

Press Chides Churchill

London, (Wednesday), Feb. 18 (U.P.). The London press almost unanimously today dismissed Prime Minister Churchill's explanation of the escape of the German fleet as "weak and unsatisfactory."

The Daily Sketch said Churchill, when confronted by the "mildest of inquiries into his generalship," became "sensitive as a prima donna charged by a musical critic with singing a false note."

The Daily Mirror chided Churchill for saying that the escape of the German warships was "highly beneficial."

"From this account we ought to have arranged with the German government to convoy them under escort of air umbrellas to Helgoland ten months ago," the Mirror said.

smallest man ever to win the Congressional Medal of Honor, being 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighing but 116 pounds. He is married and has one son.

The text of the War Department communique—No. 111 of the war—announcing the award, follows:

1. Philippine Theater: The War Department will announce in General Orders that the President has awarded, in the name of Congress, the Congressional Medal of Honor to Sergt. Jose Calugas, Battery B, Eighty-eighth Field Artillery, Philippine Scouts, for conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity in action above and beyond the call of duty.

"The award was made on the recommendation of Gen. MacArthur, who will represent the President in presenting the award to Sergt Calugas.

"The action for which the award was made took place near Culis, Bataan Province, Philippine Islands, on January 16, 1942. A battery gun position was bombed and shelled by the enemy until one gun was put out of commission and all of the cannoneers were killed or wounded. Sergt. Calugas, a mess sergeant of another battery, voluntarily and without orders ran 1000 yards across the shell-swept area to the gun position. Then he organized a volunteer squad which placed the gun back in commission and fired effectively against the enemy, although the position remained under constant and heavy Japanese artillery fire.

Japs Drop Amity Mask, Bomb Refugees

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Japanese war lords ordered a change in tactics yesterday in their campaign to win over the Philippine people and convince them of their "benevolent" intentions, raining bombs instead of propaganda leaflets down on a defenseless refugee camp.

Meanwhile, they intensified their pressure on Gen MacArthur's brave little army in Bataan, stepping up the tempo of their artillery fire and the bombing of the defenders' positions.

The lull in fighting along the front continued, except for the increasing frequency of the cannonading All signs, however, indicate that the Japs are about to put the heat on in earnest.

Eighteen women and five children were killed in the bombing of the undefended, civilian area, Gen. MacArthur reported. He noted the change in Japanese "persuasion" tactics toward the Filipinos in his message to the War Department.

"For several days enemy airplanes have been dropping poorly printed leaflets on refugee camps behind our lines," MacArthur informed the War Department.

"These pamphlets, in English, Spanish and Tagalog, professed great friendship for the Filipinos and exhorted them to cooperate with the invaders and join the Greater Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere.

"Yesterday, bombs were substituted for pamphlets. These potent messages of death fell on the refugee camp and the defenseless village of Cabcaben. Eighteen women and five children were killed in this attack and 13 women and 9 children were wounded."

Although MacArthur's hard-pressed men have had the longest respite from attack of the war these past few days, the bringing forward of additional enemy artillery reinforcements indicated that intensive preparations were underway for another major offensive.

The text of War Department Communique No. 110, outlining the military situation in the Philippines as of 9:30 a. m., E. W. T., yesterday, follows:

"1. Philippine Theater: Heavy enemy artillery fire from the Cavite shore bombarded our harbor fortifications with increasing intensity during most of the day. Damage to our installations and casualties was not great.

"In Bataan the enemy is bringing up artillery reinforcements and there is increased artillery fire all along the front. Enemy air activity is increasing.

"For several days enemy airplanes have been dropping poorly printed leaflets on refugee camps behind our lines. These pamphlets, in English, Spanish and Tagalog, professed great friendship for the Filipinos and exhorted them to cooperate with the invaders and join the Greater Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere.

"Yesterday bombs were substituted for pamphlets. These potent messages of death fell on the refugee camp at the defenseless village of Cabcaben. Eighteen women and five children were killed in this attack, and 13 women and nine children were wounded.

Burma Troops Dig in Along Bilin River

By the Associated Press

Rangoon, Feb. 17.—British forces burrowed into new and more formidable positions today along the Bilin River, some 50 miles from the vital feeder rail line to the Burma Road, and imperial commanders were hopeful the Japanese tide could be stemmed there until a counterblow could be organized.

The imperial defenders were working against time for the Japanese were expected to bolster their Burmese campaign with ground and air forces released from Singapore.

(In London the influential and conservative Times made the statement that "provisions for defense will have to be raised" to meet a new attack on Burma and India. It added that Allied staffs in London and Washington are "now concentrated" on this problem.)

Front Is Unchanged

Today's communiques said the situation on the new Bilin front was unchanged, but that British troops had come into contact with a small force of the enemy to the south. R. A. F. bombers and fighters attacked Japanese positions, stores and transport in the Moulmein area below the mouth of the Salween River.

There were no reports of contact yet with the Japanese along the new Bilin defense line.

An Allied counteroffensive to relieve the growing pressure upon Rangoon could be delivered by Chinese troops massing along the northwest Thai border.

In addition, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has been assembling a big army in southern Yunnan Province bordering Japanese-dominated French Indo-China.

Singapore Paid Tribute

In Calcutta, Indian Nationalist leaders bade farewell to Chiang Kai-shek, whose Indian tour was regarded in informed quarters as of "great military value."

Jawaharlal Nehru, influential leader of the Independence movement in India, significantly paid high tribute to the "magnificent gallantry" of the surrendered British garrison at Singapore.

Writing in his newspaper, the National Herald, the former president of the All-India Congress said: "The memories of Dunkerque, Crete and Greece were wiped out by the transcendental glory that is Singapore."

Nehru has held several conferences with Chiang Kai-shek seeking to weld their 800 million peoples into a common front against the Japanese, and his words today were highly encouraging to the British.

Indian Air Force Fights Over Burma

Rangoon, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Royal Indian Air Force planes have roared into action over Burma for the first time, a communique disclosed today.

The aircraft from India, believed to be fighter planes, rushed here from the west to help British and American fliers retain air supremacy and went out with R. A. F. formations on reconnaissance flights over enemy territory yesterday to familiarize their pilots with the terrain.

U.S. Will Win—by Nazi Plan, Says Deatherage, Chief of White Camelia, Now in Key War Job

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 17.—The war is doing so well in developing "disciplined force under central leadership," the avowed objective of the Knights of the White Camelia, that its national commander, George E. Deatherage, has let the organization lapse and has gone to work as chief engineer of a construction firm in the heart of the great naval operating base here.

Deatherage, whose testimony in May, 1939, before the Dies Committee was lurid with details of his close tie-up with the Nazi propaganda headquarters at Ecfurt, Germany, of his swastika-emblazoned American Nationalist Federation, and of his two visits to the German Embassy to discuss anti-Semitism and Hitler's fund-raising technique, is just as sure now as he was then of the imminence of a national social revolution.

A big man, tweedy and bespectacled, still showing an occasional trace of the old white Camelia ferocity, Deatherage said in an interview today: "I've been hitting 'em on the eight ball pretty right for the last five or six years. Now I'm sitting on the sidelines, waiting. I'll be proved as right or wrong in a hurry. It's coming up fast."

Sitting on the sidelines is not quite right, however, since Deatherage's job is one of key responsibility in 30 million dollars worth of construction orders (official Navy figures are $6,471,400, but these probably do not include subcontracts) held by the Norfolk contracting firm of Doyle & Russel.

Deatherage's work, on expansion projects in the Hampton Roads naval establishments, with its gigantic concentration of ships, planes and supplies, has made him enthusiastic, fiercely optimistic, indeed, about the war's ultimate outcome, even though he believes that the war itself might have been avoided or at least staved off.

"But we're in it now," he says, "and we've got to win it. It's unthinkable that we lose this war. We've just got to win it."

Not that we're winning it now. Deatherage believes that we're losing it at the moment. But changes will be made, must be made, in order to weld a centralized control in Washington of 130 million people, he is convinced.

Liberals to Be Wiped Out

The supreme irony of this the knights' commander laughs, is that the "liberals, pinkos and internationalists" who accused him of being a Fascist in 1939 are the very ones who must now forge that centralized control in order to win the war.

And taking history as a pattern, Deatherage is sure that this liberal group will be the first to be wiped out.

"All these brass hats," he jokes, "you're going to see more stripes than brass before it's over. G—— —— bunch of crooks."

Here's the way Deatherage dopes it out:

America was never a democracy—"all this stuff about democracy makes me sick"—but has always been under the control of a minority. For a long time that control has been by the "commercial minority," defined as "big business and Jewish bankers." The social revolution we are now witnessing must wipe them out and replace them with a control of management and labor, "an elite of management."

Germany, for example, is currently winning the war because it has "a definite objective. It is organized just like a big well-run corporation," he notes.

He Likes That System

"That's the way we've got to organize," with full control at the center of responsibility, and "not a lot of committees running in to argue every decision."

GEORGE DEATHERAGE

"You can't let this thing go on another 12 months like it has without somebody losing their necks," he argues, referring specifically to Washington "misfits, social workers and political hacks." But the change will come almost automatically, under the pressure of circumstances, he is confident.

The Knights of the White Camelia and the American Nationalist Federation which Deatherage organized from among 30 to 40 similar patriotic bodies such as the militant Christian Crusaders, the National Gentile League, the Christian Free Press and groups headed by James True and Gerald Winrod, is necessary in this process.

"As for the Nationalist Federation," he explains, "we were organized to prevent something. Something has happened that has taken it out of our hands. We can't do anything about it. If history repeats itself, this thing (centralized control) will happen naturally. There's nothing to do about it. Experience in Europe is a pattern; why theorize?"

The man whom the Dies Committee found to have selected the fiery swastika as the symbol of the National Federation, to have advocated striking "terror and fear into the hearts of many by burning a fiery swastika" even as the Ku Klux Klan burned the fiery cross, and to have toured the West Coast with Johannes Klapproth, Nazi Party member and organizer of the Friends of New Germany, has this to say about his own objectives for America:

"I'm for America for Americans, and to hell with the other guys. They'll double cross you every time. (Specifically mentioned, in detail, were the British and the Australians). Americans are naturally isolationists.

"I've got my own ideas on what we are fighting for.

"I think we have enough wealth and opportunity to give everyone in America a chance. I'm not advocating Huey Long's 'Share the wealth' plan, but that's the idea.

"The men in Washington—a perfect example is Hillman—have got to step out and give places to others who are competent.

"The very thing the Liberals and Pinks and Internationalists were fighting against must be created to win this war—to discipline, control and regiment 130 million people. We have to fight a machine the Germans built by centralized control. To build it we, too, have to have centralized control. But a man's a fool to build it and then try to call it democracy."

Cordell Kleckner Reported Killed With RAF at Singapore

Word that Cordell Kleckner, Washingtonian fighting with the R. A. F., had been downed in the battle of Singapore reached here last night.

In a dispatch from Batavia, Allen Raymond, New York Herald Tribune correspondent, told of his arrival in the Dutch East Indies and encountering a member of the R. A. F. squadron with whom he had spent Christmas behind the pompom guns of an English merchantman, converted into a plane carrier, off the West African coast. Three of the Eagles were Americans.

Correspondent Raymond wrote:

"A member of the squadron who had fought with them (the American pilots) in Singapore came up to see me as soon as I arrived (in Batavia). He said, 'Funny seeing you here. Cordell is dead.' He referred to a young pilot from Washington, who left me a khaki shirt that is now in my suitcase and left me, grinning, 'Kid, I'll be seeing you.'

"This boy was magnificent."

In a New Year's dispatch from Freetown, Africa, Correspondent Raymond had described his talk with Cordell Kleckner Christmas night while watching for enemy subs and planes.

"Kleckner seemed to me like an inventor and evangelist preaching the gospel of flying artillery to make the current motorized artillery as obsolete as the horse-drawn variety."

Pilot Kleckner had been working at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing here for five years when he joined the R. A. F. in September, 1940. His wife, Anne, lives at 4107 Fourth Street Northwest. The last letter she received from the pilot, dated January 8, told of his arrival at the Red Sea, en route to the Far East.

"Think we'll soon be shooting a few Japs," he wrote.

Ickes Warns Motorists to Decrease Gas Use 15% or Face Rationing

East's Fuel Stocks Decline, Figures Show

By Milton Magruder
United Press Staff Writer

Petroleum Coordinator Ickes asked motorists in the Eastern States yesterday to reduce gasoline consumption by 15 per cent immediately so that rationing can be avoided.

He told the House Interstate Commerce subcommittee frankly that oil stocks in the East are dwindling steadily, and he warned that attacks on tankers in the Caribbean defense area constitute a "bold thrust against our supply lines which has ominous implications."

But, he said that gasoline rationing—which he already has discussed with Price Administrator Henderson—will not be imposed except "as a last resort." He indicated several other steps might be taken before this drastic weapon is unsheathed, including a possible renewal of the 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. curfew on all retail gasoline sales in the East and a ban on Sunday sales.

The curfew and Sunday ban, he said, are recommended by the oil industry. He is reluctant, however, to ban Sabbath sales. He said Sunday driving is sometimes more essential than Monday driving."

Industry leaders, Ickes also revealed, favor a reduction in gasoline consumption on the West Coast as well as the East. He said they contended that since a number of tankers have been diverted from the East Coast to the Pacific "it would seem only fair that West Coast consumption be curtailed to about the same extent as may be decided upon for the Eastern States."

The cabinet officer plumped again for the proposal which he made last fall when an oil shortage loomed—construction of a 24-inch pipe line from Texas to the East Coast. The now extinct Supplies and Allocations Board killed the project by denying it priority rating.

Ickes said he is asking the War Production Board to reconsider the undertaking which he said could be used to pipe 350,000 barrels of oil daily—a supply equal to the capacity of 70 average tankers—to replenish Eastern stocks.

He painted a gloomy picture of the situation in the East. Oil stocks in this area on December 13, 1941, reached a peak of 8,400,000 barrels in excess of the amount on hand on the corresponding date of 1940, he said. But since December 13, he revealed, stocks have gone down without interruption and on February 7, 1942, were 5,705,000 barrels below last year's level.

The industry, he said, predicts that if this slump continues it will bring "total East Coast stocks substantially below a safe working level."

As a corrective, Ickes said he is urging industrial plants now using heavy fuel oil to convert to coal wherever possible. He also has asked the United States Maritime Commission to divert some tankers carrying gasoline to transportation of light fuel oil.

George W. DeChard Funeral Rites This Morning

Funeral services will be held today for George W. DeChard, 78, retired Capital Transit employe, at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Arthur D. Underwood, 1942 U Place Southeast, at 11 a. m. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. DeChard, a lifelong resident of Washington, had been ill only a short time.

He had served at one time with the United States Army Signal Corps, being stationed at Fort Myer. He was retired by the Capital Transit Co. 12 years ago after about 44 years of service. Mr. DeChard was the grandson of Charles DeChard, who came to this country from France as an aide to Gen. Lafayette.

Mr. DeChard was the husband of the late Ellen DeChard. He is survived by four sons: William, Leo, George E. and Joseph DeChard, and two daughters besides Mrs. Underwood, Mrs. Elizabeth McConnell and Mrs. Margaret Canazin, both of Washington, and a sister, Mrs. Daisy Randolph, of Norfolk, Va.

Nelson Gives Warplanes Top Priority Rating

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Acting swiftly yesterday on the basis of criticism that airplane production is being hampered by an ancient priority system, Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, put all materials needed for military aircraft into the same top priority rating as tanks and naval vessels.

He revealed at an impromptu press conference, moreover, that a plan would be established soon for direct allocation by the Government of materials needed for all armaments that have top priority rating.

Nelson took the action on his own authority as WPB chairman after meeting Monday night with officials of the Air Corps and the Army and Navy Aviation Board.

He declared he decided upon the order because of a "psychological barrier" which had arisen in the minds of airplane manufacturers because tanks and ships had higher priority ratings than their product.

The change in ratings, Nelson observed, will not increase the materials available for aircraft, but it will provide a "psychological push" so that President Roosevelt's goal of 60,000 planes for 1942 could be attained.

Nelson said the Air Corps felt that it was being pushed out of the picture by not being in the A-1-A rating. He said he wanted to do everything possible to insure the achievement of the President's goal and the Army and Navy needs for aircraft.

In an order to each of the 53 manufacturers of light civilian aircraft, the board limited the sale of new planes having less than 500 horsepower and restricted the amount of aluminum that may be used in the airframes of certain of them.

The board stated that the Army and Navy will require large numbers of light aircraft in the immediate future, and that additional quantities will be needed for the civilian air patrol, the civilian pilot-training program, and various State guard units.

Others excepted from the order are the Maritime Commission, the Panama Canal, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, the Coast Guard Civil Aeronautics Authority, the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, the Office of Scientific Research and Development, and the governments of the United Kingdom, Canada and other dominions, crown colonies and protectorates of the British Empire, Belgium, China, Greece, Kingdom of the Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Russia and Yugoslavia.

War Sidelights

Jap Pilot Losses Heavy At Singapore

By the Associated Press

Batavia, Feb. 17.—The Japanese lost at least 200 pilots in the battle for Singapore, according to information given the news agency Aneta by three Australian fliers who escaped to Java in the final hours of the siege.

The young pilots said that last Saturday, with the Japanese already in possession of the Kelang airdrome, they repaired their damaged planes in a nearby garage, and took off for Java through a hail of enemy fire.

Scores of sun-scorched R. A. F. pilots and British tommies, landed here safely after attacks on their ship had left them clinging to bits of wreckage in the sea for 17 hours, reported today that 4000 wounded were in the Singapore military hospital when they left there, and that 20 English and Australian nurses had stayed behind to tend them.

Nazi Food Scheme

Bern, Switzerland, Feb. 17 (AP).—Germany has ordered the transfer of 400,000 Russian farm workers from the northern to the southern Ukraine as part of a gigantic food program for 1942.

They are to go from the regions around Kiev and Zhitomir to the former industrial zones around Kirovo, Dnieperopetrovsk and Nikoleav. Most workers in the southern Ukraine were removed with the Russian army last summer.

This announcement followed the earlier disclosure that the Nazis plan to resettle large sections of White Russia with farmers from occupied Denmark, Holland and other countries as part of their agricultural expansion program.

Revenge for Poles

London (Wednesday), Feb. 18 (INS).—The Daily Herald reported from Stockholm today that six divisions of Polish troops, comprising some 90,000 newly-equipped troops, are now in action with a Soviet army corps pushing into White Russia.

This was the first word indicating that Polish divisions organized in the Soviet Union had been thrown into the fighting.

5 Nazi U-Boats Sunk in a Day, London Hears

New York, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—The London radio, heard today by the United Press listening post, said "it is reported that five German submarines have been sunk in the Atlantic in the last 24 hours."

By Chandler Diehl
Associated Press Staff Writer

Balboa, Canal Zone, Feb. 17.—The possibility that German submarines may be operating from a well-concealed base in the Caribbean area—within the Canal Zone's ring of defenses—was raised tonight by the U-boat raid off Aruba early Monday which cost the Allies at least seven tankers sunk or damaged.

United States armed forces long have been exercising a most vigilant search for any enemy bases in the Caribbean and the bold Nazi thrust into the West Indies led to speculation today whether they had a refueling station in those waters.

The opinion was expressed in Army circles that the attacks by two of more U-boats indicated the Germans have a base at least as close as Dakar or some other point on the west Africa coast.

Clew Expected Soon

It was generally believed here that the next few days may offer a clew, with much depending on possible additional forays in the Caribbean area.

United States bombers are believed to have inflicted swift and deadly vengeance upon some of the submarines reported to have left 59 sailors dead or missing in barracuda-infested and flaming waters along the Venezuelan coast.

The reports that seven ships had suffered from the submarines were made in Maracaibo, Venezuela, by executives of the Largo Petroleum Co. and survivors of the ships.

The reports gave this tally:

1. Monagas, 2675-ton tanker owned by the Mene Grande Oil Co., Venezuela, torpedoed and last seen on fire 25 miles northwest of Las Piedras, Aruba Island. Five men missing from a crew of 31; 26 landed at Las Piedras.

2. Oranjestad, 2396-ton Lago Shipping Co. tanker sailing under British flag, torpedoed off Aruba.

3. Pedernales, 3945 tons, also Lago Shipping Co., torpedoed off Aruba.

4. San Nicolas, 2391 tons, also Lago Shipping Co., sailing under British flag, torpedoed twice and engine room blown up, 25 miles south Punta Macolla, Venezuela.

5. Tia Juana, 2395 tons, Lago Shipping Co., under British flag, torpedoed three times forward and set on fire immediately; attacked between Aruba and Venezuela.

6. Rafaela, 3177 Shell company tanker, under Dutch flag, torpedoed off Aruba.

7. The Texaco tanker Arkansas, sailing without load, hit but not sunk.

Aruba 'Dud' Explodes, Killing Four Dutch

Willemstad, Curacao, Dutch West Indies, Feb. 17 (AP).—A German submarine inflicted the first casualties of the war on American soil today when a supposed "dud" torpedo fired in the attacks yesterday on oil tankers and refineries exploded belatedly on Aruba and killed four Dutchmen.

Two of the dead were officers, the others marines.

A marine and two civilian guards were injured slightly when the sharp-nosed, 18-foot missile flew to pieces as they were taking it apart.

Presumably the torpedo had missed a ship in the attack that spread flames over the Aruba area and resulted in the suspension of oil shipping from the Venezuelan mainland to these Dutch islands just off the shore.

Nazis Slay Frenchman

Vichy, Feb. 17 (AP).—The German authorities in Paris announced tonight the shooting of another Frenchman—Eugene Marie Lumeau of Seine department—for "activity favoring the enemy as the consequence of Communist agitation."

Restrictions Bring Rubber Plant Bill Veto

President Roosevelt yesterday vetoed the bill for planting of guayule and other rubber-bearing plants because it applied only to plantings in the United States. He asked quick consideration of a similar bill that would permit plantings in the other American countries.

In a message to the Senate, the Chief Executive asserted that "in the establishment of sources of crude rubber for emergency and defense uses it is vital that all potential rubber-producing areas in the Western Hemisphere be developed, regardless of whether within or without the United States."

The vetoed measure, he declared, excludes important sources, whereas "we cannot afford to neglect any opportunity to obtain maximum supplies of crude rubber."

In limiting the promotion of guayule cultivation to this country, Mr. Roosevelt said the bill would contradict the spirit of a resolution adopted by the conference of the American Republics in Rio de Janeiro last month and "seriously handicap our joint war effort."

Immediately after the veto message was read in the Senate, Senator Downey (Democrat), of California, introduced a new bill embracing the President's ideas. He called attention to the fact that the Senate had passed the original bill in the form preferred by the President, but that the House amended it to limit its provisions to the United States.

the enemy, continued to advance, and occupied a number of populated places."

But the Russian offensive was meeting stiffened German resistance and was being impeded by unseasonable thaws in some sections.

The impression prevailed in responsible quarters here that the front was becoming more and more stabilized. The Russians still held the initiative. But it seemed that they probably had to content themselves with harassing the enemy by sudden thrusts, meantime consolidating their positions, building up their supply lines, and preparing reinforcements against the expected German spring offensive.

Not since the recapture of Mozhaisk nearly a month ago has the Red army announced a major success. Cities which then seemed certain to fall in a matter of days—Kharkov, Orel, Rzhev, Novgorod, among others—still are in German hands.

Grave doubts were growing that the Russians would be able to force back the enemy much beyond the present line before spring permits Hitler to loose his heralded offensive.

Certainly observers here no longer expected the Red army to hurl the Germans back across the Dnieper River before warm weather.

The Berlin radio admitted a Soviet break-through on the Moscow front, apparently in the Kaluga sector, but said the Russian forces had been encircled and 1800 prisoners taken in addition to 5000 Red army dead left on the battlefield.

The Germans also claimed that a Soviet attack on the southern front had been costly, resulting in the loss of 4000 men and much material, after which the Russians were unable to renew their offensive in that sector.

RAF Torpedoes 4 Italian Warships

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Feb. 17.—Pouncing on a strong formation of Italian ships making one of their rare appearances in the central Mediterraneon, R. A. F. planes torpedoed and left aflame two cruisers and two destroyers, the British reported today.

The attack was made Sunday night at the entrance to the Ionian Sea between southern Italy and Greece. The full toll was reported by participating pilots after an official announcement previously had said that two cruisers and a destroyer were torpedoed and another destroyer was probably hit.

In their own eyewitness account the pilots said four vessels definitely were set afire.

On the Libyan front, the British announced that German reconnoitering detachments have withdrawn from positions in advance of the main Axis lines near Ain el Gazala, but that "considerable enemy forces" still were in the area of El Mechili. The latter lies 60 miles almost due west of Ain el Gazala and about 100 miles west of Tobruk.

R. A. F. operations over the desert have been reinforced by the newly formed Free French Escadrille Alsace, whose commander hitch-hiked across the Sahara and walked 200 miles of the way from Algeria to join the unit.

Gen. Georges Catroux, commander of Free French forces in the Middle East, presented the squadron's colors yesterday at an airdrome somewhere in the desert.

Another Free French squadron, Escadrille Lorraine, has been operating with the British for four months.

U-Boat Sinks Nazi Ship Disguised as British

London, Feb. 17 (INS).—Sinking of two enemy supply ships and crippling of a third in the Bay of Biscay was credited today to long-range British bombers.

The Admiralty, meantime, reported one of the war's strangest incidents—the sinking of a German merchant ship by a German submarine.

It happened when the 5082-ton Nazi merchantman Spreewald masqueraded as the British mail liner Brittany on January 31. A U-boat in the vicinity took the attempted disguise seriously and proceeded to send the German vessel to the bottom.

Lump Sum Grants to States Proposed for Workers Displaced by Conversions

Move Urged In an Effort To Save Bill

Federal lump sum grants to States faced with special job displacement problems were proposed yesterday to stem the rising Congressional opposition to the Administration's bill for Government-subsidized unemployment compensation.

The lump sum amendment was prepared by Representative Dingell (Democrat), of Michigan, as the House Ways and Means Committee completed a full week of hearings on the bill.

In a final effort to save the legislation, apparently doomed by the committee, Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York and R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers, took the committee stand in support of the bill.

But last night, committee sponsors of the Administration proposal said they had not yet polled enough votes to report it and may seek to salvage as much as possible of the original plan by amendments.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee said he was unable to predict what the verdict of his group will be, but he said he expects to call a committee meeting tomorrow for a showdown.

The Administration proposal guarantees payments up to $24 a week for 26 weeks to all displaced workers, with the Federal Government subsidizing the balance over and above unemployment benefits already authorized by State law. Almost solidly aligned in opposition, State officials have condemned the proposal as a "premium on idleness" leading toward Federalization of State unemployment compensation systems.

Representative Dingell, whose native state of Michigan will bear the brunt of worker displacements from the war-converted automobile industry, said he still sought approval of the Administration plan, but if it fails will advance his "lump sum" amendment.

This amendment would divorce the Federalization controversy by voting States affected by war conversions from 25 to 33 1-3 per cent of the cost of carrying displaced workers, in outright Federal grants.

Dingell explained that his amendment would not apply to "normal" unemployment, but where States faced a heavy load of displacements forced by plant conversions, the Government would reimburse one-third to one-fourth of liberalized payments made by the States to displaced workers over 26 weeks of unemployment.

Opponents of the bill, now apparently in the majority, were expected to ask either complete abandonment of the legislation, in which case jurisdiction may be taken by the Appropriations Committee, or substitution of some form of WPA relief for those not covered by State benefits.

Appealing yesterday for the original Administration plan, Mayor LaGuardia yesterday told the committee that America's entire industrial machine will have to be transformed into war production, temporarily displacing so many workers "that it creates a national problem, not a State problem."

"We can't say to them, you've lost your job; that's your lookout, go out and find a job," LaGuardia testified.

Petworth Group Seeks New School

A resolution favoring use of the Kramer Junior High School for school rather than Government office purposes when it is completed was adopted last night by the Petworth Citizens Association.

Maps used in civilian defense were explained by Webster R. Frye, deputy air-raid warden. Ernest F. Henry, District Rent Commission counsel, also spoke, and George W. Potter, association president, was presiding officer. The meeting was in the Petworth Library.

The President's Day

By International News Service

PAPER CHASE: At his morning rally with the staff, the President handed out a mound of finished paper work—some of it old hat, some new and a great deal of it having to do with the endless detail, bits and pieces that are part and parcel of the Chief Executive's job—war or not. Sorted out, Mr. Roosevelt's handouts added up to four vetoes, a batch of nominations and USHA Administrator Nathan Straus' letter of resignation.

BATTLE LINE: The formidable United States battle line filed in for a long and strenuous staff conference and strategy study in midmorning as Generals Marshall and Arnold, Admirals Stark and King appeared on summons. An hour later the top-ranking commanders marched solemnly out with some new angles in battle plotting to think over.

CHECK UP: In for lunch and a check-up conference came tall British Ambassador Lord Halifax. The talk ranged from fallen Singapore to Churchill to the Mediterranean and other vital theaters of war.

SPEECH: During the hour after lunch and before his regular Tuesday meeting with the press, the President did some digesting of war plans and dispatch studying, worked a bit on his forthcoming speech, tailor-made to slap down the "scurrilous" rumors on the conduct of the war and their originators.

ANSWERS: Looking rested and in an amiable, straight-from-the shoulder mood, the President skipped any pat announcements or stereotyped news, let the press start firing questions almost immediately. Under a barrage of questions based on rumors and dissatisfactions going the rounds in the Capital, the President listened carefully and replied with a healthy, round-house swing at "the Cliveden set," peddling "rumors and lies."

CURTAINS: Taking advantage of a short questionless silence, the President abruptly rang down the curtains on the conference by picking up a letter from his desk, getting suddenly very busy reading it. Pleased with this slight of hand, the President looked up, grinned broadly as the correspondents straggled slowly out, wondering how they let him get away with that one.

GUESTS: Overloaded with problems, Mr. Roosevelt decided to take a little time out for refreshments, gathered a few close and favorite friends for dinner and put the no-shop-talk rule into effect for a couple of hours before going back to the grind.

Senate Votes Tydings Probe

classification rating of all Government workers shifted over to defense work.

Named by Glass to serve with Tydings on the special subcommittee were Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, chairman of the Senate District Committee, and Senator Rufus C. Holman (Republican), of Oregon.

The Senate gave unanimous consent to the resolution, along with $10,000 to finance the inquiry, following a report by Chairman Scott W. Lucas, of the Audit and Control Committee. The Appropriations Committee last Friday had approved the resolution following an editorial appeal by The Post on February 12 for immediate conversion of Government to a war footing.

No Conflict With Roosevelt

Senator Tydings in a brief statement to the Senate told colleagues there should be no conflict with the survey ordered by the President to the same end," after I submitted the resolution."

Following the first meeting of his subcommittee, the Marylander told reporters that questionnaires covering the whole range of Federal employment had been approved and referred to statistical experts to be placed in final form. They will start going out to every agency the first of next week, Tydings said. Complete returns will be asked by March 1, and a month from today the subcommittee expects to have amassed sufficient data for preliminary recommendations.

In order to show personnel increases or decreases in agencies affected, the questionnaires will ask full data for six months periods dating from the outbreak of the war, September 1, 1939, to March 1, 1941. From that date to the present, reports will be asked on a monthly basis.

Type of Questions

Tydings said they will ask among other questions:

What work is the Government unit is doing?

Can that work be curtailed?

How many hours of actual work are done by each employe?

Is there enough work to keep the entire staff busy?

Is there any overtime?

Names of employes who have been deferred from the draft because of Government jobs?

How many section leaders, or employes serving in executive capacity, can be spared for war work?

Other questions will be directed at the nature of the work being done in some peacetime agencies, such as—How many employes are engaged in mailing out printed data? How many engaged in mailing out benefit checks and to whom?

Civil Service Inquiry

Entirely apart from the personnel questionnaires, Tydings said the subcommittee decided to query the Civil Service Commission on how many Government agencies are doing virtually the same work so Congress will have the over-all picture on duplication of effort and overlapping of functions.

He said information elicited in this connection may be interchanged with the Byrd joint committee on nonessential expenditures which is cooperating with Tydings in his survey.

"From all of this, and special investigations where necessary, we should get a comprehensive picture from the little fellows as well as thos at the top," Tydings said. "It should enable Congress to conclude just how civil functions of Government can be streamlined into the war effort."

No Donnybrook Fair

He said he thought most of the information could be assembled without hearings—"We don't want to make a Donnybrook fair out of this."

Many cooperative suggestions have already been made by Government employes themselves, he said.

"We want to protect employes' rights all along the line," he said. "They shouldn't be penalized in salaries or grades if transferred to a war agency or if their own peacetime agency is eliminated."

Spy Suspect Offered Bribe, Sheriff Says

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 17.—A Spokane, Wash., special deputy sheriff testified in Federal court today that Kurt Frederick Ludwig offered him $50,000 last October if he would help him escape from the Spokane County jail.

The sheriff, Ray Kilian, identified Ludwig, whom Government agents have described as the master mind of an international German spy ring, and said he was the man whom he had helped guard for weeks.

"He asked me if I would help him escape from jail for $50,000 and he gave me an address in Buenos Aires," Kilian testified, adding that it presumably was through the South American address that he would have been paid.

Told to "Play Along"

Acting on instructions given him by Federal authorities who arrested Ludwig near Seattle and under whose jurisdiction he then was being held, Kilian said he began to "play along" and told Ludwig he might consider the escape deal if Ludwig would tell him the nature of his business.

Referring to Ludwig, one of five men and a woman on trial on espionage charges, Kilian continued:

"He asked me to send a telephone message to Otto Bessinger at 577 Isham Avenue, Manhattan, and to tell a Mr. Borchardt there that 'the family is sick' and to tell him to send $200 to an address in Salt Lake City and to sign it 'Joe' and also for him to take a long vacation out West."

Paul T. Borchard, a former German army major and one of the defendants, previously was identified by Mrs. Louise Bensinger as a man who occupied a $5-a-week room in her apartment. She said that Ludwig, whom she knew as "Kessler," was a frequent visitor. She said Borchardt told her "Kessler" was a reporter.

Earlier, over the objections of defense counsel and with the permission of the court, U. S. Attorney Mathias Correa read into the record a statement which he said was a full confession made to FBI agents by Frederick Edward Schlosser, 19, one of the defendants.

Committee to Hear Pension Issue

York, Senate sponsor of the new Federal Retirement Act which provides for Congressional annuities, pleaded with the Senate for legislation to enable the "poor man" to undertake a "public career in the Congress of the United States."

"We Must Think of the Future"

In a plaintive prelude to a carefully prepared answer to demands for repeal of the "pensions" provision, Mead said he hoped Barkley would withdraw his request for immediate consideration of a repeal resolution. He said he did not believe he or the committee were being "treated fairly."

"We must think of the future and the type of men and women who are to take our places in the Congress and make sure that we keep the door of opportunity open for those who come up the hard way and were never blessed with great wealth," he said.

Remarking that the campaign of ridicule against the provision originated in his part of the country, Senator Clark (Democrat), of Idaho, angrily declared that he was not present when the bill passed last month, that if he had been he would have voted for it, and that he intended to vote against repeal.

Clark Joins Bone

Clark joined Senator Bone (Democrat), of Washington, in denouncing newspapers for failing to make it clear to the country that Congressmen generally are required to make the same contributions toward their annuities as Federal employes.

In the 1940 campaign, observed Senator Maloney (Democrat), of Connecticut, he told the electorate that in eight years as a Senator he had never found it necessary to change his vote.

"It is with deep regret that I now find myself in the position of being no longer able to make that statement," said Maloney who voted for Congressional "pensions."

On the other side of the Capitol, 120 House members signed one of two petitions calling for immediate action on repeal. Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, originator of the petitions, said they would be laid before the House Civil Service Committee when it opens repeal hearings tomorrow.

Mrs. Battersby's Funeral Services Set for Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Evelyn Dodge Battersby, 46, who died Monday at her home, 904 Davis Avenue, Takoma Park, Md., will be held today at 2:30 in the Takoma Park Seventh-Day Adventist Church. Carroll and Willow Avenues. Burial will be in the George Washington Memorial Cemetery.

Born in Montpelier, Vt., Mrs. Battersby had resided in Takoma Park since 1938. Before coming to Takoma Park she was active in Seventh-Day Adventist work in South Lancaster, Mass.

She is survived by her husband, Harry Battersby, a son, Don, and her mother, Mrs. Nellie L. Dodge, of South Lancaster, Mass.

House Votes 32 Billions For Army, Lend-Lease, Ships

Principal items in the Army's end of the appropriation are as follows:

For tanks, guns and ammunition—$13,252,200,000.

For expansion of war production—$3,011,512,000.

For transportation—$2,245,701,000.

For Army communication facilities—$1,349,000,000.

2877 Merchant Ships

The bill would make possible, with additions to funds already appropriated for the purpose, Maritime Commission production of a vast merchant fleet of 2877 ships, with an aggregate dead tonnage of 30,843,42, at a total cost of $6,704,464,056. The commission would be able to add 476 vessels to its present program of 916 cargo ships, chiefly of the "ugly duckling" type.

The bill would make it possible for the commission to construct 784 merchant ships during 1942 at the rate of two a day.

Three times the House turned down attempts to change the bill before passage on a 371-to-0 roll call. By voice votes it blocked moves to eliminate lend-lease allotments. On a standing vote of 98 to 38 it defeated an amendment proposed by Representative Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, to tack onto the bill provisions of his antistrike measure still pending in the Senate.

War Profiteers Assailed

Representaitve Cannon (Democrat), of Missouri, contended that the effect of the Smith amendment would be "disastrous" to the war effort, although the Appropriations Committee of which he is chairman unsparingly assailed not only strikers but war profiteers.

Citing testimony taken in its executive hearings showing that steel delivered to shipyards in January was only 70 per cent of requirements, the committee declared:

"It is worse than unfortunate that even a small number of men whose services are vitally useful in the prosecution of shipbuilding are not at work. . . .

"These disputes wear us out fighting each other while the production of war materials languishes and the chief beneficiary is the Axis enemy."

Miracles of Production

Referring to profiteering, the committee observed that "unquestionably, practices have crept in of a most reprehensible character, despite the care and diligence of those having over-all responsibility for the expenditure of funds."

Warning that only the fortunes of war can in the long run determine how much this country ultimately will have to spend for victory, the committee asserted:

"Never in all history has a Nation been faced with war costs of the magnitude that confront us. The amounts are appalling."

Cannon told the House that America faces a prospect as "gloomy" as the dreary outlook of the colonists in the days of Valley Forge. But, he added, a "miracle" of production has been achieved, despite criticism. He predicted new miracles by an aroused people.

"Crisis Is Coming"

"The crisis is coming in the spring of 1942," he said. "Japan is consolidating its victories. In Europe and in Africa the enemy is preparing for his great push, the supreme offensive. Unless we produce material by that time sufficient to hold the front it will be too late."

Representative Case (Republican), of South Dakota, attacked qualifications of Harry Hopkins as lend-lease administrator. He coupled this with a warning that "within 90 days this country faces the possibility that a foe will be hammering" at Panama, Alaska and coastal areas.

Churches Usher In Lent Season Today

Both Catholic and Protestant Groups Plan Wide Observance of Holy Period

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Church Editor

Washington's first Lenten season since America's entry into the world conflict will be ushered in today with traditional Ash Wednesday services in Catholic and Protestant churches.

Christianity's most solemn event, Lent is a 40-day period (Sundays not calculated), commemorating Jesus 40 days of abstinence, and ends on the Saturday preceding Easter. This year Easter falls on April 5. Palm Sunday, March 29, marks the start of Holy Week, recalling His trial and crucifixion.

Ash Wednesday derives its name from the Roman Catholic Church ceremony of placing ashes on the forehead in the form of a cross as a sign of penitence and humility, and as a reminder that man is dust. Ashes obtained from burning palm branches consecrated during the previous year's Palm Sunday observance.

Protestants Arrange Services

Protestant groups here have arranged city-wide, neighborhood and individual church services for Ash Wednesday and during the Lenten season. Episcopal and Lutheran congregations will have Ash Wednesday Holy Communion rites. Masses, with the ceremony of the ashes, will dominate Catholic Ash Wednesday observance.

St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Tenth and G Streets Northwest, will observe Ash Wednesday with masses at 7, 7:30 and 8 a. m., and 12:10 p. m., and distribution of ashes at 3, 5 and 7:30 p. m.

There will be Ash Wednesday masses at St. Dominic's Church, Sixth and E Street Southwest, at 6, 7, 8 and 8:30 a. m., and 12:15 p. m., and a Holy Hour at 7:30 p. m. Ashes will be distributed after masses, and also at 3 p. m., and after the evening service. The Rev. J. F. McManus, O. P., will begin a Lenten sermon series at the evening service, with his initial theme as "Death Marches On." The Holy Hour services will continue on Wednesdays during Lent.

Masses at St. Matthew's

Ash Wednesday masses will be held at St. Matthew's Cathedral, Rhode Island near Connecticut Avenues, at 6, 7, 8 and 9 a. m. and 12:10 p. m. Ashes' distribution will be at 3, 5:15 and 8 p. m.

The Washington Federation of Churches, representative body of 163 Protestant churches and allied agencies, has scheduled weekly services during Lent at 5 p. m., beginning today, when the speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Charles B. Foelsch, pastor of Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle. All services will be held at Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G Street Northwest.

Beginning today at 12 noon, 11 Protestant churches of Southeast Washington will hold midday Lenten services at the Penn Theater, 650 Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast, Mondays through Fridays. Today's speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Warren D. Bowman, pastor of the Washington Church of the Brethren.

Weekly Service Planned

Protestant congregations of Chevy Chase will hold weekly Lenten services every Thursday at 8 p. m. beginning tomorrow, when the program will be at Wesley Methodist Church. The opening speaker will be Dr. Harris E. Kirk, of Baltimore, Md.

Brookland Methodist Church, Fourteenth and Lawrence Streets Northeast, has arranged a Lenten institute for Thursdays during Lent. The program will include supper and fellowship at 6:15 p. m.; study groups at 7:05 p. m., and devotional services at 8 p. m. Clergymen and religious education workers of several denominations from all parts of Washington will take part. The Rev. Dr. John R. Edwards, superintendent of the West Washington Methodist District, will address tomorrow's devotional program.

Epiphany Church will sponsor noonday Lenten services, Mondays through Fridays, beginning today at 12 m., when the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Sheerin, Epiphany pastor, will preach. The Rev. Dr. Hulbert A. Woolfall, rector of St. Peter's Church, St. Louis, Mo., will speak tomorrow and Friday.

Other Ash Wednesday services at Epiphany will be Holy Communion at 7:30 a. m.; Litany, penitential office, Communion and sermon by the Rev. Hunter M. Lewis, assistant rector of Epiphany Church.

Dean Phillips to Speak

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will celebrate Ash Wednesday Holy Communion at 11 a. m. at the Washington Cathedral. The Very Rev. ZeBarney T. Phillips, dean of Washington, will preach.

Ash Wednesday will be celebrated at St. John's Episcopal "Church of the Presidents," Lafayette Square, with Holy Communion at 7:30 and 12 o'clock, with the Rev. Dr. Norman Goehring preaching at the latter time; with vespers at 5 p. m., and penitential office at 8 p. m., the Rev. John Magee preaching.

St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, Connecticut Avenue and Bancroft Place Northwest, will hold Ash Wednesday Communion at 7:30 a.m., penetitential office, litany and morning prayer, with sermon by the Rev. Armand T. Eyler, at 11 a. m., and services at 8 p. m., when the preacher will be the Rev. Paul J. Wilbur, rector of the Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation.

Services At St. Paul's

Ash Wednesday services at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Rock Creek Parish, Rock Creek Church Road and Webster Street Northwest, will include Holy Communion at 7 a. m.; penitential office, communion and sermon at 10 a. m., and evening prayer, with sermon by the Rev. Dr. Norman Goehring at 8 p. m.

Takes Job Hauling Refuse

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

SUBSTITUTE—Precedent was broken in San Diego, Calif., when Mrs. Opal Ruth Pruitt, 24, was given a job driving a city garbage truck. Difficulty of obtaining men drivers because of better paying defense jobs was the reason given for Mrs. Pruitt's employment to Russia as a result of Japan's attack, but by March 1, he added, we will have caught up in deliveries.

A reporter asked if this would be in time for Germany's promised spring offensive against Russia. For answer, the President reminded him that March 1 was only two weeks off.

The President was asked if he would explain the strategic value of American loans to Russia. Mr. Roosevelt said it could be put in terms of dead Germans and smashed tanks.

The President was asked about the suggestion that Gen. Douglas MacArthur be pulled out of the Philippines and given an over-all command in the larger war picture.

He replied that this was just one of those things that people talk about without having much knowledge of the situation. (Wendell Willkie was one of those who asked that MacArthur be given another assignment.)

At the outset, when asked to comment on reports that Secretary Knox had concealed the true damage at Pearl Harbor, the President strained forward, and his customary serenity disappeared. Was Secretary Knox, he asked, expected to reveal military secrets to the enemy?

When he characterized the reports as R-O-T, one reporter asked what the letters stood for. Apparently, he was thinking in terms of Government alphabetical agencies. A roar of laughter swept the President's oval-shaped office.

The President then called attention to a Berryman cartoon in the Evening Star. This showed a rumor monger backing John Q. Public against the wall, and pouring defeatist arguments into his ear—arguments such as "Why help the Russians? They'll turn on us later." It also showed Uncle Sam ready to drape a millstone around the man's neck.

The cartoon, President Roosevelt said, was particularly applicable to Washington.

He described the city as the worst rumor factory in the country and therefore the source of more lies than any other community in the United States. He said he could prove this, that anybody could prove it.

The President was asked what he thought about one feature of the cartoon—the argument that the Russians would turn on us later.

That, the President said, was on a par with other arguments put out by the Cliveden Set of Washington. (The term Cliveden Set was applied in England to a coterie of social and government leaders accused of being so fearful of bolshevism that they favored appeasement of the Nazis.)

"How about giving out the names of members of Wasnington's Cliveden Set?" a reporter asked.

He replied that the reporters knew the names as well as he did.

"How about getting close to the names?" a questioner persisted.

The President said he was too close to them now.

The Chief Executive confirmed the report that the United States was about to make a new lend-lease loan to Russia. He explained that the billion dollars advanced to Russia several months ago had now virtually been obligated for war supplies, and that another loan—he didn't say what size—was needed to keep a steady stream of supplies flowing to the Red Army.

He explained that two different things were involved in the delay of deliveries to Russia. The shipments that had fallen behind, he said, were shipments arranged for by Averell Harriman in Moscow last October. The first billion-dollar loan, he said, came later.

At the October conference, the President said, the United States had agreed to send to Russia so many tons of military supplies, including planes. The United States he said, made good on all shipments up to December 7—the day of the Pearl Harbor attack. Then, he said, we fell behind in December and January.

Now, the President continued, the United States is catching up on its shipments, and will have caught up completely by March 1. The billion-dollar loan already made to Russia, he said, will cover the lend-lease supplies that will begin to flow to Russia about that time.

A reporter asked this question:

"There has been a good deal of concern at the possibility of an attack this year on Alaska. Can you give us any reassurances—"

The President interrupted to say that, of course, he couldn't give any assurances on exactly what is going to happen to Alaska. But, he added, an attack is perfectly possible from the point of view of operations.

"What I was about to add," the reporter said, "was if the Navy and the Air Force as they now stand in the Pacific are sufficient to deal with everything?"

No, the President replied, they were not.

The enemy, he said, could come in and shell New York tomorrow night under certain conditions, and—so far as that went—he could drop bombs on Detroit tomorrow night under certain conditions.

There were different reactions to the President's remarks. Some thought he was trying to be realistic and seeking to convey his realism to the country. Others, remembering what he had said a few minutes before about a rumor factory and the Cliveden Set, thought the President was talking strictly in terms of military possibilities.

As these latter saw it, the President was pointing out something which to him and other people with military minds was obvious. Certainly Alaska could be attacked, just as Tokyo could be attacked. Certainly New York could be shelled and Detroit bombed—under certain conditions.

In taking about Alaska, President Roosevelt said that the projected Alaska highway may have to be discarded temporarily to permit establishment of transportation systems which could be arranged more quickly. One idea under consideration, he said, was to build a light, one-track railroad from Seattle to Alaska. Another, he said, was to use sea transportation up the inside passage to Alaska, and still a third idea was to create an endless chain of transport and freight airplanes to carry supplies and troops to strategic areas in Alaska.

Fish Had Speech Viereck Wrote Mailed Out, Jury Told

distribution of those copies of 'Six Men and War' were between Congressman Fish and this defendant, George Sylvester Viereck, under the Capitol dome—the Capitol of our country.

"And a poor dupe of a clerk named George Hill, was instructed by Congressman Fish to go ahead and mail them out, in the presence of the defendant, who stood enjoying the huge joke, using the Congressional Record and the franking privilege to defeat us, literally, to beat our brains out."

Viereck registered himself as an agent of the official propaganda agency, German Library of Information, and as agent of several private German principals. However, his registrations — which were placed in evidence yesterday—reported no activities such as Maloney described.

Maloney said the Government would prove that Viereck sponsored isolationist committees set up by Prescott Bennett, with Mr. Lundeen as chairman, which mailed out tons of Viereck-inspired material under Congressional frank.

The Post last September 26 exposed the fact that a week before 20 mailbags full of unaddressed franked mail were spirited out of Dennett's headquarters the morning he was wanted as a witness before the special grand jury on Axis agents. Fish's secretary, Hill, sent the House truck which hauled them away, and had eight of the bags placed in a House storeroom used by Fish.

Fish denied this on the House floor. Hill, "the poor dupe," denied it under oath, denying also that he knew Viereck. He was sentenced ten days ago to serve two to six years in prison for perjury.

Defense Council Morosini pleaded with the jurors not to be swayed by "hysteria, venom or personal prejudice" which he said were being directed toward his client. Instead, he urged that the trial follow Anglo-Saxon traditions. Morosini sketched the history of these traditions from Magna Carta to date.

Viereck, said Morosini, was controlled by a "fierce love and ardent attachment to America."

Moreover, said Morosini, Viereck interceded with Hitler, to get him to halt persecution of the Jews. When Ambassador Dodd represented the United States in Berlin, said Morosini, he asked Viereck to take certain facts to high German officials, and Viereck did so.

Viereck's lawyer also said the German agent wrote President Roosevelt a letter, which led to a conference between Viereck and Undersecretary of State William Phillips. This was the only reference by the defense attorney to Viereck's summoning of Secretary Hull, Senator Joseph F. Guffey (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, Representative Stephen A. Day and other prominent persons.

"At his own expense," Morosini declared, "Viereck fought American entry into the war. He was in the pay of nobody."

The opening addresses brought 10 sharp clashes between the prosecutors and the defense lawyers. Three defense motions for mistrials were overruled before Maloney sat down. Later in the day a fourth was denied.

First Government witness was Sigfrid H. Hauck, president of Flanders Hall, Inc., a Scotch Plains, N. J., publishing house. Hauck identified the contract which gave Viereck control of his company.

After he had published four anti-British books for Viereck, Hauck said, his printers refused to handle more. But a new printer was found and six other anti-British publications were issued. He identified several manuscripts as having been supplied to him by Viereck.

Hauck identified a copy of Viereck's book, "Spreading the Germs of Hate," from which Maloney read passages in which Viereck described his activity for Germany in this country in the first World War. Working closely with the German propaganda machine in that war, according to Viereck's book, was Daniel F. Cohalan, sr., father of one of Viereck's lawyers in this trial.

Jurors Listed

Both defense and Government used all their challenges before a jury was seated yesterday. The jurors are:

John W. Crow, 41, realty man, 513 Ingraham Street Northwest; Mrs. Elizabeth F. Sauber, 39, housewife, 7636 Seventeenth Street Northwest; Gordon M. Baden, 42, telephone company employe, 4491 Conduit Road Northwest; Frank M. Newberry, 61, builder, 3215 Stephenson Place Northwest.

Also Mrs. Ethel H. Barley, 54, housewife, 614 E Street Northwest; O. C. Nance, 50, bookkeeper, 3016 Dumbarton Avenue Northwest; Joseph A. Trew, 32, motor company official, 4000 Cathedral Avenue Northwest; H. N. Watts, 51, railway employe, 1345 Shepherd Street Northwest.

Also William S. Avery, 32, gas meter reader, 1308 Emerson Street Northwest; William F. Milbourn, 39, auditor, 2129 Eighteenth Street Northwest; George R. Lindsay, 35, department store buyer, Conduit Road Northwest, and Daniel J. Finegan, sr., Government messenger, 615 Morris Place Northeast.

Those named alternates were George M. Wright, 37, hardware store owner, 6401 Eighth Street Northwest, and John M. Krauss, 64, chief chemist, 3818 W Street Northwest.

Finegan and Mrs. Burley were members of the jury which last week convicted Laura Ingalls, stunt flier and America First speaker, of failing to register as a paid agent of the German government.

R. A. F. Man Held In 'Ripper' Killing Of 3 Women

London, Feb. 17 (AP).—A crowd of women watched today at London's Bow Street Police Station when Frederick Cummins, a 28-year-old R. A. F. aircraftsman, was taken in to face a charge of murder for the Jack-the-Ripper slaying of three women in the West End.

A police car with drawn blinds hurried Cummins into the yard. The women surged forward but there was no disorder.

The tall, good-looking suspect in R. A. F. uniform was remanded until Friday. Cummins was accused of the mutilations of Mrs. Marget Florence Low, 43; Mrs. Doris Jouannet, 32, and Mrs. Evelyn Gately, 30.

Thousands of police joined the Scotland Yard searchers in the quest for the killer who mutilated his victims' bodies with razor blades and created more fear of the night among London women than all of Hitler's bombs.

Nelson Orders Dollar-a-Year WPB Probe

Copyright by The Chicago Sun

A searching investigation of all dollar-a-year men on the War Production Board was ordered yesterday by Donald M. Nelson, head of the agency.

Nelson outlined new procedures to be set up for all appointments on a dollar-a-year basis and for "without compensation" services. He designated one of his personal assistants, Sidney J. Weinberg, to administer these procedures.

Each division chief in the WPB has been ordered to begin an immediate examination of all dollar-a-year men in his division and to terminate the appointments of all who do not qualify under the new rules.

The rules were set up in conformance with the policy outlined by Nelson in his recent testimony before the Senate Truman Committee, appointed to investigate the defense program.

Qualifications High

Under the new rules each appointee to a dollar-a-year position must be an American citizen of high integrity and good moral character, of outstanding experience and ability, qualified for a responsible administrative, technical, consulting or advisory position, and in receipt of earned income from his current non-Governmental employment at a rate of at least $5,600 per year.

In addition, no dollar-a-year appointment can be made until, after "reasonable effort," has been found impossible to fill the position with an equally qualified person who is willing to take the job at a Government salary and under civil service regulations.

The position to which the appointment is made must be one requiring special business or technical knowledge and experience, and a $1-a-year appointee is prohibited from making determinations directly affecting the affairs of the firm or company in which he is employed.

Federal Inquiry

Permanent $1-a-year appointments can be made only after a thorough investigation of the proposed appointee by the Federal Bureau of Investigation or some other Federal investigatory agency.

The procedure relating to appointment of persons on a "without-compensation" basis stipulates that such appointees may serve in an advisory capacity as Government consultants working in the public interest and not as representatives of a private employer or industry. Any persons serving on such a basis may not be permitted to assume any administrative responsibility or to exercise any authority over or direction of the work or executives or employes of the WPB.

Each division here was ordered to report within 30 days the results of his investigation, giving the names of such employes as can continue on a dollar-a-year basis, the names of all dollar-a-year men who have been transferred to a salary basis and the names of all whose services have been terminated.

Senators Praise Donald Duck

Morgenthau on expenditures, but he certainly thought $80,000 to popularize the paying of income taxes "money well spent."

He termed Donald Duck "a great national character" and turned the grins into chuckles by consistently calling Donald's creator "Walter Disney" instead of the usual "Walt" Disney.

'Walter Disney did not get any of this money," Senator Downey declared. 'Walter Disney lost money on this picture. All this hysteria about one of the best known Walter Disney characters is, in my opinion, most unsound."

What neither Senator mentioned was that in getting himself into the same appropriation bill with the Office of Civilian Defense, Donald found himself in unfortunate surroundings and had to take the rap really intended for OCD's "frills and frivolities."

The Senate approved yesterday the $163,794,819 appropriation—100 million dollars of which was earmarked for civilian-defense equipment and could not be "got at" by Congressmen irritated by recent OCD appointments and activities.

In addition to leaving in the House amendment taking out $80,000 for the Donald Duck film ordered by the Treasury to "prepare the country for approach of the income-tax season," the Senators left intact the House amendment specifying none of the 100 million dollars could be used for instruction in "fan dancing, street shows or other entertainment features."

The 100 million dollars was appropriated to be spent as follows: For fire-fighting equipment and training, $57,217,271; for protective clothing, steel helmets and the like, $7,998,545; for emergency medical supplies and equipment, $4,890,290; for gas masks and facilities for their manufacture, $29,893,894.

Blonde, on Stand, Tells of Attack

Ewing, ashen-faced and considerably thinner after his four-month stay in jail, listened attentively while she told of coming back to her room from a "date" on the night of October 25 to find Ewing and Miss Chamberlin sitting in the apartment living room.

Offered a Drink, She Says

"He offered me a drink and a cigarette," she related, "but I refused. I don't drink or smoke."

She retired to her room shortly afterward, she continued, and had been in bed for about half an hour when Ewing burst into her room in his underwear, breaking a chain-lock with which she had secured the door.

She said that he threatened several times to kill her if she cried out or resisted, adding that he once threatened to "throw you down the hole." "The hole," she said, referred to a large excavation being made in the rear of the building.

Her testimony covered the entire day following, as she related how she had told two of her girl friends about the attack, and how one of them had helped her move immediately to new quarters.

Finally Called in Police

She said that she and the friend had tried to decide what she should do about the occurrence, but said that she called in police only after talking to her escort of the previous evening, who consulted a relative in the legal profession for advice.

"I just didn't know what to do," she said. "I didn't want it to get in the papers and have my parents find out about it. I was so worried and nervous."

It was at this point that she came nearest to losing her composure, her voice choking momentarily as she told of her anxiety. Her parents, here from Utah, were present in the courtroom all day.

Defense Attorney Charles Henry Smith questioned her closely on cross-examination about her relationship with the young man she had "dated" the night before the attack. She said that she had known him about a week and had been out with him three times.

Girl Friends Testify

Her two girl friends, who were called briefly to the stand, and Dr. Stolar all testified that she appeared very "upset" and "jittery" the next day. The doctor testified that he had examined her at Gallinger, and stated that at that time she had had intimate relations for the first time within the preceding 12 or 36 hours.

He added upon cross-examination, however, that he could not ascertain whether there had been an assault or not.

Prosecutors Charles B. Murray and John W. Fihelly told the jury in their opening statement that they would ask the death penalty for Ewing because he had violated a relationship of "trust and confidence" between himself and the 19-year-old girl.

Rites Held For Founder Of W. C. T. U.

Senators O'Daniel (Democrat), of Texas, and Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado, joined Washington temperance leaders yesterday in memorial services to Frances E. Willard, founder of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, in the Capitol's Statuary Hall.

Wreaths were laid at the base of the statue of the woman whose "idealistic ambitions," declared Senator O'Daniel, "are at this moment perhaps facing their darkest eclipse."

He added: "Let us hope that the good and pure things which she envisioned, hoped for, prayed for and worked for will yet, before it is late, gain recruits by the millions so that honor, integrity, wholesome love and living—yes, even peace on earth, good-will toward man—may not perish from the earth."

Senator Johnson said Miss Willard had predicted "great troubles" unless mankind adopted "a world-wide brotherhood of men under the fatherhood of God." With war at hand, he said, "We now witness that she was right."

Nearly 40 persons attended the services and were addressed also by Miss Elizabeth A. Smart, national legislative director of the W. C. T. U., and Clinton Howard, secretary of the International Reform Bureau.

Wreaths were laid by Mrs. Helena McEvoy, of the Single Taxi Club, and Mrs. Clifford Hurley, corresponding secretary of the W. C. T. U. Mrs. Ida W. Ramsay, District W. C. T. U. president, presided.

Both Sides Cheer Rep. Woodrum in Demand For Political Truce, Unity Against Axis

By Cecil B. Dickson

Copyright by The Chicago Sun

Attacks on President Roosevelt's conduct of the war are disrupting the morale of an "alarmed people," Representative Clifton A. Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, yesterday told a strife-ridden House in appealing for a unified front against Axis enemies.

Woodrum, distinguished gray-haired orator of the old Southern type, brought both Republican and Democratic members to their feet in tribute after his plea to forego "the narrow confines of politics" for a broad view of the seriousness of the situation facing this country.

Going to the rescue of Representative Clarence Cannon (Democrat), of Missouri, who defeated him for the chairmanship of the powerful House Appropriations Committee, Woodrum urged the critics of the Administration to be as "good soldiers in this crisis as Gen. Douglas MacArthur" in the Philippines.

Cannon Gets Lashing

Cannon had undergone one of the most severe tongue lashings ever heard in the House for circulating a letter among his Democratic colleagues charging that the Republicans had handed them a "Pearl Harbor" by using Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's friend, Miss Mayris Chaney, the dancer, employed at the Office of Civilian Defense at $4,600, for political medicine in the 1942 Congressional elections.

Cannon's letter charged House Republicans closed debate on last week's OCD appropriation "with one of the cleverest coups and one of the most effective political appeals to the country that has been seen in the House in the last 20 years."

"There were no fan dancers in the bill and none in any former bill—but the Republicans put them in the bill by smashing over an amendment to cut them out of the bill," Cannon wrote.

"It means nothing in the bill but was planned to beat Democratic Congressmen and elect Republican Congressmen and control the House in November."

Poor Attendance Blamed

He blamed poor Democratic attendance in the House for what he termed "success of the Republican blitzkrieg" and charged a "flood of vicious newspaper abuse of the last two weeks . . . has been making political medicine for this fall."

Republicans would "again be on hand to make political capital" out of the $32,070,901,900 war appropriation before the House yesterday, the Cannon letter said.

Caustic Representative J. William Ditter (Republican), of Pennsylvania, attacked Cannon, asserting that he "deplored" such tactics as used by the Missourian.

A dozen House members engaged in the bitter debate. Representative Raymond S. Springer (Republican), of Indiana, demanded that the Army reinforce the embattled troops of Gen. MacArthur on Bataan Peninsula.

"Gen. MacArthur should be sent sufficient reinforcements immediately escorted by sufficient Naval strength to make sure the help gets there," Springer demanded.

Democratic Leader John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, shaking his finger at Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats, bluntly said that those who had been "wrong" on the President's prewar foreign policy should have the "decency to remain silent if they cannot offer something constructive to the Nation's war efforts."

Roosevelt Warning Unheeded

Reminding members that they themselves blocked many of President Roosevelt's efforts to get the Nation on the alert for war, Woodrum said:

"The Nation's defenses would have been in far better order had not President Roosevelt met a tide of Congressional opposition every time he proposed that we put our house in order."

He recalled that the first efforts of the President to get Congress to lift the arms embargo from the Neutrality Act were defeated and that this was not accomplished until Hitler had captured Poland. He cited that the House rejected the Navy's plea to fortify Guam.

"It has been a hard thing to awaken this country," he said. "You can't put on Roosevelt the blame for not warning the country repeatedly. No man can make a case against Roosevelt in that respect.

"It is true that we had a lazy, complacent, self-sustained Nation which thought it was safe behind two oceans and could thumb its nose at the rest of the world and leave Europe to its own troubles.

"But the time has now come to wake up fast. Our men are in the camps training for action on the fighting front. They are Republican boys and Democratic boys. How fast they return and how many stay behind under little white crosses depends on what we do and say here. Let's unite and win this war."

National's Booking Sheets Break Out a Happy Smile

Grade-A Attractions Lined Up Through March; Hollywood Turns Out to See Local Play; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

AFTER TOO MANY WEEKS of well-intentioned but ill-judged "metropolitan premieres" that fell a shade short of the high expectancy they had managed to engender in one way or another, the National Theater now seems to be in for something over a month of ne plus ultra bookings.

VERA ZORINA

The upswing, of course, began Monday night with the first Washington presentation of Patrick Hamilton's pseudo-psychological melodrama, "Angel Street," interpreted practically without flaw by Sylvia Sidney, Victor Jory, Ernest Cossart, Judy Parrish and Elfreda Derwent. Anyone wishing to secure a desirable seat location for this one had best get about it before the house is sold out for the week.

"Angel Street," however, is no blind alley. It leads directly to what, presumably, will be five weeks more of the same quality of excellence. Next Monday night, for example, the Capital will be getting its first peek at Buddy DeSylva's mammoth musical, "Louisiana Purchase," since it celebrated its premiere on the same stage 'way back yonder. And with the same cast, barring Carol Bruce. Billy Gaxton, Victor Moore, Vera Zorina and Irene Bordoni are still in there pitching, and kicking, at the head of a company of over 100.

Then will come "My Sister Eileen," another of those fore-ordained hits, definitely set in on the booking sheets for two weeks, beginning Monday, March 2. Not only will this antecedent of "Junior Miss"—which Washington already has seen—play two weeks on E Street, but every day of that period, including Sunday, March 8. This will be followed by Katharine Hepburn in the Theater Guild's production of Philip Barry's new comedy, "Without Love," its star's first stage vehicle since the same author's memorable "The Philadelphia Story." And so to Maurice Evans and Judith Anderson, in Master Will Shakespeare's tragedy of "Macbeth," the week of March 23.

Well, what have we been griping about? Or have we?

That Monday night audience at "Angel Street," by the way, carried a heavy cross-section of Hollywood in its well-filled pews. No telling how many others were present, but these astigmatic eyes hit with what they were pleased to consider reasonable surety upon the blonde Rita Johnson, swarthy Director Frank Capra, golden Ellen Drew and petite Ann Ronnell, Mrs. Lester Cowan, wife of the coproducer with Gilbert Miller of the screen "Ladies in Retirement," in private life. It was Miss Ronnell, you will recall, who wrote "Who's Afraid of the Big, Bad Wolf," for Disney's "Three Little Pigs" and now is a busy collaborator on the Catholic University's projected production of their big, topical musical, "Tickety-Boo"—or without the hyphen, if you prefer.

It Might Make a Difference

For the first time since so long ago that it seems like two full pages of single-spacing out of another world, our once indefatigable catcher-upper, Miss Isabelle M. Parks—who more or less knows her way around the Fourth Estate—takes her typewriter on her lap to resent our resentment that the films usually depict the working newspaperman as a "rum-soaked sot." What we had applauded was the fact that in "The Woman of the Year," Ring Lardner, jr., and A. Michael Kanin, the authors, had not made Spencer Tracy out as that kind of a guy. Without naming names, Miss Parks minutely word-paints the case histories of a surprising number of "the boys" who long since, one suspects, have been poured back into the bottle. Most of them seem to have been associated with the drama desks. What we were talking about in reviewing "The Woman of the Year," of course, was sports writers!

Samuel Cummins, impresario of the Pix Theater, burns out a fuse to register word that owing to unquenchable popular demand, "The Girl From Leningrad" will be returned to the Pix screen tomorrow, to run out the public clamor to see it. The first major production to come out of Soviet Russia in months—at least to a local screen—this is the item that not so long ago piled up two successive weeks of near-capacity business at Thirteenth and New York Avenue. Its sudden return upsets the announced booking of Melvyn Douglas in "Tonight or Never." Aren't they ever going to stop picking on that fellow?

Mister-Please-Call-Your-Shots Note

When they tried out that air-raid siren yesterday, nine jittery journalists jumped out our third-story window!

New Type Stars

Costars of Paramount's feature-length Technicolor cartoon, "Mr. Bug Goes to Town," are two of the most unusual characters ever to appear in a major photoplay—Honey, a glamorous bee, and Hoppity, a handsome grasshopper.

Well, the Title Calls It 'Dandy!'

whose smiling, blonde beauty is said to add sparkle to the Warner Brothers forthcoming production of "Yankee Doodle Dandy," in which James Cagney will be seen in the role of George M. Cohan, whose life is celebrated in the film. Beyond that, we know nothing about Miss Moran—except that she takes a striking picture, unaided by any "support!"

HEDDA HOPPER

Velvet Fist in an Iron Glove!

Hollywood, Calif., Feb. 17. Director Willie Wyle finished shooting "Mrs. Miniver" one day and pulled out for Washington the next. And the fact that this is the seventh time Willie's been up for the Academy award is really something to comment on. He certainly doesn't treat his leading ladies with velvet gloves. In fact, there've been many complaints from the dear ladies while pictures were being shot, especially during "Little Foxes." But those memories dim when the Acadmey award business rolls around, because three actresses from that picture are up for the award Bette Davis, Teresa Wright and Patricia Collinge.

BETTE DAVIS

And in that picture, too, three men who had never been on the screen before gave outstanding performances. Willie's a tough taskmaster, but he gets results, and that counts.

While we're "Oscaring," I'd like to voice my choice: "How Green Was My Valley" for best picture; Gary Cooper for "Sergeant York;" Barbara Stanwyck for "Ball of Fire; Donald Crisp for "How Green," Sara Allgood for same picture, John Ford for its direction. Now, come on, Hollywood—tear me to bits!

I talked with Ronnie Colman on "Three's a Crowd" set the other day. Ronnie tells me he wants to make three pictures this year so he can pay more income tax and give more to charity. Morgenthau says that's how he can help the most. And when I asked about Victory Committee plans, he said, "Charles Boyer and I may go out with a group of actors to m. c. shows, but we are not entertainers. These soldiers don't want sketches. I don't blame them. They want to be amused by people like Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Dorothy Lamour, Reggie Gardiner, Betty Grable. Those people can do something—we can't. We can only play parts. Can you picture the boys being entertained by a scene from 'The Prisoner of Zenda'?"

But getting back to "Three's a Crowd," more people are crowded into a small space on that set—which is one of the secrets of Director George Steven's success. George says "If a whole crew is sitting under an actor's nose for weeks, there's no chanc for him to become, self-conscious. Then, too, it's waste motion for actors to walk through long corridors when the meat of the scene comes at the end of it—so why not eliminate them?"

Glenn Ford will be off soon for Quebec, Canada, where his picture, "Martin Eden," opens March 7. Ford was born there, and his uncl was former Prime Minister, Sir John MacDonald.

Somehow you don't associate Charlie Ruggles with a university, but he'll be in Berkeley tomorrow reading the English version of Albert Rodenmeister's book of German prose, "We Die But Once."

Artists' representative, Minna Wallis, got herself the most beautiful uniform, and now can't buy a station wagon to go with it . . . Wouldn't you know Greg Bautzer would have a full blooded Apache Indian cook, who speaks perfect Yiddish. He must like laughs with his victuals.

Harpo Marx is turning down jobs except for the Red Cross. He'd like to tour with Alexander Wollcott in "Yellow Jacket" and "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

The Vanishing Virginian
(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)
Comedy-Melodrama
With the competent direction of Frank Borzage guiding the characters, "The Vanishing Virginian" has emerged from the pages of the Rebecca Yancey Williams book as an engrossing and compelling story in pictures. Throughout there is an undertone of simplicity and home-spun humor, all the laughs and tears that color the lives of nearly all American families. It is a picture that showmen may present to any discriminating audience and be sure that this audience will urge their friends to see it since it is a production which contains all the comedy, romance, tragedy and pathos that makes for an entertaining evening.
Frank Morgan returns to his rightful position as a star and displays his histrionic training and years of acting experience. Kathryn Grayson, who was brought to the attention of the public in "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary," again sings a number of songs including a Strauss waltz and a Negro spiritual, and Spring Byington, in a role from which she derives the maximum, ably support the star. Others in the cast include Natalie Thompson, Douglass Newland, Mark Daniels, Juanita Quigley, and Scotty Beckett. Also worthy of mention are Leigh Whipper and Louise Beavers, who distinguish themselves in the roles of the Negro servants of the household.
Previewed in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer projection room in New York where the assembled trade press found the picture much to their satisfaction and audibly expressed their liking for Miss Grayson's singing.—G. S.
Release date, not set. Running time, 97 minutes.

Broadway Potpourri

New York, Feb. 17.

The venerable Booth Tarkington is one of the most persuasive men in America. Across a dinner table, through charm and logic, he ultimately must convince the most stubborn of opponents that his cause, whatever it might be, is the just one . . .

RUTH GORDON

In the fall of 1940, Tarkington was a member of a committee of writers who were supporting Wendell Willkie in opposition to President Roosevelt. Shortly before the November election he invited Ruth Gordon to visit the Tarkington home in Indiana. Miss Gordon, an ardent New Dealer, was fully aware of her host's persuasiveness. And so before she left for the Tarkington home she applied for, and received, an absentee ballot—and voted for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Dr. Gayelord Hauser, Greta Garbo's dietician-friend who has been lecturing here about vegetable juice, etc., supped at Lindy's the other night. Hauser's meal consisted of a hot dog—after he insisted upon being assured that it was not imported—sauerkraut and a large fried pancake . . . Hollywood executives allege that even if the Japs succeed in invading the West Coast they'll never get in to see L. B. Mayer . . . The town's newest Broadway columnist may be George Jessel. Negotiations now are pending between Jessel and Ralph Ingersoll, of PM, who'd like George to do the job.

Before "Let's Face It" could be sold to Paramount for over $200,000 Twentieth Century-Fox had to be paid $100,000 to waive its rights to "The Cradle Snatchers," the play from which "Let's Face It" was adapted. Vinton Freedley, the producer, could have bought that waiver for $15,000 before the musical opened on Broadway . . . Orson Welles, who stopped in Florida on his way to South America, described Miami Beach as "a reasonable facsimile of Heaven" . . . Mrs. Bonnie Edwards Manville, who now possesses more than $175,000 as a result of her one-week marriage to Tommy Manville, is going to California. The 21-year-old Bonnie says she's retired for life.

Damon Runyon returned to New York last week to make background shots for his newest movie . . . Alice Duer Miller, author of "The White Cliffs of Dover," is recuperating at Roosevelt Hospital, after an operation there . . . This month a dance recital will be held at Carnegie Hall for the benefit of Russian War Relief. All the boxes have been sold, except the one adjoining the box in which Ambassador Litvinov will sit. The sponsors don't know as yet to whom they'll sell it . . . Two of New York's highest ranking spiritualists will give a seance for Clifton Webb, of "Blithe Spirit" to prove to him that spirits really can be made to appear—as they do in the Noel Coward play.

The next national campaign for increased wages will come from the letter carriers, who have retained counsel to start the proceedings . . . The newspaper woman who was to have been one of the principal attractions at the Front Page Ball forgot to attend. She was busy at another dinner, in the same hotel . . . A group of noted American artists will visit the R. A. F. training camps here and in Canada and paint the activities there . . . Mark Hellinger, the eminent movie producer, may return to the Warner studio . . . Thornton Wilder is writing a Mexican movie for the Government.

The most ambitious of the Broadway hopefuls is 21-year-old Alex Cohen, who operated a summer stock theater at Roslyn, Long Island, last year. He's the coproducer of "Angel Street." This week he introduced another production-innovation—by having the premieres of two shows on successive nights. He was coproducer of one night's "They Should Have Stood in Bed" and the next's "Of V We Sing" . . . Luther Adler directed the first night's show. His mother was congratulated by a friend, who said: "You should be proud of your son." Mrs. Adler replied: "No. He should be proud of me—for giving birth to a son like him."

One of the Provost-Marshals at Fort Bragg presents a bullet to every private he sees walking in the encampment, and whispers: "Here—give this to the next Jap you see" . . . When Patricia "Honeychil' " Wilder was reluctant to sign the contract to appear at Leon and Eddie's, her lawyer added the inducing stipulation in the agreement—whereby he is to handle her next legal case, without fee . . . When John Barrymore was in the hospital recently and saw his nurse saddened at the apparent hopelessness of his plight, he told her: "I suggest this very simple test, to prove to you I'm not a goner yet: Hold a lemon next to your lips—and just see which of those I'll kiss."

'Louisiana Purchase' Returns Among New Week's Attractions

"LOUISIANA PURCHASE." The Irving Berlin musical hit returns to the National stage Monday evening, where it scored a smashing success before its run on Broadway. Vera Zorina, William Gaxton, Victor Moore and Irene Bordoni retain their original starring roles, while the supporting company remains virtually the same. This political satire was written by Morrie Ryskind, who collaborated on the Pulitzer Prize-winning "Of Thee I Sing," and Producer B. G. DeSylva. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

RKO-Keith's

"HELLZAPOPPIN'." The Olsen and Johnson madhouse musical finally arrives on the Keith screen with the comedy stars at the helm of a property they piloted through a thre-year engagement at New York's Winter Garden. There's a completely new musical score for the film by Don and Gene De Paul. The supporting cast includes Martha Raye, Hugh Herbert, Mischa Auer, Jane Frazee, Robert Page, Shemp Howard, Clarence Kolb and Nella Walker. Opens tomorrow morning.

Capitol

"THE VANISHING VIRGINIAN." Rebecca Yancey Williams' story, so popular in this locale, has been transcribed to the screen with Frank Morgan playing the district attorney of Lynchburg, around whose family the simple story revolves. Kathryn Grayson, Spring Byington, Natalie Thompson, Douglass Newland, Juanita Quigley, Scotty Beckett, Louise Beavers and Dickie Jones are in the cast. Film Star George Murphy headlines the stage revue, a medium in which the former musical-comedy leading man is thoroughly at home. Other variety acts include Fred Sanborn, comedian; Anita Boyer, songstress; Olsen and Shirley, dancers, and the Rhythm Rockets. Opens tomorrow morning.

Earle

"CAPTAINS OF THE CLOUDS." Filmed with the cooperation of the Royal Canadian Air Force, this James Cagney starring vehicle depicts flyers in the North Woods country. Brenda Marshall, Dennis Morgan, Alan Hale, George Tobias, Reginald Gardiner, Air Marshal W. A. "Billy" Bishop and Reginald Denny are featured. The stage's "Samba Revue" switches to the other end of the hemisphere with entertainers from South America: Don Arres, Helene y George, Pepita and Lucia, Walter "Dare" Wahl, Marqueta and Pancho and Joe Batista. Opens Friday morning.

Palace

"WOMAN OF THE YEAR." The Katharine Hepburn-Spencer Tracy comedy continues into a second week on F Street, telling what happened when a columnist on the international scene married a sports writer. Ring Lardner, jr., and Nathaniel Kanin wrote the screen play.

Metropolitan

Columbia

Little

"NINOTCHKA." The Greta Garbo-Melvyn Douglas satirical triumph of two seasons ago continues into its final engagement. Ernst Lubitsch directed the story of a woman worker who journeys from Moscow to Paris to make certain the Soviets' money is not being wasted.

Pix

"GIRL FROM LENINGRAD." This Soviet-made film, telling the story of a Red Cross nurse and her heroism at the front, returns to the Pix where it was first presented a few weeks ago. All of the war scenes were made on the Russian battle fronts, culminating in a spectacular battle in the sleet and snow. Opens tomorrow morning.

Trans-Lux

"MONARCHS OF THE RING." Champs of boxing from Carpentier and Dempsey to Joe Louis and his challengers form the group of fighters in this unusual short subject augmenting the newsreels on the incoming bill. "The World of Sound," a scientific subject, and "Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree," a cartoon, also are on the new program. Opens Friday morning.

Gayety

"JAZZ BABIES." Margie Kelly tops the performers in the new burlesque revue opening Sunday afternoon. Lew Black and Harry J. Conely handle the top comedy spots, with Olive Sharron, Betty DuValda and Joyce Breazelle, as the leading beauties. Joe Forte and Danny Tucker complete the featured contingent. Midnight performances every Saturday.

Hiser

"LABURNUM GROVE." The J. B. Priestley comedy is current on the screen of the Bethesda theater, with Edmund Gwenn playing the role he created on the stage. Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Victoria Hooper are featured. Continues through Friday evening.

Society Celebrates Treaty of Ghent

Celebrating the 127th anniversary of the announcement of the Treaty of Ghent, the Society of the War of 1812 last night elected officers for the new year.

Rep. Mahon Backs Plan to Review District Budget

Representative Mahon (Democrat), Texas, chairman of the House subcommittee on District appropriations, said yesterday there is "merit" to a plan of Representative Stefan (Republican), Nebraska, to review the 1943 District budget.

Representative Stefan, ranking minority member of the subcommittee, declared last week that the District's 1943 budget, now awaiting Congressional action, is "obsolete" because it was worked out before this country entered the war.

He urged a new local tax program to conform with revised budget estimates.

Excuse Please, Cholly; Rep. May Sees Red

Chairman May of the House Military Affairs Committee saw red yesterday when he discovered a miniature rising sun flag of Japan in the cloakroom of the House.

Snatching the tiny emblem from a map on the wall where it marked Japanese positions in Burma, he tore it in shreds and threw it into a cuspidor. Then grinning and squaring his shoulders, he marched onto the floor of the House.

ACID STOMACH SUFFERERS

Wages Won't Buy

The fact that the war will soon absorb over half our national production is not as important to register as its meaning. For this amount cannot be paid without a decline in our living standards. In other words, we must do without some of the goods we formerly consumed (as well as work harder) in order not to interfere with war production. Yet the A. F. of L. is asking for automatic wage increases to offset advances in living costs. It is a request that is doomed to failure. For the only result of pushing up labor costs—that is, of increasing money wages—when there is less of everything available for civilian consumption is to increase the price of the limited supply of goods. There would be more money, but the money would buy less. This is the warning that Price Administrator Henderson made last week, and we hope the warning will be salutary.

Of course, special wage adjustments may be necessary from time to time to correct inequalities in earnings and to relieve hardship. But, by and large, workers are today in an exceptionally favored position. During the past year, for instance, the average weekly earnings of factory workers—the best measure of purchasing power—rose more rapidly than living costs. Average hourly earnings likewise increased at a more rapid rate. As a result, the Treasury is already faced by the necessity of siphoning off excess purchasing power in the wage-earning groups in order to check inflation. If labor should succeeed in its efforts to obtain further wage increases at this time, the Treasury will have a still harder problem on its hands.

Eyes On Madagascar

In the minds of most Americans Madagascar is still only a name vaguely associated with the myth of the man-eating trees. But just as Moulmein, site of the pagoda made famous by Kipling's ballad, the Macassar, source of the formidable Victorian hair polish, have each acquired in the past few weeks a new and most fateful significance, so too will Madagascar. For Madagascar on one side, and northern Australia on the other, form opposite angles of the huge watery triangle of the upper Indian Ocean. The apex of this triangle is the tip of the Hindustan Peninsula. Madagascar contains an elaborate naval base from which almost any number of warships, submarines and surface raiders can operate with deadly efficacy. If the Japanese were able to add Madagascar to Singapore, Sumatra, Java and Northern Australia, their control of this ocean would be well-nigh complete. And access to India via the Cape of Good Hope would be closed. If, in addition, the Germans were able to thrust successfully into Suez, India would be isolated and ripe for plucking.

Of course, this strategic triangle in the Indian Ocean is thousands of miles wide at its base. Thus, the present menace of Madagascar does not arise from any propinquity to the already dangerously distended Japanese navy. It arises from the fact that the destiny of this vitally important base will be decided at Vichy, or rather by the colonial and military officers who have been dispatched there from Vichy. Just as in the case of Indo-China and at Dakar, there was anti-Vichy sentiment among certain officers and officials at Madagascar after the Armistice of 1940. But just as the Free French General Catroux failed to seize his opportunity at Hanoi, so as to frustrate the Japanese plans, so the Free French at Madagascar delayed until it was too late. They have, of course, long since fled or been eleminated, and the country is now in full control of Nazi-approved collaborationists.

It is now perfectly obvious that without the acquiescence and cooperation of the Vichy administration of Indo-China the Japanese advances in Siam, Malaya, Burma and Indonesia would have been impossible. Thus one of the curious ironies of this war is that the rulers of a defeated, humiliated helpless France nevertheless have it in their power to contribute to its outcome through their piecemeal betrayals of the former French empire. There is, of course, the further and even more tragic irony that France, through her present leaders, may be the means of forever destroying that Graeco-Christian civilization of which she was for a thousand years the flower and citadel. But the urgent question before us at this moment is this: with the lessons of Indo-China and North Africa so fresh, and with the menace of Dakar and Madagascar confronting us, how much longer can we postpone the inevitable showdown with Vichy?

Keep Churchill

We are told from London that we in America are not sufficiently aware that Winston Churchill is in danger of losing the premiership. The American people, to be sure, are not aware of it. And now they are told to be on their guard, they will not understand the reason. The loss of Singapore, it is said, makes Churchill's position difficult. But, assuming the justice of making Churchill responsible for a situation which was brought about because the conduct of this war at present involves cruel choices, it would be a case of compounding the blow if Mr. Churchill were likewise to fall. That would be the opinion of free peoples everywhere—peoples who think of Mr. Churchill as a lamp to their feet in these dark and soul-searching times.

In the last Presidential election the British were not loath to plead with this country to think of our President as the hope of the free world. There is much more reason now for our people to be concerned about domestic affairs in Britain. After all, we are in the same boat. We are members of the United Nations, brothers in arms who are so closely allied that we are actually pooling our resources and our brains in a common war effort. The dropping of a pilot in Britain would be of deep concern to all the United Nations. But in this country in particular the eclipse of Mr. Churchill, it is not too much to say, would add to the gloom which has fastened upon the United States as a result of the fall of Singapore. The British, of course, are free to choose their own leader, even if it means a disruption of the personnel at the head and front of the United Nations. But they would do well to ponder the significance of Churchill's leadership in the United Nations as well as at home before coming to any decision.

Moreover, what Churchill has done for Britain in this country is beyond all calculation. The "ancient grudge" was not entirely buried by alliance in a common war. But if any man is responsible for offsetting that grudge, it is Winston Churchill. In America he is now almost as familiar as our own President, and his visit enhanced the profound respect and admiration and confidence which his periodical war reviews had aroused in the American people. He has seemed to symbolize the best qualities of fighting Britain—the qualities of truth, of courage, and of character. He is thus an interpreter's house between the two countries all to himself. How much that means in the winning of both the war and the peace needs no emphasis to the little men of either country.

New Order

The precise methods that Germany follows in exploiting captive Europe are only vaguely understood by most Americans. Consequently Dr. Henry Chalmers' discussion in a recent Foreign Commerce Weekly of the trade policies of continental Europe during 1941 is of great interest, especially as the beginnings of Hitler's "New European Order" for the continent are already apparent.

One misapprehension is that the New Order aims at the establishment of a free market for all Europe in which goods would be exchanged to the mutual advantage of buyer and seller regardless of nationality. This is not true. On the contrary, by apparently legal trade-control measures, the foreign trade of the occupied areas is "being increasingly channelized toward Germany, both as market and as source of supply. Commercial transactions with all other areas are subject to the detailed directions of the occupying authorities." Payment for shipment is made by means of clearing balances maintained in Berlin. To realize on these balances the exporting country must receive goods from Germany in exchange. But while Germany often agrees to pay good prices for imports and chalks up credit balances for the seller, shipments of equal value from Germany are impossible to obtain. The credits remain frozen.

In other words, the trade movement is predominantly one way—and the direction of it toward Germany spells ultimate economic exhaustion of the supplying countries, which constantly give more than they receive.

In trade agreements with neutral countries Germany has likewise used pressure to extort concessions from the politically weak. Both Switzerland and Sweden, for instance, were compelled last year to increase the credits granted to Germany against shipments of goods, and be content with German promises of increased goods deliveries in payment—at some later date. Steps have already been taken, too, to develop a collective clearing system for the continent embracing independent as well as conquered countries. Balances are held in Berlin and settlement adjustments are being made, it is reported, under the direction of German officials.

Politically impotent and cut off from trade with the rest of the world, most of the countries of Europe are unable to offer any effective resistance to German demands. Certainly they have had a bitter foretaste of what they might expect from a Nazi victory. For them it would mean the "New European Order" with a vengeance—in other words, permanent economic enslavement to a single ruthless power.

Bushido

Chinese could tell the world something about Bushido—or the chivalrous code of the warrior—upon which General Yamashita asked General Percival to rely. But they would say that the way of the Japanese warrior is marked by his heel, as, for instance, at Nanking. Three days before the fall of Nanking three years ago, General Iwano Matsui, Japanese commander in chief, called on Nanking to surrender. In his proclamation he said, "Though harsh and relentless to those who resist, the Japanese troops are kind and generous to noncombatants." Twenty-four hours after their entry into Nanking, Japanese troops gave the lie to their commander, and did so with impunity for a full month. Murder, arson, looting, brutality of all kinds, rape of women and children took place on a scale unknown in modern history. Indeed, there are those who say that the way of the Japanese warrior in China has been the cruelest in all history.

Bushido is the name given to a high code of conduct which found expression in the precepts of the great Emperor Meiji three-quarters of a century ago. These precepts used to be read regularly to the Japanese army. One of them is the following: "Those who thus appreciate true valor should in their daily intercourse set gentleness first and aim to win the love and esteem of others. If you affect valor and act with violence, the world in the end will detest you and look upon you as wild beasts." No hypocrisy, in other words. And yet, aside from the ghastly experience of China, Pearl Harbor, which was struck without warning while the Japanese were talking peace in Washington, is enough illustration for the American people that Bushido has been completely set at naught, if ever it was genuine. There may not be excesses committed by the Japanese while the going has to be kept up and while that going is good. But in the day of Japanese reverses, those who have seen the Japanese in action would not care to rely upon Bushido to save them.

Caribbean Defense

It was appropriate that Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, the Caribbean defense commander, happened to be at Aruba when the Dutch possession was attacked. For General Andrews is an airman, and the lesson must surely have been brought home to him again that a stepped-up air defense is the key to Caribbean security. To be sure, ships of the Atlantic patrol operate in the area. But it was swift American bombers which routed the undersea raiders off Aruba and perhaps accounted for at least one of them. And it will be the bombers that will frustrate Caribbean attacks in the future. One has only to grasp the elements of strategic defense in the Caribbean to appreciate this. From island air bases in the middle and outer defense zones planes control the approaches to the enemy's ultimate objective, the Panama Canal. However, this is not to say that submarines will not continue to slip through the outer defenses under cover of night and to prey on shipping. The risks for the enemy are great, but so are the potential rewards. The immediate job of our Caribbean air forces, therefore, is so to increase the risks for the enemy as to minimize the chance of his slipping away should he succeed in penetrating the area.

From the tactical standpoint this should be easier than in the Atlantic, where submarines can creep inshore, deliver their blows, and sneak away into the ocean reaches. In the Caribbean, on the other hand, once notice of attack has been given, planes can converge from encircling island bases on the immediate area of the attack, thus cutting down the likelihood of escape. The Germans have already given sufficient notice that they intend to strike us wherever we are vulnerable. If they have sized up our position in the Caribbean as even moderately vulnerable, we may expect more attacks not unlike that delivered at and near Aruba. As of today, however, the determinant so far as the enemy is concerned is the effective use of American air power in the Caribbean. Much depends on our ability to prevent the submarines responsible for the sinkings off Aruba from slipping through the fringe of outer islands to the comparative safety of the Atlantic.

Tonight I took one out with me
And the sunset spread and grew
Twice as big, as though it knew
I had brought some company.

But he must say how red, how round,
And he must cry how gold, how high . . .
Remember, dear, how you and I
Could say so much without a sound?

Conserving Tires

Right now seems a fitting time to make a suggestion to those parasitic friends who most "generously" make these kinds of offers: "Let's make a trip to so and so; you have the car and I'll buy the gas." Or, "Why can't you go? It would cost you nothing. I would buy all of the gas and oil." Or still worse, "You and I could make the trip cost for practically nothing. I'd pay half on the gas bill." Such offers to car owners have always left me in a quandary. I have never been able to understand how one considered the cost of gas and oil a fair compensation for wear and tear on a car and the extra mileage on the tires.

Now that we are all becoming tire conscious, perhaps these persons will do well to reconsider. In my way of thinking, car owners should have the privilege of inviting friends to make long trips with them whether the trip is gratis or whether there is to be a financial arrangement. However, certain folk will always feel called upon to invite themselves when there is an opportunity. Why not, then, estimate an approximate total cost of wear on the car and strike an average amount for each occupant?

Coastwise Routes

Tankers and sugar-carrying freighters have been sunk off our Atlantic Coast in such numbers that it ceases to be fun. Charles Hurd in today's New York Times writes: "The U-boats have worked for the most part some distance offshore outside the perimeter of operations by small coastal patrol boats . . ." The German cruisers escaped from Brest through the English Channel by hugging the French coast with air protection from planes, land-based. Might it not be the part of wisdom for the United States Navy to require our coastal vessels to hug our coast to permit protection by land-based planes and small coastal patrol boats? Except for having to clear Cape Hatteras, a coastal vessel of almost any draft can cruise up or down our Atlantic and the Nova Scotia coasts within 10 miles of the shore. Why not learn something from our enemies? They are at least not dumb.

Disappointed Cadet

I am a member of the now grossly maltreated Washington Cadet Corps. Today the news leaked out and ran rampant through the sacred halls of my school of a contemptible plan of the Board of Education to limit each school to one company and one battalion in the coming competitives. The reason advanced for this infamous plan was lack of transportation facilities. If that is the only excuse they can scrape together for blasting the heart out of each cadet, here's one cadet who shall prefer resigning from the resultant spiritless body to working under those conditions. Show me one cadet who, if the occasion arose, would not be willing, nay, only too glad, to march to the competitive field.

Civilian Army

Just what is this country coming to—particularly, what do Mr. McNutt and Mr. Hillman think is the reaction to their proposal to pay the workers that are being temporarily placed out by this war the sum of $24 a week, while many, many of them are fighting and perhaps giving their lives for $5.25 a week, with no time and a half, etc., for overtime? Some of them are perhaps getting more—but the majority below $15 a week. Why don't Mr. McNutt and Mr. Hillman form a civilian army and then draft these men at a regular's pay and then train them, if untrained, for some defense job?

Voters Approve Conversion Of Government

One of the commentators tonight on the radio spoke of an editorial in The Post in which you stated that the people are ahead of Congress in their realistic facing of war problems.

It is important to the morale of the people that they can give respect and confidence to their Government. The complacency is not evident in our people's faces, their soberness, the avidity with which they listen to and read war news. If there is complacency it is in Washington, where some fat drones may be worried for fear we the people are not worried enough to ante enough taxes to keep them in their plushy corners.

As just a plain, common, loyal American citizen I wish to compliment you. There are millions of us here in the South that feel exactly the same way. We've got a war to win, and we've got to pay damn near the whole bill from now on out; China, Australia, England and all the others are looking to us for war goods and food. Congress better cut out a lot of this CCC, NYA, WPA and all the others and spend money for only what will win this war. M. C.'s may be entitled to a pension for themselves. I wouldn't know about that, but I do know they picked one hell of a time to vote it.

General MacArthur and all his men (Heroes ALL) who are fighting and dying in far-off Bataan to protect the Stars and Stripes and our own beloved America would welcome some action to get them tanks, guns and planes, instead of birthday greetings, after two solid months of war.

As an American, Mr. Editor, I implore you to keep up the good work and keep after the slack-a-daisies, grafters, and politicians, until we get action and the real truth about the war no matter who it hits.

Our morale is good enough; one smashing victory, plenty of reinforcements to the Far East, some signs that our money is to be spent for winning the war, would do more to make us work faster and harder than anything else. We are depending upon influences like your paper to help us put this over.

I had tried a few days ago to set down in black and white my feelings regarding our leaders in the Capital, so far as the daily press gives a picture of what is taking place. Pink Pique And Poinsettias

This is a story of pink pique and poinsettias, of Scheherazade and silver, of Taxco, Mexico, and Washington, D. C.

Once upon a time, quite some time ago, a chubby little girl in a pink pique pinafore—that was me—was walking to school. School that was 2 miles away and that gave a little girl plenty of time to think and wonder. Maybe kids don't think, but you will admit they wonder. And country roads and trees and hills are conductive to wondering. Is there, I wondered, another little girl, just like me, black hair and chubby, even wearing a pink pique pinafore at this moment, is there such another litle girl, say in China, on the other side of this big round world? Would I find another me walking to school in China if I started digging right away and could dig that far? I doubted, I remember, whether I could dig that far, but I didn't doubt that I would find another me. With one change, of course. That Chinese little girl would be sure to have slanting eyes.

Then I was grown up, and had many moments of curiosity and had found some of the answers, which may or may not be any more correct than an answer I arrived at so quickly when I wore a pink pique pinafore. Now I was grown up in Washington, D. C., working for the Government, and one morning in need of a cup of coffee. I was waiting in line, a long line which started at a huge coffee urn, wound around the counter, and continued its serpentine way out the door, into the hallway and around to the next corridor. All of which is conducive to thinking and wondering. But my wits were not too sharp this morning and I was doing little of either. It was that kind of a morning. And in this state of unpoised confusion I saw coming toward me and the end of the line a young man, an unusual young man, who would be noticed even by a young woman not altogether awake. That young man was wearing one of those artistic suits men wear without destroying any masculinity. The trousers were faultlessly tailored chocolate brown, the shirt of the same stuff, and in lieu of a tie, a very handsome handkerchief, the center a subdued Paisley design. He was tanned, with very black hair and very white teeth, as he smiled to his companion, and a penetrating glance into my eyes as he sensed my interest. It was an intelligent face with inclinations for romance. "We'll dance a merry saraband from here to drowsy Samarcand." . . . For one moment then I thought I had met this young man before, so like another man he was. . . . It hadn't been in China. It had been in Mexico. . . .

Six months ago I was in Taxco, the little village preserved by the Mexican government just as it was 400 years ago. The first evening there the fiesta and dancing whirled far into the night, but I was out early, walking toward the village square in the clear sunshine. Already I was feeling about Taxco as many other Americans who came and saw its beauty and stayed. The sky was the color of blue Easter eggs and the tropical poinsettias pierced the quiet of the narrow streets. Native children passed and smiled. At the village font the women were washing their clothes against the stone wall. I crossed the square and entered a drug store to buy some film. Not having my camera with me, and not knowing Spanish, complicated the situation. But a charming old man came up to me and offered to be my interpreter.

And then quite spontaneously we were walking together into the square and from there in and out of narrow streets, climbing cobblestone hills and at last to a dream house where lived an artist friend. I was shown some paintings hanging on the living-room walls and to me they were very wonderful. He had caught the magic of Taxco with all of its striking color. It was regretfully explained, first in melodious Spanish and then in lucid American, that the walls presented such a bareness because many celebrities, Myrna Loy and her husband, and Edward G. Robinson, and many others, had been there recently and had bought most of the pictures.

This artist, who lives in Taxco, is very tanned, with flashing white teeth and very black hair. He was wearing a comfortably tailored suit of gray, open at the throat, and a wide ornamental leather belt. You looked at him and you could tell he was very glad to be alive. . . .

And now, just now, in Washington, I saw him walking down a hall in a Government building to take his place at the end of the coffee line.

We met at four, my friend and I, the same day as the coffee line encounter, at a special corner of the structure in which we work for the Government. She is gay and light-footed, moving more like a raindrop following a stem to its root than any rain drop I know. Today she was wearing her Mexican blouse. It is covered with thick red roses embroidered in bold design, and on her wrists she wore many silver bracelets.

"A very nice thing happened today," my friend began. "I was walking along the corridor humming, rather loudly I suppose, the first part of Scheherazade. You know how it goes . . . And down the corridor I saw a young man stop and he waited. When I reached him I was still humming, all the while noticing he was a rather swarthy-faced chap, wearing a very nice suit of heavily-woven dark brown, a paisley kerchief knotted at his throat." (Ah, the artist from Taxco. I mean the young man who reminded me so vividly of the artist from Taxco!)

"When I reached him he snapped his fingers and he said 'Scheherazade' with a questioning lilt at the end. And how could I not take the cue? So we chatted a bit. He admired my bracelets. And when I told him I bought this hobnailed fellow at Spratling's in Taxco then really I had a talkative chap on my hands. He told me he is an artist, painting rural America for Uncle Sam, and now defense posters." (An artist too!)

"'Some day, he said, he is going to Mexico, to Taxco, to paint and to stay a very long time!"

Oh, Mnemosyne! The pink pique fashioned into pinafores, the children filled with wonder, and an answer I gave myself a very long time ago.

The Real Enemy

By Ernest Lindley

Internal Conflict Wastes Energy

IN A GREAT speech recently delivered, Associate Justice Murphy, of the United States Supreme Court, recalled the struggle between Sparta and Athens. In one, life was hardened by rigorous discipline. The other became the finest symbol of ancient civilization but, Justice Murphy said, it had to bow to Sparta because it was "a democracy grown wealthy and comfortable and fond of pleasure" and because to many Athenians "the attainment of their own ends became the paramount object of life." He expressed the hope that we would have enough fortitude and integrity to escape the fate of the Athenian Confederacy.

LINDLEY

If the American people were to be judged by some of the letters this column recently has received, they would be a people cursed with all the vices of the Athenians but lacking in their virtues. An effort to ascertain facts, which is one mark of a civilized man, is conspicuously lacking—and I do not refer to the regular run of unsigned crank mail, which every columnist throws in the wastebasket along with the Nazi propaganda. Long passages in the Congressional Record are in the same vein. References are often made to the war, but under the impression that the real enemy is organized labor, or the poorer farmers, or the managers of the automobile industry, or Mrs. Roosevelt, or the President, instead of the Axis. It is plain that the attainment of their own individual or group ends is still the paramount object of life to some citizens.

For example, there is on my desk a copy of an article in the Michigan C. I. O. News of February 6, 1942, concerning the recent visit of a number of Washington correspondents and columnists (including this one) to Detroit at the invitation of the Automobile Manufacturers Association. Almost every paragraph contains one or more misstatements of fact. The burden of complaint seems to be, however, that the visiting correspondents were guided around by the managers of the industry and were not afforded an opportunity to talk with union leaders.

THE ARTICLE says, for example:

"Incessantly the newspapermen were bombarded with figures and speeches about what the great automobile industry was doing to defeat the Axis powers.

"Nothing was said to them about the rapidly swelling total of jobless workers—the most highly skilled mass production men in the world—which comes to 250,000 and will shortly reach 350,000 . . .

"No writer for the labor press was invited to the party. No labor leader was invited. No liberal-minded representative of the public was allowed to get near the guests and furnish them with intimate details of the story revealed by three Congressional committees."

THE PARTY included several who were thoroughly familiar with the findings of the Truman and Tolan committees, and at least four who for more than a year, beginning with the Reuther plan, had been taking the automobile managers to task. The question of "conversion" unemployment was discussed at length at our meetings with the automobile company heads. So were many other questions related to labor relations and the failure to convert to war production earlier. From their behavior, it was apparent that some of the industrialists were more accustomed to newspapermen who write stories about new models of automobiles than to Washington correspondents.

The meeting had two apparent purposes: to prove that the industry had done more for defense than it thought it had been given credit for doing, and to prove that it was now ready to go "all out." Rehashing of the past probably did not change the judgment of a single correspondent—and was a bore to most of them. The big news was that this industry, with its trained workmen, engineers, managers and machines, was dropping automobiles and turning its immense resources entirely to war production.

THERE IS no question, I think, about the determination of the managers and those whom they control directly to "show the world" what they can do. Judging not only from the article quoted above but from other bits of evidence, there is doubt whether some of the union leaders are putting the war with the Axis ahead of their old conflict with the managers of the industry. The demand for double pay for Sundays is one of these bits of evidence. Another is the refusal of the C. I. O. to permit men laid off by the automobile companies to work in the independent job tool shops until wage demands are met in the tool shops owned by the automobile companies. Whatever the merit, or lack of it, in the wage demands, nothing should be permitted to interfere with the maximum use of every tool shop in the Nation.

Our enemies are concentrating on fighting us, while much of our energy is still wasted in internal conflicts. The war is going badly for our side, and there is not much hope that it will go better until we put it first.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Longshoremen's Union

EDMUND SCOTT, a reporter for PM, the strange journalistic whatizzit which Marshall Field runs in New York, has written a shocking account of conditions aboard the Normandie and along the New York waterfront, generally, under the domination of the Longshoremen's Union of the A. F. of L. which is an unconscionable racket with a long underworld history. For authentic background on this union read Dock-Walloper, the memoirs of Dick Butler, an old underworld character who formerly was an official of the racket along the Chelsea piers and as a side job delivered Harry Thaw from Matteawan, a historic jailbreak. It was ghosted by Joseph Driscoll, I believe, and not only reads well but checks well against the known facts of life on the West Side waterfront.

Scott recently was assigned to obtain work as a longie aboard the Normandie. He joined the union at a cost of $26, marked down from the standard price of $100, without the slightest inquiry and was put to work on the Normandie notwithstanding his own intimation to the business agent of the longshoremen that he had been "in trouble" and might be using a false name. Incidentally, the percentage of criminals working along the North River docks is high. Common alley criminals, of course, may be loyal Americans but the disposition to permit men to change identity and ask no questions obviously opens the door to the enemy agents.

SCOTT WAS picked for the Normandie job by the union and when he had written his story his editors spiked it because, they report, it was "a blueprint for sabotage." However, PM says the gist of the piece was communicated to Capt. Charles H. Zeerfoss, the chief of the antisabotage division of the Maritime Commission, and that Zeerfoss scoffed and warned the paper to get Scott out of there "before he gets shot."

Scott reported loafing by the men and himself, stalled a total of one and one-half hours in one day, locking himself in staterooms aboard the liner to smoke. He saw 20 open barrels of excelsior into which a saboteur could have tossed a match and learned that there were no precautions against sabotage by fire through any of the simple chemical devices which the Germans used freely to ignite cargoes in the last war.

The character of the longshoremen's union cannot be unknown to the FBI or any other Government agency. It is a job monopoly extending to the vital shores of Staten Island and Jersey where racketeers rule with despotic power and prey on the men not only for fees and dues but for various shakedowns.

SEVERAL WEEKS ago these dispatches described the racket in general terms and a copious file of squeals and leads, including a copy of a report by a policeman who got nowhere against the political power of the criminals, was submitted to our desk. However, our best digger was otherwise engaged so along comes Scott to tilt the lid. I am rather glad PM did it because when I explode such stories they are instantly denounced as "labor baiting" by such journals which have played up to these rackets along with Mayor LaGuardia whose sympathy generally runs with pickets and unioneers and against his own cops whose loss of morale is largely attributable to that.

The longshoremen's union not only certifies the longies but actually qualifies the guards who are supposed to protect property on the pier and its fees for various classifications are comparable to those of some of the most exclusive clubs in the country.

THIS UNION was responsible for the rise of Harry Bridges because its acquiescence in the pitiless robbery and exploitation of the workers put them in a mood to adopt any leader who would pretend to be their friend even though he should exploit them, himself, in the interests of the Communist conspiracy. Bridges is the only alternative they know now although one small Catholic labor school is making a little progress along the docks as a middle choice between the most vicious corruption so common to the complacent A. F. L. and the Soviet way.

The attention of Senator Wagner and Mrs. Roosevelt is invited to the story of Edmund Scott in last Tuesday's issue of PM which certainly will not be accused of union-booting, having started life with a large Communist cell on the editorial side and buttered the union fakers consistently down to now.

To Resist Invasion

By Mark Sullivan

We Must Mobilize At Once

TO PUT it this way is much too simple, of course. But this way is fundamentally true. And some way must be found for making our people see it and understand it—understand it in a way that will really move us. We must understand it as, for example, Australia at last understands it.

SULLIVAN

Australia, seeing it too late, has at last mobilized its man and woman power upon an actual war basis for the desperate and immediate business of resisting invasion. We in America must realize that invasion of us by the Japs is the final step of a course now strongly under way. Invasion of us in the future is as probable as invasion seemed to Australia three months ago. Australia's degree of complacence three months ago is America's degree of complacence today. As Australia reliance upon Singapore and the British and American navies turned out to be unjustified, so may our reliance upon distance and fortuitous events. We must not rely upon anything except our own strength and forehandedness. We ought not to waste 24 hours before going voluntarily upon the basis that will be forced upon us if Japan is at our gate.

Between where the Japs now are and the United States are four stepping-stones. The first is Java, from which the Japanese are now hardly a hundred miles, and which they may reach any day. As we face the Japanese and see ourselves on the defensive, as in fact we are, our situation may be put thus:

We can fight the Japanese at Java.

If we do not fight and beat them at Java, then we must fight them in Australia.

If we do not fight and beat them in Australia, then we must fight them at Hawaii.

If we do not fight and beat them at Hawaii, then we must fight them in California.

TO PUT it that way is oversimple—but it is the true, fundamental picture. The first two steps are actual and immediate. Without question, the Japanese will fight at once, and hard, to take Java. If they take Java, without question they will fight at once and hard to take Australia. Those first two steps are in sight. Thereafter, the later steps may wait some time. Also, the later steps may vary. Their final attempt at American soil may be by way of Alaska instead of directly to California. Or it may be an attempt, with the Germans, to take the Panama Canal or destroy it.

Also, while the Japs are driving toward us by way of Java and Australia, they will at the same time be driving in the other direction. They will push on into Burma—and if they take that they will separate us from our ally China. They will try to take India, and if they succeed will be well on the way toward fulfillment of their dream of dominating the yellow and brown races. They will send part of their navy into the Indian Ocean, and there may break our principal line to our ally Russia, as well as our line to the British in North Africa. They, having taken Singapore, will, with the Germans, try to take the other two great bastions of the United Nations' sea power, Suez and Gibraltar.

WHILE THUS engaged in the Eastern continent, the Japs may pause at whatever point they are stopped in their progress toward America, assuming they are stopped. Conceivably they may be stopped at Java, though this seems not likely. It is doubtful if the United Nations can exert enough force to keep the Japs from Java. It is more likely to be Australia at which they are stopped. They may be prevented from taking Australia. Even if they were to succeed in taking Australia, they would probably pause there for some time before striking on toward Hawaii and the American continent.

To say we should at once, today, go upon the same complete and intensive war basis as Australia now is—is to say we are on the defensive, as Australia is, differing only in degree. That is true—we are on the defensive. It is not safe for us to go upon any assumption except that we may some day be obliged to fight in self-defense on our own soil. We are on the defensive today, and so is Britain. Everywhere (except in Russia) it is the Axis nations that have the power of initiative. While this may change, it is hardly likely to change for a considerable time.

Assuming we are given time, we can take the offensive after we have built up our Army and Navy, and especially our air power; and after we have built up our production of war material to maximum output. When we have done that, the United Nations can take the offensive. And when they can take the offensive they can win the war.

The Crisis Deepens

By Barnet Nover

The Most Critical Months Of The War

MR. DONALD NELSON performed a badly needed public service the other day when he urged the Nation to "stop thinking about what we can do to the enemy in 1943 and start thinking about what we are going to do to him in February and March of 1942."

NOVER

This year, he said, was "the critical year in the existence of the United States." Every weapon made now "is worth ten times what we might produce next year."

The point needs unrelenting emphasis. American production plans for 1943 call for an output of planes and tanks and ships and guns greater than were ever turned out by any nation in any comparable period, so great, in fact that it would be beyond the capacity of the Axis to match let alone surpass.

AMERICANS know that and because they know it they have, until recently, been somewhat complacent over the outlook facing the United Nations. To be sure, ground has been steadily lost since Pearl Harbor and more may be lost in the months to come, but there is no need to worry about that since, in the end, we shall regain all that we have allowed to slip into enemy hands. That has been the feeling.

The trouble is that even as we realize our strength the enemy does, too. Hitler and the Japanese know that unless they can win the war or at least make themselves impregnable before American production reaches its potential dimensions their defeat is certain.

We can take it for granted, therefore, that they will not sit idly by and see the balance of power shift to the United Nations. They are not doing so now. On the contrary they are doing everything possible to make 1942 the year of victory. The next months are certain to see a tremendous intensification of their efforts.

THE SUCCESSION of staggering defeats which the United Nations have suffered in the Pacific in the ten weeks since Pearl Harbor were in part the result of sheer physical unpreparedness. As Mr. Nelson has pointed out we had wasted golden months in which we could have got fully ready for all eventualities but didn't.

But worse than our physical unpreparedness was our mental unpreparedness. Our psychology was one of defense. We waited for the enemy to strike us before we even began to consider what had to be done in reply. Nor did Pearl Harbor result in any fundamental change in this attitude.

Pearl Harbor brought home to us as nothing previously had done the magnitude of the task we face. But the tremendous blow we then received only seemed to intensify the defense attitude that for so long had us in its grip. And we found justification for this defensive attitude in contemplation of the enormous power we would be able to exercise once our production program began moving at top speed.

IN HIS RADIO address the other day Premier Churchill indicated that the paralyzing blow dealt American sea power in the Pacific as a result of Pearl Harbor made inevitable the loss of Singapore as well as of Hongkong and the Philippines.

That may be. But the question may be asked whether Pearl Harbor is in itself a sufficient explanation of the speed with which Singapore was lost. After all, ten weeks elapsed between the beginning of the Pacific struggle and the fall of Singapore. Was there not time enough to have reinforced the Pacific outposts so that the United Nations could have fought at least a more successful delaying action than they have? In other words, have we been overcautious in the use of our available resources?

IN THIS PARTICULAR the Dutch set us an example which, should have been but, alas, was not, imitated by their allies. For some time after Pearl Harbor the Japanese carefully refrained from attacking any points in the Dutch East Indies. The Dutch were not fooled by this restraint. They realized that they were on Tokyo's list of victims. They struck out as soon as news reached them that Japan had gone on the warpath. And Dutch ships and planes have rendered yeoman service in every theater of the Pacific war.

Had we followed a similar course, had we thrown into the scales immediately after Pearl Harbor every plane we could possibly spare, stripping our home defenses to the bone, it is quite possible that Japan would not be as far advanced on the road to hegemony over all of the southwestern Pacific as she seems to be.

A thousand planes, even 500 planes, might have made all the difference in the world in the defense of Borneo, Celebes, Amboina, Singapore and Burma. Some planes were sent. They were not enough. Everywhere Japan enjoyed superiority in the air and because she did was able to have her way.

NOW WITH SINGAPORE gone, with the Japanese pressing ahead in Burma and menacing Java and with the Germans preparing a great spring offensive whose objective is likely to be the Suez Canal, the United Nations face a situation of the utmost seriousness.

Hitler and the Japanese know that for them 1942 is the year of decision. If they fail to win this year they may never be able to make another bid for victory. On the other hand, even the vast American production that is being planned for in 1943 will be inadequate to offset a succession of Singapores in 1942.

What is done by the United States and its Allies during the next months will have a greater bearing on the ultimate outcome of the war than anything that may happen a year from now. For that reason every effort must be made, every risk must be taken, to right the balance in the Pacific or at least prevent the loss of the bastions that remain to the United Nations in that theater.

The task is not easy and has been made increasingly difficult because of the losses we have suffered during the past ten weeks. But it is a task we can ill afford to shirk or perform only half-heartedly. There is no time to lose.

Britons Plan Scholarships For American Children

London, Feb. 17 (By Cable).—Some 200 of 11,000 parents whose children are in America and Canada assembled today at luncheon in Grosvenor House Hotel to make plans to repay in some small measure the debt of gratitude owed the men and women who for more than a year have cared for their children overseas.

They will express this gratitude in a practical way by starting the Kinsmen Trust, which will establish scholarships after the war for the children of foster-parents in America and Canada.

The Kinsmen and their guests included Lawrence Tweedy, acting chairman of the English-speaking Union; Mrs. Lytteton; Harold Shantz, representing the American Embassy; Lady Cheatham, Lady Horder, Lady Kensley, Lord and Lady Corell, and the Mayor and Mayoress of Westminster.

Mrs. Lucie Demrose, founder of the Kinsmen, said she was in the position of a dreamer whose dreams have come true. Speaking at the luncheon was a new experience, because it was the launching of a great ship called Kinsmen Trust, which was about to make many happy voyages over many happy seas.

Geoffrey Shakespeare, known to children in America as "Uncle Geoffry," told parents of the progress of the evacuation scheme which he described as "good, very good, indeed."

He said that he had seen letters exchanged between parents and foster parents in which in one case a British mother said her young rascals refused to come home after the war but invited them to visit them in America. Another case was that of Peter and Dorothy writing to their parents, saying they had a playroom of their own and an alligator, a turtle, and two white rats. Again Margaret and Mary owned a cow and pig of their own.

Shakespeare went on to say that these children who had gone to America and the empire, and the children who would come to Britain after the war represented a small stream becoming a mighty river, which would make the British Empire and the United States more closely knit than at any time in history. Although the original evacuation scheme had been in the interest of the children, its most important aspect has been the strengthening of good relations between both countries. Nothing in the whole world promoted so much good feeling as when one nation houses the children of the other.

Sir Harry Brittain, president of the Kinsmen Trust, said it was the first concrete evidence of gratitude by parents for foster-parents overseas. It was merely a friendly gesture for the kindness which could never be adequately repaid.

He announced two scholarships at St. George's School, one of the largest coeducational schools in this country, one of these for an American, one for a Canadian of either sex. He also read a message of good-will from United States Ambassador Winant, who was unable to attend the luncheon, and announced that Lord and Lady Mountbatten had made a covenant to contribute £300 for the next three years.

Viscount Bennett, vice president of the Kinsmen, explained in greater detail how the trust would work. He said there would be two funds known as the American fund and a Commonwealth fund and described the Kinsmen Trust as a monument for good whose foundations rested on the destruction of war.

U. S. Issues Restrictions On International Messages

The Office of Censorship announced yesterday the regulations governing cablegrams and radiograms, detailing a dozen subjects to which no reference may be made.

Except in press dispatches, for which separate regulations have been issued, international communications may not contain references to any of the following:

Location, identity, description, movement or prospective movement of any merchant vessel, aircraft, naval or military vessel or naval or military force, including the collective or individual personnel thereof, operated by the United States or other nations opposing the Axis powers.

Messages pertaining to the shipment of material or movements of vessels must be so worded as not to associate any two of the following elements: (1) name of the vessel; (2) nature of the cargo; (3) name of port of arrival or departure. The specific date of arrival or departure on any present or future voyage is not permitted, but approximate dates may be used, employing such expressions as "next week," or "late next month." No such expressions shall be more specific than one week's time. This applies to American, anti-Axis, and neutral ships alike.

Also barred are references to:

Weapons, installations, supplies, material or equipment of the United States or other anti-Axis nations.

Location, description or capacity of existing or proposed private or Government owned or controlled plants, yards, docks, dams, structures.

Civil, military, industrial, financial or economic plans of any official thereof.

Employment of any naval, military or civil defense unit.

Reports on production and conditions in mining, lumbering, fishing, livestock and farming.

The weather—past, present and future.

The effect of enemy operations, until the information is officially released.

Prisoners of war.

Criticism of equipment, appearance, physical condition or morale of the armed forces.

Any data whatever concerning military or naval communication or intelligence methods or results.

The regulations also contain an overall prohibition against "any other matter, the dissemination of which might directly or indirectly bring aid or comfort to the enemy, or which might interfere with the national effort of, or disparage the foreign relations of, the United States or other anti-Axis nations."

Prior to the completion of an international telephone call, the persons involved must be fully identified. Calls must be person to person, except in certain cases, and callers will not be permitted to "hold the 'phone" while the call is being completed. The telephone from which the call is being made must be identified and public pay stations may not be used.

The English, French, Spanish and Portuguese languages will be permitted in all types of communications.

Cable and radio messages must be fully addressed, except where cable addresses have been approved, and must be fully signed. No such signatures as "Father," "Aunt Bess" or a nickname will be accepted.

Messages without texts—that is, just an address and a signature—are forbidden, and single-word messages will be subject to special scrutiny.

Legitimate terms in professions and trades may be acceptable, but the censorship office warned against using words or phrases susceptible to double meanings.

The Once-Over

By H. I. Phillips

Touchin' Slacks

Wheh as in silks my Julie goes,
Then, then, methinks, how sweetly flows
The liquefaction of her clothes!
But ah, within me something cracks,
And you can take her (here's an ax!).
When I perceive her in those slacks!

Something's gotta be done. This "slacks" mode for women has become epidemic. And it's going too far. Sherman complained of the horrors of war but even in his day women looked like women.

Don't get me wrong! Slacks—when they're slacks—are fine for women at work. But they're being worn mostly by women at ease.

And those slacks we are beginning to notice as the up-to-date 1942 models are taking a long hop from the original idea. Slacks were first designed for comfort at work. But the chic models now on the market would disrupt any project remotely associated with work.

If the new models with tailored jackets reflect the mood of the American Girl in war work, then she thinks this is a comic opera war.

They are so tailored that she is uncomfortable at work, unattractive at ease and unconvincing even from a straight comedy angle.

These de luxe slacks make a woman look like a female impersonator trying to look like a woman.

And she is about as good an ad for efficiency in the all-out war effort as a fugitive from a masquerade.

She looks like something originally suggested by Noel Coward, in collaboration with Radio City, and then taken in charge by Sears Roebuck and the OCD.

Now and then you see a pretty young thing in de luxe slacks who looks attractive, but most of them remind you of the old line, "A woman is only a woman, but a good cigar has dignity."

It isn't milady's fault entirely. There can be no glamour in a pair of overalls, however you cut 'em.

But the more like overalls they look the more headway she can make in them. These latest slacks have gotten so far from the original basic purpose that when a girl in an old pair passes a girl in a modern pair they both exclaim, "What is she trying to impersonate?"

Australia Mobilizes 'Every Human Being . . .'

By the Associated Press

Sidney, Feb. 17.—Australia's seven millions were told bluntly today by Premier John Curtin that they were on a total war footing for the defense of their very lives.

Opening a 35-million-pound (105 million dollars) liberty loan campaign, Curtin announced the federal cabinet had directed the war cabinet to issue regulations for complete mobilization of all resources, both human and material, for the defense of the commonwealth.

"This means that every human being in Australia, whether or not he or she likes it, is in the service of the government," said the Prime Minister. "It also means that all machinery, money, buildings and plants, when required, may be diverted to war purposes on direction of the government.

"The enemy rests on a total war basis and this country must use everything in resistance to him."

Curtin said he would neither go into post mortems or permit disputes about whether "this or that thing was done rightly or wrongly six years ago."

"Only two things stand between us and the overthrow of everything we have and hope to have," he went on. "These are the heroism and fighting power of men going to battle and the industry, zeal and devotion of the men left behind . . .

"When you go forth to war, you go to defend your life because Japan does not hoist the flag in any territory it occupies until it first destroys the life of all who would resist it.

"We are seven million people, occupying the largest continental island on the earth; we have tamed this country, gone into the vast open spaces and filled it with courageous men and women.

"From the day that Capt. Arthur Phillip landed this land has been governed by the men and women of our race. We do not intend that this shall be destroyed because the aggressor marches against us.

"The challenge has been flung down! Adversity has never cowed you, overwhelming odds have never intimidated you. And today I call on you to invoke all the best qualities of your ancestry and go to fort, workshop and factory, to work there as long as you can stand."

Curtin's cabinet was known to be discussing the possibility of further reverses in the Dutch East Indies which would bring the front line close to Australia itself.

Australia consumption of nonessential gasoline was to be immediately reviewed now that the bulk of East Indies supplies have been cut. The reserved occupation list was being revised to provide more fighting manpower. An Allied works council was set up.

The fall of Singapore, described by the press as "a naval Maginot line," which the Japanese outflanked with three-dimensional warfare, stimulated home front enlistments and there was a rush of applicants for war industry work.

The liberty loan issue itself was more than half subscribed.

At Port Moresby, Papua, island outpost only 300 miles from the northernmost tip of the continent, Maj. Gen. Norris, the general officer commanding New Guinea, declared: "We must make Port Moresby the Tobruk of the Pacific if necessary, since its capture would give the enemy an excellent striking base for attacks on the Australian mainland . . . Whoever holds Port Moresby holds the Torres Straits."

The Japanese now have footholds in New Britain, just above New Guinea. A Japanese scout plane was driven off over Port Moresby Monday.

Today an Australian air communique said that not a single hit was scored yesterday in an attack on Allied shipping by 44 Japanese planes in the Timor Sea.

IMPORTANT.—Before the stamps of the War Ration Book may be used, the person for whom it was issued must sign it as indicated in the book. The name of a person under 18 years of age may be signed either by such person or by his father, mother, or guardian.

For future reference, make and keep a record of the serial number of your book and the number of your issuing Ration Board, as indicated in your book.

Your first War Ration Book has been issued to you, originally containing 28 War Ration Stamps. Other books may be issued at later dates. The following instructions apply to your first book and will apply to any later books, unless otherwise ordered by the Office of Price Administration. In order to obtain a later book, the first book must be turned in. You should preserve War Ration Books with the greatest possible care.

1. From time to time the Office of Price Administration may issue Orders rationing certain products. After the dates indicated by such Orders, these products can be purchased only through the use of War Ration Books containing valid War Ration Stamps.

2. The Orders of the Office of Price Administration will designate the stamps to be used for the purchase of a particular rationed product, the period during which each of these stamps may be used, and the amounts which may be bought with each stamp.

3. Stamps become valid for use only when and as directed by the Orders of the Office of Price Administration.

4. Unless otherwise announced, the Ration Week is from Saturday midnight to the following Saturday midnight.

5. War Ration Stamps may be used in any retail store in the United States.

6. War Ration Stamps may be used only by or for the person named and described in the War Ration Book.

7. Every person must see that his War Ration Book is kept in a safe place and properly used. Parents are responsible for the safekeeping and use of their children's War Ration Books.

8. When you buy any rationed product, the proper stamp must be detached in the presence of the storekeeper, his employee, or the person making delivery on his behalf. If a stamp is torn out of the War Ration Book in any other way than above indicated, it becomes void. If a stamp is partly torn or mutilated and more than one-half of it remains in the book, it is valid. Otherwise it becomes void.

9. If your War Ration Book is lost, destroyed, stolen, or mutilated, you should report that fact to the local Ration Board.

10. If you enter a hospital, or other institution, and expect to be there for more than 10 days, you must turn your War Ration Book over to the person in charge. It will be returned to you upon your request when you leave.

11. When a person dies, his War Ration Book must be returned to the local Ration Board, in accordance with the Regulations.

12. If you have any complaints, questions, or difficulties regarding your War Ration Book, consult your local Ration Board.

NOTE

The first stamps in War Ration Book One will be used for the purchase of sugar. When this book was issued, the registrar asked you, or the person who applied for your book, how much sugar you owned on that date. If you had any sugar, you were allowed to keep it, but stamps representing this quantity were torn from your book (except for a small amount which you were allowed to keep without losing any stamps). If your War Ration Book One was issued to you on application by a member of your family, the number of stamps torn from the books of the family was based on the amount of sugar owned by the family, and was divided as equally as possible among all these books.

For All to Know—Application form which will have to be filled out by every person to whom War Ration Book 1 is issued when sugar rationing starts within a few weeks is shown at top. Instructions on the use of the book are shown lower. Applicants will register at public schools on dates to be announced shortly

Volunteers Needed Here

Volunteers are needed in all fields of defense work in Washington. Willing workers are asked to register at Civilian Defense Volunteer Bureau, 501 Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest. Soerabaja, Allied Base, Is Java's Second Largest City

HARBOR—Photo made by Hendrik de Leeuw, author and traveler, shows the harbor of Soerabaja

Natural harbor facilities, and unusually fine transportation and communication systems have combined to make Soerabaja, scene of intensive Japanese bombing raids, the leading naval base of the Netherlands Indies, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society. With Singapore's naval facilities lost, the Netherlands Indies stronghold becomes the most important of the Allied Far Eastern sea bases.

"Railroad lines from all over Java converge on Soerabaja, situated on the island's northeast coast about 425 miles from Batavia. Airlines formerly connected it with Australia, Thailand and Singapore. Goods reach Soerabaja by water via the Kali Mas River, a tributary of the Brantas, one of the island's main streams.

"Viewed from the old watchtower at the harbor's entrance," continues the bulletin, "wharfs, docks and quays sprawl in every direction. To the east lies the naval basin with its battleship moorings, torpedo-boat anchorages, dry docks and barracks. To the southwest, in normal times, steamers from all over the globe tie up at the commercial docks. Directly below the tower, to the south, an unending procession of sampans, barges and other river craft sail down the Kali Mas to unload their cargoes at the harbor. About a mile offshore is the island of Madoera, which serves as a breakwater for the city's harbor and roadstead.

"Soerabaja is the capital of East Java and the island's second largest city. A leading commercial and trade center, its port acts as a giant hub for products of the Indies. Sugar, tobacco, maize, spices, tea, coffee, oil and metals meet there for storage and classification and are then sent out in various directions by steamers to world ports. The wide range of these trade activities gave peacetime Soerabaja a metropolitan character not unlike that of New York City.

"Oil formerly was refined and shipped in large quantities from Soerabaja. The chief sources of supply from Balikpapan and Tarakan are now destroyed."

Bad News for the Japs—Ford Bomber Plant, Largest in World, Nears Completion

By Gladwin Hill
Wide World Staff Writer

Detroit, Feb. 17.—Boy, would the Japs be fazed if they could see this . . .

That's the thought that keeps coming to you as you look around the vast barn that is rapidly taking shape as the Ford Willow Run bomber plant.

It will be the biggest airplane plant in the world, turning out the big four-engined consolidated B24D's at the rate of dozens a day—faster than any enemy can shoot them down.

You see this plant and you are convinced that if they can just get to producing the planes, and we can provide the men to fly them, the war is won. The only obstacle is time. And the men out here are staging a doughty battle against that.

The first dirt was turned less than a year ago. The plant will be running in a few months. Yet there's no hectic, breathless running around, no confusion. The place is so big, you can only see a few people from any one spot. Yet actually there are 8000 out here, working quietly and efficiently.

Everywhere there are unspectacular but impressive evidences of the race against time. At the far end of the building, the brick work is not complete and the cold is kept out by a temporary wooden bulkhead. Yet at the near end, men are already working at machines, turning out parts. The plant is not finished yet—but out in the ward, grading machines are leveling the workers' parking space—for 20,000 cars. The planes are not coming off the line yet—but outside they're finishing a huge airport with a mile-long runway, for test flights, and training test pilots. Even the workmen's lunching is streamlined, with rolling canteens, Army style.

There will be 80,000 workers, and the assembly lines down which the planes will roll, in contrast to the 20-foot auto assembly lines, will be 50 yards wide, to accommodate the 110-foot wingspread.

The machinery is moving in every day . . . floors mapped with yellow paint for their location—here it says "planer," there "universal drill" . . . No two machines look alike, reflecting the specialization that is the essence of mass production . . . Many of the machines are used ones, indicating adaptation from the auto plants or other factories . . . The job of tooling represents seven million man-hours alone . . .

At the most of the machines men are working, getting used to the new operations, carefully fingering and examining each new part they turn out . . . One group is learning welding . . . The big objective is to get a "pilot line" started—not full-scale production, but a trickle of planes down one assembly line so the workers can get familiarized with the system. Then they can add on more workers, perfect the assembly operations, and add on the other assembly lines.

A big American flag hangs from a beam . . . Stiff white signs all around reminding, in neat black letters, that "all material and equipment in this building is Government property" and that there is a stiff prison term for damaging it or taking it . . . Only one other sign, a small Western Electric placard, "Remember Pearl Harbor" . . .

Some of the major "fixtures," the frameworks on which sections of the plane are shaped and put together, are already set up and mechanics are working at them. The center-wing-section fixture, which in single-plane production it took four hours just to readjust after every section, has been simplified until it can be reset in 30 minutes. And instead of one fixture, there will be several; instead of having to wait weeks for a section, they will roll off by the hour.

Although the average civilian can make out little more than there is in an auto machine shop, everything is rigorously guarded against prying eyes. Visiting reporters and company officials alike have to go through identifying and name-signing procedure at the gate guard house . . . guards inside the plant constantly scrutinize your badges . . . accredited photographers cannot take closeups of the machinery, even an ordinary lathe, and must shoot from the ground level, no overhead shots . . .

The plant develops by the day. As you leave, the guard at the outside gate says, "Things look pretty good in there now? I don't get in very often, but when I do, it looks like a new place every time."

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

Good Old John

He is seemingly always a man among women. His motor car is usually full of his wife's friends and relatives. He never goes to a party without having in tow at least three women besides his wife. He is the one on whom the hostess depends to see that all unattached women get home safely.

He has never been known to get more than a sip of coffee at a buffet supper, as he spends the evening carrying plates of hot spaghetti, oysters en casserole and melted ice cream to the flock of spinsters and dowagers his wife has collected about her.

At a family dinner he is never able to get three bites consecutively without being interrupted by someone pushing another helping on him or insisting he sample some new concoction, or piling something he doesn't want upon his plate.

He is never able at such events to finish sentences about what the country needs or what should be done at the war front without being drowned out by a flood of feminine monologue about clothes, permanents, and the latest gossip concerning absentees.

He faithfully accompanies his wife to men's night at her club, to chamber musicals, to uplift lectures, to church, to church dinners, to pageants, to fetes, to educational movies and to "significant" highbrow plays that her friends have indorsed.

When he arrives home from work tired and dilapidated, and finds his wife entertaining a group of women friends, he does not sneak up the back stairs but comes right in "as a gentleman should" and is introduced. (And probably later drives some of the visitors home).

He takes the family along to national convention of his lodges, business or profession and is faithfully chaperoned by them about hotel lobbies while his noisy brethren making whoopee bestow on him pitying glances.

Hostesses invariably choose him to take into dinner the most opinionated woman with a cause or the most drab unattached girl.

In the domestic affairs of his household he is told just what he should know and no more. He is never consulted about small matters—until it comes to paying the bills.

He is always carrying some kind of an awkward parcel—something his wife has sent to be repaired, something she has asked him to bring home, something she has sent to be given to Mrs. X's husband for Mrs. X.

In the presence of a visitor of opposite political faith, he carefully avoids arguments, keeps his views to himself and tactfully assures declaiming demagogues "Well, of course, there are two sides to it . . ."

When dining with a group, he always picks up the check—with little or no resistance from anyone—and cheerfully pays it, even though he has to eat his lunch at the Greasy Spoon for the next two weeks.

He is always good for a "touch" from his office colleagues the day before pay day—even though his own trousers are patched and the payment on the insurance due.

He is invariably married to a woman of the dominant type, who is regarded by all the neighbors and friends as head of the house.

Wives invariably point him out to their husbands as a good example; other men smile, and say, "Poor old John," even though secretly they envy his calm and fortitude.

In his own heart he often wonders about himself, especially when he thinks back to the high vision and dauntless hope of his youth. And yet he knows inwardly that by his own standards life could not have been different for him—not even in a world of ruthless push and selfish grasping and the "devil take the hindmost."

Defense Workers Want Style in Their Day Shoes

The old idea of a business woman dressing more sensibly than her purely socially inclined sisters, appears to be borne out in the matter of shoes. Reports from all sides are coming in that women in defense work, in plants and in the thousands of offices in Washington are wearing comfortable shoes with medium to low heels.

In Washington the favorite style was the pump . . . and brown the favorite color. Older women prefer the oxford tie with open instep . . . and there seems to be much less preference for open toes. Maybe that's due to the winter weather . . . or maybe it's a trend.

In the midwest low heels appear to be an even greater favorite than in the Eastern large cities and combinations of fabric and leather get many sales.

Crochet Fashions Are Developed In Answer to Wool Shortage

Dress up your last spring's evening gown with a clever crochet jacket. The one above has white cotton ground over which is embroidered aqua wool with the addition of rhinestones for glitter.

By Jane Driscoll

The Post Fashion Editor

CROCHETING, until recently relegated to the limbo of needlework, is now a much sought-after art. This typically American fancy work, however, has taken to fashion. Instead of "whipping up" a lace tidy, as our grandmothers used to do, women today are making beach capes, evening boleros and glamour caps.

The art of the crochet needle has come a long way since the early decades of the 1800s, when neat housekeepers invented "anti-Macassars" in self-defense. These silk, wool or cotton "tidies"—as they were later called—were used as coverings on the backs of chairs or sofas. It was popular for the man of the house at that time to use a new type of hair oil, known as macassar oil, which came from the southern tip of the Celebes Island region called Macassar. (More recently famed for the smashing blow dealt there by the American and Dutch air and naval forces on the Japanese.) Thus originated the "anti-Macassars" as a preventive of grease spots.

Now, however, as crocheting becomes streamlined, crochet-made bedspreads, doilies, lace tablecloths, tie-backs for curtains and the famous anti-Macassars take a back seat. According to Miss Elschen Hood, stylist for the Spool Cotton Co., crocheting is becoming significant, with wool for knitting being at a premium. "For obvious reasons," said Miss Hood, "it seems best to go into cotton crocheting. There will continue to be fewer wool yarns."

Miss Hood is here this week to present for the first time in Washington a show of fashions in crochet. This afternoon at 3 o'clock in a local store professional models will show crocheted garments suitable for wear now and into spring and summer. Included will be spectacular evening wear and beach clothes.

Not all the costumes shown will be new spring styles. Several outfits illustrate how a woman can make a dress or a gown that has seen a few years of wear look like new. A blue velvet housecoat with fish-net crochet ruffles on the sleeves and a fishu treatment at the neckline will be shown as one way of adding a fresh touch. Those still adept at making the doily or bedspread type motif may see how separate graduated circles of these take new life when tacked to the skirt of a black velvet gown.

For women who want to begin crocheting something simple, Miss Hood suggests a tiny glamour hat made with only three balls of yarn. (Styles with openwork do not take as long to make.)

Man Weighs Advisability of Marrying Fine Girl, Who Is Conscientiously Opposed to His Strongly Felt Religious Views; Can Conflict Be Dissolved?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For four months, I have been going with one girl and during this time I have become increasingly fond of her. Almost since the day we met, she has constantly shown her liking for me; as I have for her. I admire her in so many ways; and often think of her as my wife. I think of what a grand time we could have, sharing life together. But back of these sentiments, I have a troubled mind, because the girl belongs to a different religious faith, and I cannot imagine children of mine being reared in her faith; just as she cannot imagine her children being taught my faith. I might also say that I dread the thought of how my father would feel if I married outside my church; although he thinks this girl is a fine person, aside from her religious belief. Incidentally, whenever she and I have occasion to "talk things over," it seems as if I am the one who has to "give in," all along the line.

Still another thing that gives me pause is a statement made by an older woman, who once said, in effect, that she has "nothing against this girl;" in fact, she said she is "sweet and lovable;" but she also said she "thought I could do better." This woman thinks I come of an "intellectual" family and that I should marry a girl of similar background. I admit this girl is a farmer's daughter and at times uses wrong grammar and mispronounces words badly. But then, I don't consider myself an intellectual giant by any means, even though I have gone through college.

She is a high school graduate and has a job with the Government, earning $1400 a year. She dresses neatly and is a hard worker. One of her qualities I most admire is her determination to be just and in the right, at all times. She doesn't like to argue and is willing to compromise on everything but religion. I am of the same easy going disposition—but equally true to my religion. We have never had an argument; not even on religion; and regardless of that stumbling block, I think of her constantly and when I am with her, I am completely happy.

As for the difference in our educational backgrounds, I believe she could overcome that, by doing some special study with my help. I have heard it is easier for a wife to take that kind of difference in stride than it is for a husband to "step himself up" to his wife's higher educational level. I realize that the religious difference is our big problem, and the basis of many marriage failures. And when I marry, I want to start with the assurance that there will be no serious haggling over important subjects. My girl feels as I do; and says she would want to marry me only if we could "adjust" our differences beforehand and "live sensibly" thereafter. In the circumstances, have we a chance of being happily married? Sincerely, C. C. C.

'Marriage of True Minds' Is Not in the Cards

DEAR C. C. C.: If you would be choosing a wife primarily with a view to her fine and steadfast character, I doubt that you could "do better" than this girl. Her uncompromising allegiance to her religious faith gives evidence of the indestructible loyalty a husband could expect of her, once she had pledged her life to him. She is not the sort to let self-indulgent considerations tempt her to abrogate sacred vows; or even to be disloyal to them by so much as a thought. And in this respect, you are very like her.

The archstone of strong character is high moral purpose. And intensely sincere religious convictions support this archstone, in those individuals whose sectarian training has led them to regard their particular church as a kind of super-parent. They cannot sever allegiance to the austerely benevolent spiritual "protectorate" which their chosen faith represents, simply in order to stake claim to what they conceive to be mere "worldly happiness," without doing incalculable violence to their conscience and sense of psychic security.

You and your girl have displayed admirable integrity in conceding from the outset of your attraction to each other, that it is unthinkable for either to become a proselyte to the other's religious belief, for purely expedient reasons. And it is to be hoped, for the sake of each, that you preserve the courage, self-control and clarity of vision to maintain that stand. Should one of you "sell out" to the other, only in order to make marriage a seemingly plausible undertaking, he would be steering his bark into an "outer darkness" of mental turmoil—of fear, indecision, self-condemnation and lost sense of social direction—in which he might remain forever adrift.

Any young person who parts company with a quiet conscience or sense of integrity, at some challenging crossroads in his experience, is inviting the prospect of simply "existing" in a rudderless sort of way thereafter. He is missing out on the exhilarating adventure of gaining character strength by being stubbornly true to himself, just when most tempted to be false. An individual cannot hope to "make sense" of his life, if he flouts the regulatory precepts of his reason and conscience, any more than one can play a game meaningfully without abiding by well established rules.

I should say that a "marriage of true minds" is out of the question in this particular instance. In keeping faith with your respective, ineradicable and conflicting religious convictions, you two must split irreconcilably on the related subject of the proper upbringing of children. Which means that the "interest in common" which should knit you most closely together would become, instead, the source of most bitter, unresolved quarrel—a quarrel which would rankle in your spirits, if not inflame your words. Therefore, my advice to you is to renounce your wistful, ill-starred dream of wedding the girl; and to be sustained, in doing so, by Emerson's philosophic reminder to mankind to, "Heartily know, when half-gods go, the gods arrive." M. H.

Actress Condemns Lowered Waistline

This year's clothes, says Miriam Hopkins, will be attractive 50 years from now because they have a properly-placed waistline. That's what makes Victorian and Colonial styles still attractive.

Whereas clothes of, say, 1923—when the waistline was anywhere from 4 to 10 inches lower than nature intended it to be—looked funny two years after they went out of style.

This observation was brought on by Miss Hopkins' role in Edward Small's "Heliotrope Harry," in which she wears fashions of the last 18 years.

"Those post-war costumes were pretty awful," she laments. "They've convinced me that we must fight to retain a normal waistline, no matter what designers try to do periodically for the sake of novelty."

Working Girls Must Take Time to Eat

By Ida Jean Kain

THE American business girl is apt to be well dressed and poorly nourished. She takes more time to dress than she does to eat. She can't get dressed in less than 30 minutes, but thinks about 3 minutes is enough for breakfast. She takes 10 minutes for lunch and 40 to shop. Dinner is usually her one decent meal of the day—and it's not what could be called a square meal when there is the slightest chance to budget for a fur coat.

The blunt truth is the little girl does not properly evaluate nutrition. If she would eat better she would have the energy to work harder and earn the money to get that fur coat. Of course, she has a healthy respect for calories. She doesn't want the scales to act up. But what she doesn't realize is that every poorly balanced meal is cutting down her efficiency.

Right Breakfast Needed

Too many business girls skimp on time and food for breakfast because they lack appetite for it. Ever since they left home they have been out of the habit of taking anything except coffee. In the back of their minds they may be pleased to think, "Here's one meal I don't have to worry about putting on weight!" But the balanced breakfast of orange juice, an egg, a slice of whole wheat toast sparsely buttered, and coffee is no more fattening than the hastily consumed cake and coffee. Moreover, the balanced menu furnishes its share of the day's protective elements. It is well worth the 15 minutes which should be given to it.

Dinner Menu

Lunch should be leisurely to break the routine and light enough not to interfere with her brainwork during the afternoon. A good luncheon consists of a bowl of hot vegetable soup, a cheese sandwich and fruit. When cheese is not included, there should be milk in some form, either as a beverage or custard. The business girl needs her pint of milk a day just as much as anyone. When a hot drink is preferred at mealtime, the milk can be taken mid-afternoon, and before retiring. The important thing is to get the full pint every day.

Dinner should furnish two cooked vegetables and a raw vegetable salad, plus meat, whole grain bread, fruit and milk. These foods are high in the essential vitamins, minerals and protein. If the diet is to be adequate, the main meal must supply a considerable portion of these elements.

The power that is in nutrition should be put to work. The smart business girl can quickly learn to choose her calories from the foods that increase vitality and efficiency. If she does this, weight is no problem.

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

Grapefruit Vitamins

PYRAMIDS of large, yellow grapefruit are to be seen now in the markets. So we can go into a citrus feast knowing that we are getting a food rich in vitamin C at low cost. The sunbathing that builds up vitamin D for winter travelers on Southern beaches has a similar but different effect on citrus fruit. Sunbathed grapefruit gains glamour from the nutrition standpoint, but the gain comes from vitamin C instead of vitamin D.

A chilled grapefruit, well prepared, is appealing for breakfast, but there's many a way to use this fruit other than as a breakfast dish. I attended a luncheon recently that started off with broiled grapefruit. But the other foods were worthy of mention, too, so here is the menu:

Luncheon Menu

Broiled grapefruit
Lobster mushroom casserole
Avocado salad Corn meal puffs
Baked custard with fresh strawberries
Coffee

The corn meal puffs won compliments galore for the hostess. They looked like tiny souffles and were delicious. The recipe follows:

Corn-Meal Puffs

Add 1 teaspoon salt to 2 cups boiling water and bring to boil in saucepan. Gradually pour 1 cup yellow corn meal into the boiling water and stir until a stiff mush forms. Remove from fire and add 1 tablespoon butter or bacon drippings. Let cool slightly, then beat in 2 egg yolks, one at a time. Cool until just barely warm and then fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Drop by tablespoonfuls into warm buttered muffin tins—the small size—filling about two-thirds full. Do not smooth tops. Bake in hot oven, 425 degrees, for 25 to 30 minutes. Makes about 1½ dozen small muffins.

HELP YOUR SKIN TO LOOK younger again!

Nation-wide users of Endocreme—the new, scientific endermic discovery for face, neck and hands—testify that this cream does—in a great majority of cases—make the skin look younger again. Why? Because Endocreme alone contains ACTIVOL*—a bodily substance the decrease of which frequently causes women's skins to dry and age. Many users report improvement within 30 days; some more stubborn skins take longer. One month's supply costs 11½¢ a day. What an extra value for your cosmetic dollar! Remember, in these days of wartime work and strain, you must preserve "the sanctity of that youthful look"! Our Cosmetic Counter will gladly supply a copy of "What Users Think of Endocreme".

83 Survivors Land At Norfolk; Vessel Spotlighted Flag

By the Associated Press

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 17.—Eighty-three survivors of the Brazilian steamer Buarque, which the Navy announced tonight was torpedoed and sunk Sunday by an Axis submarine off the Virginia coast, were brought ashore here yesterday and tonight after many hours in lifeboats.

The 5000-ton passenger-cargo vessel, carrying 11 passengers and a crew of 74, was sent to the bottom by two torpedoes early Sunday morning. Forty-six survivors were landed here Monday and 37 others and one body were brought ashore tonight, leaving one person unaccounted for.

The sinking was the first openly hostile action against Brazil since this largest of South American nations broke relations with the Axis on January 28, the last day of the American Foreign Ministers' Conference which recommended that all the Americas break with the Axis.

Of the 21 American republics, only Chile and Argentina maintain diplomatic relations with Germany, Italy and Japan.

Three women were among the survivors landed Monday. This group of 46 was picked up from two lifeboats late Sunday by a rescue ship after they had been sighted by Navy planes earlier that day. Two other rescue vessels brought in the 37 and the body.

Passengers praised highly the courage of 5-year-old Frederick Ferreira, who came up smiling after being seasick, cold and wet for 18 hours in a lifeboat. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Ferreira, of Newark, N. J. His mother was a "good sailor," too, they said.

Fifth Naval District public relations officers refused to permit newsmen to interview the group brought ashore tonight, saying these survivors were too "fagged out." All the survivors who came in last night left for New York.

Brazilian Flag Illuminated

Walter F. Shivers, New York, who said he was "a trouble-shooter" for Pan American Airways, related that the Buarque had "the Brazilian insignia painted on both sides and an illuminated sign pointing to the insignia should have been plainly visible at some distance."

John P. Dunn, New York, Pan American Airways construction engineer, told interviewers that shortly after the second torpedo struck the Buarque the ship's boilers exploded and she sank "within 30 seconds. There was a terrific screaming sound as the water rushed into the ship's open spaces. I think she was ripped in half by the explosion."

Shivers said that "a young tidal wave which followed the explosion almost swamped our lifeboat. The screaming of that sinking ship was almost human. It was the most eerie sound I've ever heard. It made my blood run cold."

(The 5152-ton Buarque was formerly the Scannpenn of the American Scantic Line and was known in the New York-Scandinavian trade. A Hog Island vessel, built in 1919, she was sold to the Brazilian government-owned Lloyd Brasileiro Line in September, 1939, along with 13 other ships.)

The other women survivors were Mrs. Graciela Omana and her teenage daughter, Marie Louise, who were en route from Caracas, Venezuela, to visit relatives in New York. Mrs. Ferreira was en route to Newark to join her husband, who had preceded her by several weeks from Para, Brazil, where they had lived for four years. Mrs. Ferreira is a native of the United States.

The sea was not very rough, Dunn said, adding: "We got a good break on the sea and the weather."

Post Reporter Gets Traffic Job

HOWARD F. WENTWORTH

Howard F. Wentworth, for 12 years a reporter for The Washington Post, specializing recently in articles on traffic safety, was named by the Commissioners yesterday as chief of the public relations section of the Department of Vehicles and Traffic.

He takes over his new duties March 1. The appointment is one of the first steps under the Commissioners' announced plan to reorganize the Traffic Department with emphasis on promoting highway safety through closer relations with the motoring public.

Wentworth, five times winner of national honors for his traffic stories in The Washington Post, is 33, a native of Randolph, N. Y. He came to The Post in 1929 after three sessions as a page in the U. S. House of Representatives.

He is married and resides at 850 North Kentucky Street, Arlington, Va.

Dorothy Hodgkin Dorsey presents Bidu Sayao and Ezio Pinza in a joint song recital Tuesday night in Constitution Hall. Accompanists: Milne Charnley for Senhora Sayoa and Frederick Kitzinger for Signor Pinza. Program of operatic arias and duets by Mozart, Pergolesi, Rossini, Donizetti and Verdi, and songs by Beethoven, Handel, Torelli, Scarlatti, Cimara, Pizzetti, Sandoval, Obradors, Nin and Sacco.

BROWN

Last evening's joint recital by Bidu Sayao and Ezio Pinza in Constitution Hall was a surprise to this chronicler, who went with the expectation of being bored and came away with pleasant recollections. The program, sprinkled with familiar arias and duets, did not promise much enjoyment, but it had not proceeded far before one found oneself sharing in the enthusiasm of the large audience, thanks to the admirable quality of artistry and the stirring vocalism that were on display. Not the least element in the pleasure of the occasion was the contrast between a light soprano and a basso cantante voice projected by experts in the art of singing.

Bidu Sayao was not at her best in her first selection, Serpina's air from "La Serva Padrona," but she quickly warmed her voice in the Mozart arias, "Deh vieni non tardar" and "Batti, batti" until it reached its normal flexibility and grace of phrase.

Her first novelty was "L'Inutile Precauzione" by Pietro Cimara, who composed this successful imitation of Rossini expressly for her to sing in the lesson scene in "The Barber of Seville" at the Metropolitan. In her final group she combined "Rapunzel" by the American composer, John Sacco, with songs in Spanish by Sandoval, Obradors and Nin.

Ezio Pinza opened the recital with Leporello's catalogue aria from "Don Giovanni" and Figaro's mocking address to Cherubino from "Le Nozze di Figaro." In his second group he offered Beethoven's "In questa tomba oscura," Handel's "Alma mia," Torelli's "Tu lo sai" and Scarlatti's "Chi vuole innamorarsi." Recalled tumultuously, he responded with a spiritual by Robert McGimsey, "Thunderin', Blunderin'," which he delivered with telling pathos and simplicity.

A later group contained Ildebrando Pizzetti's beautiful "I Pastori," Pietro Cimara's "Vecchia Chitarra" and the aria, "Il lacerato spirito," from Vardi's "Simon Boccanegra." This time the audience was not satisfied until he had given three extra songs, Randall Thompson's "The White Shoes," Sibella's "La Girometta" and Mephistopheles' serenade from "Faust."

Milk Increase Termed a 'Raid'

needy, undernourished school children." He charged them with 'studied recalcitrance."

After Dr. Mattingly, by all odds the day's most vigorous witness, had finished his formal remarks, a milk producer arose and hurled back:

"You've been talking about the poor, doctor. Have you ever reduced your rates to the poor?"

"Mister, I serve them for nothing," the physician snapped back, jerking himself forward to the edge of his chair.

Dr. Mattingly asserted that "the fact that this is the first test case under the new Price Control Law should make the Secretary (of Agriculture) all the more vigilant in protecting our rights." He maintained an increase in the milk price would constitute "a contradiction and repudiation of the Secretary's new statutory authority and responsibility to keep food prices at a fair level to the national consumer."

Frequently throwing in a raised-finger gesture, Dr. Mattingly criticized "wasting" of milk by pouring it "into the gullets of swine or down sewers to maintain costs at artificially high levels," and asked if the poor should not have equal rights with the swine.

Dr. Mattingly, who said he is "a family doctor for several thousand families who drink milk," lashed particularly at the argument that unless the price increase is forthcoming dairies will divert production facilities to "more profitable commodities."

"There was never a more senseless argument," he asserted, "than for them to say that they will deliberately sacrifice their huge economic equity and capital investment in a milkshed where they exercise a virtual monopolistic control over both production and distribution, will sacrifice it unless their greedy advantage is further increased.

"The consumers' answer is, why should we pay blackmail to enjoin such economic stupidity?"

On the question of the present milk standards, Dr. Mattingly asked for "a fact-finding impartial body to scientifically determine safe and reasonable health standards" for milk admitted for sale in this area.

Mrs. Max O. Lorenz, chairman of the Consumers Interest Committee of D. C. civilian defense, also contended that District milk regulations "add unnecessarily to the cost of producing milk in the Washington area and to the difficulty of maintaining an adequate supply."

These regulations, she said, are supported vigorously by "the powerful Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, to which 95 per cent of the farmers producing milk for this area belong."

Mrs. Clarence I. Hendrickson, an instructor in nutrition for Red Cross classes, suggested an extension of the area supplying milk to this marketing area as a means of obviating the need for enlarging herds, cited by proponents of the increase.

Gasoline Rationing May Be Next

Auto Drivers Can Expect Further Restrictions

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

Almost any day now the drivers of this country's 29 million passenger cars can expect new restrictions, on top of tire rationing, affecting the use of their vehicles.

One of these may be gasoline rationing. Another, more difficult to enforce, the reduction of speed limits.

It was learned yesterday that the foremost authorities on tire wear have advised the Government that these two steps are necessary for conservation of rubber in prosecution of the war. They point out:

That our biggest rubber stockpile is the estimated 600,000 tons on vehicles which are rolling today, figuring that these tires totaled in excess of a million tons when new.

Life Greatly Extended

That the average life of these 600,000 tons of tires can be extended a full year through reduction of driving by gasoline rationing and reduction of tire wear and damage, when the cars are in use, by imposing a universal speed limit appreciably under the present average.

It may well be that the next 12 months are destined to be the most crucial in this war. With rubber the precious and irreplaceable commodity it is, anything that holds promise of adding a year to the life of the nation's auto fleet seems deserving of earnest consideration.

Yet the motorist who is genuinely desirous of doing all he can for defense, at the same time serving his personal interest by prolonging the utility of his car and contributing directly toward the lowering of traffic accidents, need not and should not wait for a speeding-gasoline crackdown.

A Way to Help

By never driving faster than conditions warrant and by taking such simple precautions as keeping his tires properly inflated and sparing them the punishment that comes with curb-bumping and rut-thumping, he will be doing more than he realizes to beat the Axis.

The laboratory of one of America's largest rubber companies informed a certain defense bureau this week (anonymity was the condition on which this information was revealed) that a new tire, under existing conditions of misuse, has a life expectancy of two years, but, subjected to moderate speeds and given reasonable care by a driver who refrains from unnecessary use of his car, it will give service for 4½ years.

Excessive speed stands supreme as the principal cause of both motor fatalities and the premature demise of tires.

Bulletin Issued

A bulletin issued yesterday by the District Department of Vehicles and Traffic points out that speeding and reckless and careless driving accounted for 26 of the 81 traffic deaths last year in which motorists were involved.

"If all the causes of these accidents could be reduced to a common denominator," the report says, "the answer would be speed, too much speed for conditions. Another way of spelling reckless driving or careless driving or failure to stop at stop signs or stop lights is S-P-E-E-D.

"If the motorists of Washington could be induced by educational methods or compelled by legal methods to reduce their speeds to the limit prescribed by law, especially at night, the traffic accident and traffic death situation would disappear from our streets as a major problem."

And, in addition, a lot of rubber would be saved to help fight this war.

Chance to Make Good

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—Three men admitted to Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz that they broke up a restaurant because they mistook a Greek counterman for a Japanese. Said the judge to two who were young enough to enlist: "You can pick any of the armed services, both of you go and bring back proof to me that you have enlisted. You wanted to fight the Japanese. Here's your opportunity."

The Federal Diary

to be given. Though no numerical grades will be given, a spokesman said, the best of the applicants would be certified first for openings. Where the demand is greater than the supply, applicants will be rated eligible or ineligible. Those rated eligible will be offered jobs immediately no matter if they live in over-quota Maryland or under-quota California.

All Federal agencies will be required to place orders for personnel with the commission. "All agencies," the commsision said, "will be required to work out recruiting programs for war service positions in cooperation with the commission. Unless this is done," the commission warned, "it will be impossible, for example, to carry out the President's directive to the effect that persons should be shifted from non-war to war positions."

The commission will take responsibility for all direct recruiting. Agencies will order through the commission and the commission will fill the orders. The agencies must accept persons assigned to them. Few people who qualify will be rejected by the agencies. Veterans' preference will not be affected by the changes.

By slashing red tape and reducing paper work to a minimum, hundreds of employes at the commission and in every Federal agency will be released for other work. The commission will now concentrate its efforts to the job of recruiting new employes in a dwindling labor market and to place employes in jobs where they will be of the greatest service to the Government.

Given Blanket Authority

The order gives the commission blanket authority to adopt regulations "as it may determine to be necessary in connection with the recruitment, placement and changes in status of personnel for all departments. . . ."

Under the "changes in status" provision, the commission is given carte blanche authority over the transfer of employes from one job to another. Regulations are being worked out which will probably give the commission complete authority to transfer employes from nonmilitary work to war duties.

The order automatically suspends the quota law, as it applies only to permanent appointments. By making all appointments temporary, the act that requires that States be given civil service jobs here proportionate to their population will not apply. The order wil permit agencies to hire many people here who have homes, instead of bringing new people here who would add to the housing shortage.

Text of Order

The text of the Presidential order follows:

WHEREAS millions of the citizens of this country are engaged in war industries or have been or expect to be called to duty with the armed forces of the United States, which militates against their competing for employment in the Federal service, and greatly diminishes the number of persons available for competitive positions in the Federal service; and

WHEREAS it is essential that there be no delay during the present emergency in filling positions in the Federal service with qualified persons:

NOW, THEREFORE, by virtue of the authority vested in me by section 2 of the Civil Service Act (22 Stat. 404), it is hereby ordered as follows:

1. The United States Civil Service Commission is authorized to adopt and prescribe such special procedures and regulations as it may determine to be necessary in connection with the recruitment, placement and changes in status of personnel for all departments, independent establishments and other Federal agencies, except positions in the field service of the postal establishment. The procedures and regulations thus adopted and prescribed shall be binding with respect to all positions affected thereby which are subject to the provisions of the Civil Service Act and Rules.

2. Persons appointed solely by reason of any special procedures adopted under authority of this order to positions subject to the provisions of the Civil Service Act and Rules shall not thereby acquire a classified (competitive) civil service status, but, in the discretion of the Civil Service Commission, may be retained for the duration of the war and for six months thereafter.

Washington Defense

Landis Gives 6-Point Plan For D.C. Safety

Six proposals for an expanded program designed to "gear Washington civilian protection program more adequately to practical defense needs" were made yesterday by James M. Landis, director of the Office of Civilian Defense, to Commissioner John Russell Young, defense coordinator for the metropolitan area.

Landis asked that the program be put into effect within the next four weeks, stressing the District of Columbia's position in the coastal target area.

Six Points Outlined

The proposals were:

"1. Installation of a control center headquarters.

"2. The commencement of command post exercises at that center.

"3. Development of a series of general orders to all members of the Citizens Defense Corps so that in the event of an alert each person will know, at least, initially what post to take or what particular duty he must perform.

"4. The development of means of communication which will transmit as rapidly as possible the alert to these forces.

"5. The giving of a series of mobilization drills to these forces followed by drills based upon hypothetical incidents.

"6. The working out of a plan and the adoption of necessary procedures that will bring about the necessary degree of obscuration for the city within a short period of time.

"The military and OCD should be consulted as to what the necessary degree of obscuration should be, as well as what should be the period of time within which that obscuration must be achieved."

Director Landis, who made his proposal in a letter, after several conferences with Commissioner Young and Col. Lemuel Bolles, director of the District Defense Council, complimented the Capital on the "progress made in establishing basic protection service."

He urged that "passive protection for Washington civilians be developed on a scale which could serve as a model for the country as a whole."

Checkup on Wardens

Constant check-up of the District's air raid warden services "to keep morale going at a high pitch" was provided yesterday in an inspection plan announced by Chief Air Raid Warden Clement Murphy.

Brig. Gen. George P. Tyner, retired, former Assistant Chief of Staff, was named chief inspector and five other retired Army officer were appointed assistants. All will have desks and volunteer secretaries at air raid headquarters, 1340 Maryland Avenue Northeast.

The five assistants also will have headquarters in "the field," as follows: Col. Guy S. Norvell, at Fire Enginehouse No. 27, Minnesota Avenue and Hunt Street Northeast; Col. Frank J. Morrow, Enginehouse No. 21, 1763 Lanier Place Northwest; Brig. Gen. Frank B. Watson, Enginehouse No. 13, 924 G Street Southwest; Col. Charles A. Romeyn, Enginehouse No. 24, 3702 Georgia Avenue Northwest, and Brig. Gen. Charles D. Roberts, Enginehouse No. 31, 4930 Connecticut Avenue Northwest.

Transportation for the inspection tours wil be provided by the American Women's Voluntary Services. Chief Murphy said there are approximately 20,000 air raid wardens recruited for the Washington area and that inspection designed to show up weak or strong spots in training, discipline and acting is in accordance with national OCD requests.

Boy Hit by Trolley As He Turns When Hailed by Friends

Because curiosity got the best of him, 9-year-old Vincent Picilla, 2406 Fourteenth Street Northwest, was in serious condition in Garfield Hospital last night with a fractured skull.

Vincent had started across the street from the streetcar loading platform at Fourteenth Street Northwest and Belmont late yesterday afternoon when one of his two neighborhood club friends remaining on the platform yelled at him:

"Hey, Vincent, know what the club's new password is?"

Vincent didn't know, so he wheeled and started back to find out. A streetcar struck him.

Horace Seaton, 354 N Street Southwest, motorman, was not held by police.

Victory Sidelights

Lusk Calls Meeting to Pep Up Wardens of Office Buildings

For the purpose of injecting a good dose of renewed energy into "the lagging warden services for private office buildings," Deputy Warden Rufus Lusk has called a meeting of all his workers for Friday at 3 p. m. in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building at 1615 H Street Northwest.

"There should be about 1000 building wardens and their assistant defense workers there," Lusk said yesterday. 'We are going to face the facts squarely. Some of our buildings are not organized at all. We've got to get them all organized immediately and keep them at it."

After "instructional lectures" and discussions from the floor, there will be a showing of the talking movie, "Fighting the Fire Bomb."

Advanced First Aid Class Under Way

The third class in advanced first aid for volunteers of the Kalorama Civilian Defense Area started yesterday at headquarters in the John Quincy Adams School, Nineteenth and California Streets Northwest.

Total number of persons "exposed" to first aid in the area now totals 593, according to Deputy Air Raid Warden William T. Kruglak. Nine standard courses have been completed.

Broadcast to Honor Memory of Magee

John Magee, who went from his Washington home to death in the skies over Britain as a pilot in the Royal Canadian Air Force, will be remembered tonight in a C. B. S. broadcast, "They Live Forever," heard between 7:30 and 8 on WJSV.

Before his death in action, the 19-year-old flier had penned a sonnet, "High Flight," which has been widely published throughout the anti-Axis world. Magee was the son of the Rev. John G. Magee, rector of St. John's Church, Lafayette Square, and lived in the Capital with his family at 2118 Bancroft Place Northwest.

The radio program will tell something of the aviator's life and his activity in recruiting fliers for Canada last June and also will include a reading of "High Flight," now being placed in all pilot training centers of the British Empire.

Veterans Employes Keep Knowledge Fresh

To keep in practice after they have completed first aid courses, employes at the Veterans Administration have established two detachments of graduates on each floor of their building and hold half-hour drills twice weekly.

More than 900 men and women have graduated from first aid classes and in their weekly drills practice splinting, artificial respiration and bandaging.

In addition to first aid, the administration's unit of the District of Columbia Chapter of the American Red Cross has piled up impressive records in sewing and knitting, the making of surgical dressings and blood donations.

A report made by Mrs. Lucy S. Howorth, unit chairman, yesterday showed Emma Emmett has done 228 hours of knitting and 281 hours of sewing for the Red Cross. Rose M. Bittikoffer has knitted 425 hours; Mrs. E. W. Hurd, 274 hours; Mrs. H. G. Meldrum, 242 hours plus eight hours' sewing; Elsie Rafferty, 235 hours, and Marguerite Putnam, 205 hours.

Drop Complacency, Col. Bolles Urges

Those charged with the responsibility for the public health of Washington must drop all complacency and realize that we are actually engaged in war, Col. Lemuel Bolles, District director of civilian defense, said yesterday at a meeting of the Public Health Committee of the Washington Board of Trade.

Bolles told the Board of Trade, meeting at the Lee Sheraton Hotel, that although the burden imposed on the District public health services was far heavier than expected, the agencies are organized to accept, treat and evacuate patients in the event of air raids or acts of sabotage.

Last Rites Today For Col. Rohde At Ft. Myer Chapel

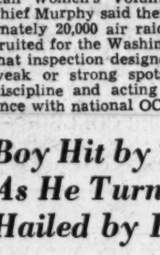
Funeral services will be held today at 11 a. m. at Fort Myer Chapel for Lieut. Col. S. J. Rohde, 51, Dental Corps, United States Army, who died Friday at Pine Camp, N. Y., after a short illness. Burial will be in the Arlington Cemetery.

Col. Rohde entered the service in 1917 and served with the American Expeditionary Forces in France and Germany. From 1921 to 1925 he served as dental officer at the Washington Barracks and from 1931 to 1934 he was in charge of the dental department at Walter Reed General Hospital. Col. Rohde also served at Fort Benning, Ga., and Langley Field, Va.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eulalia Rohde, Pine Camp, N. Y.

Knox Appoints Brendler New Leader of Navy Band

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox yesterday appointed Bandmaster Charles Brendler, assistant leader of the United States Navy Band for the past four years, as leader of the famed musical organization.



BRENDLER

Brendler succeeds Lieut. Charles Benter, who headed the Navy Band from its establishment in 1925 until the end of 1941. Benter retired then and the new leader has been acting head of the band since.

A native of New York City, Brendler enlisted in the Navy as a "landsman-musician" in 1913. He served on the U. S. S. Florida from 1913 to 1917, when he joined the Washington Navy Yard Band.

The new leader was appointed a Navy bandmaster in 1924, and became a member of the Navy Band when it was organized 16 years ago. He has been solo clarinetist of the group all of this time.

Married, Leader Brendler has two children, a boy at Eastern High School and a girl who just finished there. He lives at 704 Fifteenth Street Southeast.

Hotel Union Buys $10,000 Defense Bond

The Hotel and Restaurant Employes Alliance, Local 781, A. F. L., yesterday purchased a $10,000 defense savings bond. This brings the total purchase by District A. F. L. unions to nearly $460,000.

Committees Open Hospital Study Today

Members of both the House and Senate District Committees will meet jointly at 10:30 a. m. today to launch a study of present hospital needs in Washington.

Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, chairman of the Senate District Committee, proposed the joint meeting last Saturday "to prepare for possible epidemics and relieve congestion resulting from new population."

Terming the conditions in local hospitals more grave than is generally believed," Senator McCarran said that in case of an epidemic outbreak here Congress might have to shoulder the blame for not having provided increased hospital facilities.

Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, and Senator Burton (Republican), of Ohio, will represent the Senate committee today with Senator McCarran. Representative Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, chairman of the House District Committee, and Representatives Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, and Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, will represent the House District Committee.

There is now pending before the House a bill which would provide 1000 additional beds at Gallinger Hospital and Glenn Dale Sanatorium. The bill passed by the House authorizing expenditure of 50 million dollars for defense housing and public works in the District area also calls for additional hospital facilities.

Utility to Fight If PUC Denies Gas Plan Plea

Threatened rejection by the Public Utilities Commission of the Washington Gas Light Co.'s application to suspend heating services to new establishments after February 1 will be challenged by company officials, it was learned last night.

E. Barrett Prettyman, counsel for the utility, said if such action were taken by the PUC he would question its validity.

Following hearings yesterday on the gas company's petition, Chairman Gregory Hankin, of the P.U.C., said he would recommend that the application be denied.

Prettyman explained that the company must conform with recent orders by the War Production Board prohibiting extension of heating services after March 1, but that the concern would probably press for the retroactive date of February 1 if the petition is turned down.

Gas company spokesman yesterday told the P. U. C. that the city, with its ever-increasing population, faces the danger of a gas shortage next winter.

Everett J. Boothby, vice president of the company, pointed out that present facilities will stand only a daily output of 112 million cubic feet of gas. He predicted that extra demands by next winter would force the company to expand its facilities to a maximum heating output of 124 million cubic feet per day.

He further explained that if additional demands are made for "space" heating, the company would run into difficulties on priority ratings for necessary materials.

Although Hankin, at conclusion of yesterday's hearings, withheld any public decision, he indicated strongly that the gas company's request would be refused.

Lanham Bill To Be Aired Tomorrow

Senate Committee Will Open Hearings On Housing, Public Works Measure

The Senate Education and Labor Committee will begin hearings at 10 a. m. tomorrow on the House-passed 50-million-dollar Lanham bill for defense housing and facilitating public works in the District area.

Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, the committee chairman, announced this yesterday following an executive sessoin.

The committee will hear testimony from local builders who claim the Government is paying a higher wage scale to workers on its own projects than is paid for similar construction by private enterprise, Thomas indicated.

During hearings on the measure by the House Public Buildings and Grounds Committee last month no protest of the much-needed building program was voiced by witnesses appearing before the committee, and the bill was passed by the House by a vote of 303 to 18.

The 50 million dollars authorized by the bill would build approximately 10,000 homes in the District area and expand existing waterworks, sewers, hospital and school facilities and other public works.

For the first time, Federal war workers are brought under the benefits of the Lanham Act, which originally was designed to provide housing for industrial workers in the country's manufacturing centers.

Opposition to the "Administration's method" of housing construction was voiced on the floor of the House yesterday by Representative Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan, who declared:

"Here in Washington the Administration is adopting a policy that makes Federal-built homes cost twice as much as those constructed by private builders."

D. C. Rent Law Full of Teeth, Cogswell Says

The District rent-control law is working "because it's full of teeth" and has the support of both landlord and tenant, Rent Administrator Robert Cogswell told Washington lawyers last night.

The law's teeth, said Cogswell, make evasion difficult. An evader may think "he has cut one corner and he gets caught on another," remarked the administrator.

Cogswell discussed technical procedure of the rent administration in a talk to the administrative law section of the District Bar Association.

Similar discussions of their agencies presented by Gregory Hankin, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, and Jo V. Morgan, the one-man Board of Tax Appeals.

Hankin said the Utilities Commission as yet had no rules of procedure—"we do not know what at any one time is pending before the commission" because there is no docket. He expressed the hope that rules would soon be evolved by a Bar Association committee appointed for that purpose at his request.

Sharpe Urges School Bells Ring Half Hour Later

Melvin Sharpe, board member, said last night he will ask the Board of Education today to start school classes at 9:30 a. m. instead of 9, as at present. School would be out at 3:30 p. m. instead of 3.

Sharpe made the statement before the advisory board of the Keystone Automobile Club, which indorsed the proposal on the ground it would keep 17,000 school children out of streetcars during the morning traffic rush hour.

The half-hour change in school time has already won support of Commissioner John Russell Young and Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

President Signs Fringe Parking Bill

Measure Provides For 7-Man Board, But Does Not Give Group Any Funds

The Commissioners today have a new weapon to combat the city's parking problem.

President Roosevelt yesterday signed legislation authorizing appointment of a seven-man board to take over and regulate all phases of public and private parking.

Known as the "fringe parking" bill, the measure sets up the special board with full power to acquire and operate off-street parking facilities.

The city heads last night said immediate steps would be taken to name the new agency and inaugurate a program designed to remedy Washington's growing parking difficulties.

No Funds Provided

Under last year's highway planning survey by Capt. H. S. Whitehurst, director of highways, the parking group—to be known as the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency—calls for three citizen representatives and four public officials, with a paid executive officer.

Legislation signed by the President yesterday merely authorizes creation of the new agency. No funds are provided.

Capt. Whitehurst said the special board will govern all phases of parking—"on-street, off-street, public, private and commercial."

It is planned, under the Whitehurst program, to acquire land in so-called "fringe" areas adjacent to the downtown section for parking lots.

Details to Be Mapped

The lots, at first, would be operated by the District with possible leases to private control later on. Details of rapid, low-cost transportation facilities from the parking areas into the business district remain to be worked out.

Whitehurst emphasized that all methods of establishing and conducting the municipal parking "concessions" would be left to the special board authorized by the President yesterday.

With Mary Harris

"ONE-MAN ARMY" IS DANCER'S BROTHER. Capt. Arthur Wermuth, who won the Distinguished Service Cross, for personally erasing 116 Japs on Bataan, is the brother of a young dancer often admired at the Shoreham—Talia. Right now Talia is dancing in Florida and we're told, simply bursting with pride over her brother's heroism. But she'll return to the Shoreham in about two weeks, probably be delighted to tell everyone how it feels to be the sister of a hero.

Tony Pastor and his band will entertain Fort Meade's soldiers tomorrow afternoon. This topflight treat for the boys in uniform is through the generosity of Mrs. Maria Kramer, owner of the Roosevelt Hotel and its Victory Room where Tony is now starred.

LOVE BIRDS IN LOTUS. (No, we don't mean the supper dance costomers.) Jack Lane's collection of parti-colored little love birds are among the most ingratiating performers ever to appear at the Lotus. These chipper birdies ride on seesaws and merry-go-rounds, push baby carriages, pull each other about in little carts, climb ladders, do somersaults, crawl through barrels, walk a tight wire with little parasols—all without ruffling a feather . . . Jason and Bell introduce a new dance, the "Gaucho Americana," and the Lotus Dancettes are an exotic picture in an East Indian number.

"IN-THE-MIDDLE RHYTHM" is the secret of the hit scored with the dancing public by Ralph Hawkins' band at the Crossroads. "Many folks," says Ralph, "get fed up with jumping jive about the time conservative people are warming up to it. I try to meet 'em both halfway" . . . Look for pictures of crossroads life after dark in an early issue of Life mag.

The Cuban Ambassador, Miss Mabel Boardman and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman will be honor guests at Meredith Howard's "International Luncheon" next Saturday at Hotel 2400 Sixteenth Street. This delightful party will be broadcast, have music by Pete Macias and a style parade. You'll also be making a Red Cross contribution by attending.

FRANK VICTOR, El Patio's adroit and clever maestro

LASSES' DEPARTMENT. Songstress Roberta, of the Mayflower Lounge keeps herself in the pink by swimming and doing acrobatics at the Y. W. C. A. every morn . . . Violinist Jane Marlow, of Restaurant "823" has a pair of the prettiest ankles and tiniest feet around these parts . . . Warbler Evelyn Knight, of the King Cole Room hasn't a bit of tan to show for her Florida vacation. It was too chilly to linger on the beach . . . Organist Joyce James, of the Mayfair is looking no end chic in her formal with the black lace top and bouffant skirt of pink tulle . . . Most stunning stage jewels in town are owned by Vera Strelskaya, ballerina of the Balalaika. They make black-eyed Vera look like a Russian empress . . . Cutest trick ever is the Troika's Terry Lawlor when she picks up her skirts and does that little Lrish jig step around the floor . . . Ditto for Pattie Prochnik of the Pall Mall Room when she scolds prettily in "You Irritate Me So Much" . . . June Sothern, of the Madrillon is wearing the perfect frock to set off her brown haired beauty. It's of coral chiffon with bands of rhinestones.

Confronted by teasers at Paul Young's early show, emcee Ralph Lewis shouted, "Hecklers at the dinner show! That's not in my contract!"

ON THE MERRY-GO-ROUND. Grant Thompson, now head diversionist at the Neptune Room, used to lead a big band at the Palisades Park, big amusement park near New York. "That's the only time my band ever had to compete with a carrousel," he says.

EAR TICKLERS. Those novelty vocals by Sid Sudy, brother of Maestro Joseph Sudy of the Cosmos Room . . . The nostalgic swing given to "Down in the Heart of Texas" when directed by Layton Bailey, Texan maestro, of the Metronome Room . . . "Someone's Rocking My Dream Boat," new musical pet of the Rainbow Room's Milton Davis and his band . . . The sultry dance rhythms of Paul Perkins' Bayou Band at the Viking in Georgetown . . . Felix Zimmer's dreamy accordioning of "Estrellita" in the Casino Royal's floor revue . . . And for something stupendous in swing, listen to Gracie Barrie sing "I've Gotta Get Hot" at the Del Rio with Dick Stabile's band giving her plenty of background.

GOOD NEWSETTES. Don Carper and his Five are going to stay on at Cafe Caprice until well into the spring . . . Oscar of the Hit Hat is back again after making a quick recovery after an annoying auto accident . . . More and more Alexandrians are visting Burt's Trans-Lux to foregather with good neighbor Burt who's active in Alexandria civic affairs . . . That the elegance of Restaurant "400" doesn't imply high tariffs is being discovered by oodles of business men who crowd the spot for lunch . . . The coffee at Olmsted's Grill is made extra strong by a special process.

If all the people who attend River Bend's Wednesday night "Piggy Parties" were laid end to end—they'd be so replete with good food that they couldn't get up. Even to dance to George Stein's music.

SMART SPECIALS are a keynote in Nightingale success. Leader Jack Maggio insists on unusual dance music arrangements. His two star vocalists, Blave Sickles and Tommy Bingley, concentrate, respectively, on romantic and "scat" numbers.

Strike Again Closes Alcoa's Detroit Plant; Welders Walk Out on Ship Jobs at Mobile

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Feb. 17.—A second strike within 72 hours today closed the Detroit plant of the Aluminum Co. of America, which manufactures parts for airplane engine factories and other defense industries.

An estimated 800 employes on the day shift walked out, many of the strikers forming picket lines around the plant.

Victor C. Swearingen, State labor conciliator, said today's strike occurred when union officials informed employes of details of a conference with the plant management. Negotiations were resumed after the walkout.

Six hundred night-shift employes walked out of the plant Saturday during negotiation of a new bargaining contract, but resumed work Monday.

Union officials said neither strike was authorized.

Mobile Welders Strike

Mobile, Ala., Feb. 17 (AP).—Operations at the Gulf Shipbuilding Corporation's shipyard at nearby Chickasaw were curtailed today when welders stayed away from their jobs in protest against union requirements.

This action came a few hours after welders at Tacoma, Wash., had ended a lengthy walkout brought on by a similar dispute.

Fred Huddleston, secretary-treasurer of the United Brotherhood of Welders, Cutters and Helpers, an independent union, said approximately 800 men were involved.

A spokesman for the welders said "the men have quit their jobs as a protest against requirements they carry membership cards in the American Federation of Labor." The management made no statement.

The Chickasaw plant is one of the largest shipyards in the Gulf area.

Two-Day Strike Ends

Detroit, Feb. 17 (AP).—Striking employes of the Detroit Nut Co., heeding the urging of a United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) official, decided today to end their two-day strike and leave their dispute for future settlement negotiations.

Although the company employs only about 60 workers, some gigantic defense industries were said to be dependent on it for parts.

Nathan to Head 'Best Thinkers' In War Board

By the Associated Press

It was learned authoritatively yesterday that Robert R. Nathan, 33-year-old economist and statistician, shortly will be announced as head of the three-man planning board chosen by Donald M. Nelson, war production director, as "the best thinkers I can find."

NATHAN

Nathan, a native of Dayton, Ohio, also has been named to head the new progress reporting bureau under Stacy May, director of research and statistics for the War Production Board. This agency was created to give the war production command a daily check on the plants—and the officials—responsible for turning out war material to meet enormously expanded goals.

Identity of the other members of the planning board was not disclosed, save that one would be an economist and the other an engineer.

The group will be called upon to make swift policy and planning recommendations on every phase of war production and purchasing, Nelson has said.

Nathan was one of the earliest figures in the defense program, joining the National Defense Advisory Commission in May, 1940. To take that post, he left the job of chief of the national income division of the Department of Commerce.

Nurse Indicted In Infant's Death

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—Irma Twiss, 38-year-old hospital nurse who, police said, fatally drugged a 20-hour-old infant with concentrated opium drops, was indicted for first-degree murder today by a Bronx County grand jury.

Miss Twiss was arrested February 8 after other nurses at the Bronx Maternity and Woman's Hospital, where she worked, found the dead child. A second infant, 4-day-old Elizabeth Fantagone, who was said also to have been given the drops, was saved. Police quoted Miss Twiss as saying that she had been unable to bear the cries of the babies in her charge.

Majors Worried by Holdouts as Training Nears

This Morning

Without Shirley Povich

(While Shirley Povich is on vacation various members of the staff will write his column.)

By Jack Munhall

So you don't know much about jiu jitsu and you think you should being as thye're going to teach it at Yale? Well, all right. Hold on to your hats, chums, here we go:

MUNHALL

Jiu jitsu is not the product of some marijuana-ridden Jap mind. It was begun by the Chinese somewhere in the twelfth century and stolen soon after by the Japs who then developed and popularized it. But though the Jap spread the "soft art" among his own people, he jealously guarded it from Occidentals. Therefore it was not until 1921 that the Americans got their teeth into it. Once this happened, however, things began to happen. Jiu jitsu was stripped of the mystery the Jap purposely wove around it and revealed to be merely the application of common sense by use of quick minds and quick muscles. It was disclosed not as a difficult maneuver requiring eight or nine years and supernatural aid to learn, but as an operation so simple that through a good teacher any man, woman or child can master it in a couple of months.

How do I know all this? No, my middle name ain't Tojo. I simply went over to Arlington Cantonment and there talked for an hour with probably the world's greatest teacher of jiu jitsu. He is not a slant-eyed, bland-faced Jap but an American Army officer of Spanish-British descent. He is 30-year-old Second Lieutenant Anthony Flores from New York City. As director of athletics for the Provost Marshal School, Arlington Cantonment, this 5-foot-5½-inch and 155-pound officer is laying the foundation for the eventual teaching of jiu jitsu or "judo" to every United States military policeman. In his class now, or scheduled to be there soon, are 216 officers from all parts of the country. They will be given a two-months course and then, as the apostles went out and spread the gospel, they will propagate "judo" in every military police school. The fondest dream of Lieut. Flores is that some day every American soldier will be conversant with the intricacies of it.

Learned Tricks in Nicaragua

Lieut. Flores, whose beginnings in jiu jitsu trace back to 1928 and the Nicaraguan revolution, where he became acquainted with it through a Jap expert named Uekuri, reduces this too often complicated science into simple terms. He says there are four basic components in judo.

They are:

1. Balance.
2. Operation of the "Shita-Shara," which is the Japanese word for the lower abdomen muscles.
3. Taking advantage of your foe's strength or momentum to bring about his downfall. The slogan is "the fastest they come, the farther they fly."
4. Your maximum strength against your foe's minimum strength. In other words, you attack the weakest part of your rival's body with a combination of the strongest parts of your own.

With Rule No. 4 Lieut. Flores ended my hopes of being clever by suggesting that the theme song of jiu jitsu should be "With a Twist of the Wrist."

"No," he said, "one never risks using just his wrist, for that might involve a test of pure strength. And we of jiu jitsu always work on the principle that the other fellow is stronger."

Without even batting an eye, the dark-haired, flashing brown-eyed Lieut. Flores mentioned that there were nine points about a human face and head at which a jiu jitsu expert can lunge with fatal effect, unless quick attention is given the fallen.

"However," he added, "if you act quickly enough you can bring the victim out of it in all cases except one."

The exception is when the victim is struck at the right spot along the bridge of his nose with the side of your hand.

"When that is done, it's goodby," said the good lieutenant. "For that bone is paper-thin and part of it presses against a vital part of the brain."

Survived Only 'Title' Event

Lieut. Flores, though he is not proud of the title, admits that he is "probably" the jiu jitsu champion of the United States. "They held a tournament in 1935 in New York," he recalls. "There were about 50 entries, all but five or six of them Japs, and I was the only survivor. In jiu jitsu competition, you know, they toss all the contestants into one ring and they pair off and eliminate, until only one is left. There is no attacking from the rear, nor any ganging up like there is in the popular free-for-all."

The personable Lieut. Flores has been at Arlington only since January 9 when as a reserve officer he was called up from Castle Heights Prep School, Lebanon, Tenn. He had been there since 1937, teaching jiu jitsu, wrestling and also dabbling a bit in fencing and boxing. Three of his wrestling teams won the State prep title, two also won the Mid-south prep title, while last year's squad twice beat the University of Tennessee squad in regular matches.

"There's one thing I want emphasized in your story," concluded Lieut. Flores, "and that is that military police are not taught jiu jitsu just to break the arm or leg or the neck of Mrs. Jones' little boy who might have got just a little drunk and disorderly.

"People should realize," he said earnestly, "that jiu jitsu in the hands of an expert is absolutely safe. In 100 years of competitive sport there never has been a fatality and only a few serious injuries. That is because you know when you can't win and you surrender before your bones are snapped like dry twigs.

"So you see by teaching the M. P. 'judo' we're telling him to lay aside his club and gun, unless absolutely necessary.

"Why you can't get hurt with jiu jitsu, if you're smart."

"And don't forget," was his parting shot, "be smart and don't forget that Joe Louis would be a sucker for any third-rate jiu jitsu operator. In any fair fight, Louis would be killed."

AN AXIS SUB SMEARS PAN-AMERICAN GAMES

New York, Feb. 17.—The first Pan American Olympics, scheduled for Buenos Aires next November, went the way of all recent Olympics on Monday afternoon when an Axis sub reared its ugly snout off the American-occupied Venezuelan island Aruba, torpedoed three tankers and peppered the island's big steel blisters of oil.

CONSIDINE

'Twas a beautiful dream. The athletes of the Americas were going to gather in the big three-decked stadium near the capitol of Argentina, and demonstrate hemispheric solidarity by running, jumping, swimming, riding horses, fencing and kicking inflated rubber bladders. It was going to be one of those "you can't scare us, you crummy bums," gestures.

Now it has gone. Not officially. In fact, let us hope that I am more nearly wrong than usual. But it so happens that the State Department has been considering cancelling out the American team for a week. We heard in Washington a week ago that there wasn't a chance of the team going down there—and, at that time, nothing really untoward was happening along the sea lanes to Buenos Aires.

Something's happening now—smack dab on the way to the games. We're afraid that you can expect some sort of "sorry, boys" statement from the State Department and from the A. A. U. people in the near future.

Buenos Aires Advance Publicity Already Out

By a sad coincidence, we've just received an enthusiastic blurb-magazine from the Comite Organizador Juegos Deportivos Panamericanos, Confederacion Argentina de Deportes. It is filled with wondrous double-talk translations from Spanish and Portuguese, quoting the presidents of the various republics to the south.

The statements appear to be the work of one translator. They all seem to read: "Sirs honorable, we are in an accord friendly with the conglomeration of the sports for and of Buenos Aires 15 Novembre, 1942. Be of assured that our country will bend many efforts to join the confederation to sport, and it is our feeling that these things coming to pass will join the great sister republics of the south more bindly with EE. UU. de Norteamerica."

But the heart was there, kiddo. And it was a good idea. What sport is left on earth has been crowded into North, Central and South America. Olympics have not always been good for the relationships between countries, but this one, we suspect, would have been okay. This one would have been a kid glove affair, with no kicking on the shins in the soccer games, no use of oxygen by the swimming teams, and no collapsible bamboo shoots in the pole vault.

The first Pan-American Olympics was born of two frustrations suffered by the 1940 Olympics. Those games were scheduled secondly for Helsinki, and the Finns worked for three years building an ideal little Olympic village, featured by an alabaster stadium seating 60,000. It was going to be a great homecoming for the games, the Finns having done much to make the games a world-wide sports event.

But some months before the first athlete arrived, the Russians began using the dazzling white stadium as a springboard for their bombing raids. Russian pilots had only to fly high to Helsinki, get their bearings from the stadium, and shoot off on the various tangents toward the military objectives.

A couple of years before that, the Japs, who were first in line for the 1940 games, had "regretfully" renigged. There were a lot of wind-

Burlington Scores for New Record

4 Goals, 2 Assists Help Halt Locals' 5-Point Comeback, Set Season Mark

By Jack Munhall

Beetle-browed Tommy Burlington slipped in four goals and added two assists for Atlantic City last night to bring his scoring total to a new Eastern Amateur League season record of 102 points and lead his Sea Gull mates to a thrilling 8-7 victory over the Washington Eagles at Riverside Stadium.

The slim Burlington, who stands 5-feet-7, weights 145 pounds and is a furniture salesman in off-seasons, broke Ab Collings' two-year-old record on the same shot that decided a seesaw game in favor of Burt Corbeau's Broadway boys. The winning shot came at 17:32 of the final period after the Eagles had staged their most courageous rally of the season to transform a 1-6 deficit into a 6-6 tie score early in the period.

Long Goals Scored

Rollicking Rollie McLenahan, with two long, spectacular goals, the second of which came just 33 seconds before the end of the contest, led the Eagles' swashbuckling comeback, which started in the waning minutes of the second stanza.

Burlington, who joined Atlantic City late last season for his first try at senior class hockey, wasted no time in getting in position for his record-cracking performance. Reminiscent of a typical Joe Louis fight was the first three minutes of this match. Fans who were a bit tardy in being seated didn't miss a knock-out, but they were absent for two rapid Burlington goals. Tommy cut loose with his first point after one minute and one second, beating Washington Goalie McClelland from the corner after eluding Defenseman Art Lessard.

Less than two minutes later, at 2:41, the rangy Burlington rhumba-ed through the Eagles' defense, outmaneuvered Defenseman Len Burrage this time and with a long shot drove the puck through McClelland from the blue line.

Before yet another two minutes and Atlantic City had run its lead

Bobo Kayoes Marshall in 2:27 of Second

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Feb. 17.—Harry Bobo, Pittsburgh's Bible-reading Negro heavyweight with ambitions of taking over Joe Louis' crown, knocked out Texas Jack Marshall in 2:27 of the third round of a ten-round bout tonight. Bobo weighed 209, Marshall 186½.

Marshall absorbed a terrific pasting from the two-gunned Pittsburgher before he was counted out, on his hands and knees. He subbed for Big Abe Simon, who pleaded lack of condition for skipping the fight.

The Dallas (Tex.) boy was down for a three count in the first round and slipped to the canvas in the second and third rounds without taking a count before he finally was felled for keeps by a thunderous barrage.

Marshall's chief recommendations was his gameness, and a concrete chin, which finally collapsed under Bobo's two-fisted drilling.

He didn't win a round, and when he landed a punch he caught umpteen in return from his 21-year-old opponent.

In the second round Marshall caught nine straight jolting uppercuts, but managed to stay on his feet although he was tossed around like a leaf in a storm.

Here's a Missed Shot That Was Mighty Costly to the Eagles

Goalie Johnny Jones, of Atlantic City, takes a belly-flop on the ice last night to keep out a first-period shot by Kenny Ullyot, of Washington's Eagles, in their match at Riverside Stadium. Since the Eagles lost by one point, 8-7, this drive by Ullyot which came so close might have made a big difference had it gone in. Behind Ullyot is Defenseman Stu Cheetham (2) and Winger Charlie Duncan

New Financial Support Seen For Browns

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Feb. 17.—New financial support for the sorely pressed St. Louis Browns is being negotiated with prospective investors who have taken an option to purchase about 25 per cent of the club's stock, President Donald L. Barnes disclosed today.

Barnes, the majority stockholder, said control of the team would not change hands as a result of the transaction and the deal would not mean any policy making reorganization.

"For some time I have been working on the financial program of the Browns," he declared in a statement. "As soon as a definite program is worked out, it will be submitted to the stockholders and directors for their approval. For obvious reasons it is impossible at this time to announce any details or the names of any interested parties."

Syndicate Dissatisfied

Several of the original members of the syndicate which bought the Browns for $325,000 in November, 1936, were reported unwilling to continue the job of trying to rebuild the club, especially since war conditions have made the future uncertain. Presumably it is their stock which is being offered for sale.

While the transaction in itself would not bring new money into the Browns' coffers, the purchasers undoubtedly would be prepared to carry the team over its financial difficulties.

At a stockholders' meeting last month, Barnes admitted the Browns had no working capital for the coming season, but held out hopes of arranging additional cash loans.

A hint of some change in the club ownership was given at that time when Howard V. Stephens and William H. Bixby, wealthy St. Louis shoe manufacturers, did not stand for reelection as directors. Richard C. Muckerman, St. Louis capitalist, who was elected a new director, has been prominently mentioned as a figure in the refinancing plan.

Indians' Al Smith Signs His Contract

Dodgers' Patriotism Puts Rivals on Spot

Brooklyn's 4-Point Program to Aid in War Effort Is Announced by Larry MacPhail

By the United Press

New York, Feb. 17.—President Larry MacPhail of the Brooklyn Dodgers put other major league owners on the spot today in announcing a patriotic four-point program through which his club will make a "more tangible and more vital" war contribution.

"I know that baseball cannot afford to sit back and keep shouting that it is giving baseballs and bats to the soldiers in this country," MacPhail said in disclosing the plan under which the not-so-dizzy Dodgers and their ten farm clubs will:

1. Donate receipts of one day at Ebbets Field and one road game to a national service agency.

2. Purchase defense bonds and stamps 100 per cent—president to bat boy—and donate facilities of radio accounts, billboards, loud speakers and score cards to promote such sales.

3. Give three days from the Dodger schedule for two bat and ball funds all-star games, paying all expenses of Dodger players accepted, and will play exhibition games with camp teams, donating receipts and expenses to camp athletic funds.

4. Make coaches, scouts and players available for coaching and entertainment purposes; extend facilities, including Ebbets Field, for cooperation with other industries or organizations assisting in the programs of the various service agencies and admit to Ebbets Field 150,000 service men free of charge.

MacPhail announced the program just before leaving by plane for Miami, en route to the Dodgers' Havana training camp. He was accompanied by Secretary John McDonald, Dolf Camilli, the National League's most valuable player who just had signed his 1942 contract, and Veteran Pitcher Curt Davis.

The volatile redhead was incensed over the apathy of the other major league magnates.

"I went into the February 2 and 3 meetings of the major leagues here with a comprehensive plan for their participation in war service," he said. "I begged them to adopt this uniform platform for the duration of the war. They would not do it."

(The owners made compulsory the payment of 10 per cent of the salaries of owners, managers and officials in defense bonds and authorized full participation in the bat and ball fund all-star games.

Wilson High Beats Gonzaga Again, 40-25

Woodrow Wilson High basketers, polishing their game for the public school playoff tournament this weekend, invaded the I Street gym and mastered Gonzaga's five yesterday, 40-25, accounting for their eleventh victory in 14 starts this season.

In chalking up their fifth straight triumph over Catholic Prep League teams and their second over the Purple the Tigers clung to a slim lead for 2½ periods, then spurted to win going away.

Wilson boasted a 16-11 margin at intermission, but three straight baskets by Al Lauck gave the Purple its only tie early in the third period, 17-17. Don Hillock and Stewart found the range then, however, and the visitors led by 27-19 going into the last period. A final spree was sparked by Freddy Vinson, John Coffey and Hillock.

Hillock, the interhigh series' top scorer, boosted his average with a total of 15 points. Gonzaga's best point makers were Lauck, Reds Murphy and Jack Flynn, each of whom collected six.

Indians Whip Barons Again, 3-2

Springfield, Mass., Feb. 17 (AP).—The Springfield Indians gained their fourth victory out of five starts against the Cleveland Barons by a 3-2 margin tonight in a hard-fought American Hockey League game. The other in the series ended in an overtime tie.

Marty Servo Upset Victor Over Jenkins

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Feb. 17.—Taking one of the worst beatings in his career, his face a gory mess of blood from cuts over both eyes and a bloody nose, Lew Jenkins' hopes of regaining the lightweight boxing championship suffered a severe setback tonight when Marty Servo punched out a decisive ten-round decision over the former titleholder before 8000 at the Arena.

Jenkins, stung with a left to the body soon after the opening bell, was on the defensive throughout. Only his good condition kept him from being knocked out.

Round after round Jenkins was backed in the ropes and staggered from lefts to the head and hard rights to the body, but only in the seventh did he go down. He was floored by a particularly savage left and crumpled in a heap in a corner with his legs buckled under him. He took a count of nine, but managed to get up and go the distance.

Angott Mixed With Robbery By Accident

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Feb. 17.—Described by Police Capt. Frank T. McQuaide as "apparently the victim of a series of circumstances," Lightweight Boxing Champion Sammy Angott was questioned tonight about his association with two men suspected of robbing the Stanley Theater here Monday of $7537.

"Sammy has admitted he was called Monday by the two men, whom he met last December in New York through his manager, Charles Jones, and that he drove them from Pittsburgh to Washington, Pa," said McQuaide.

"Angott also says he was forced by them to accept $75 for the ride, against his wishes. He says his wife sent the money to police at Akron, Ohio."

The suspects, identified by Detective Inspector Walter Monaghan as Vincent DeLucia, 48, and Freddie Bucknell, alias Brownell, both of New York, were arrested in an Akron hotel after a woman complained they had annoyed her. They told Monaghan in Akron that they had taken a bus from Washington, Pa., Angott's home, to Akron, the officer said.

Akron police reported they found $3427 cash in the luggage of the two men. Inspector Monaghan said he was bringing the two to Pittsburgh.

Dr. W. D. McClelland, coroner and former State boxing commissioner, conferred with Angott at the police station and tried without success to have him released pending arrival here of Monaghan. McClelland talked to Monaghan by telephone in Akron.

"Sammy is an innocent dupe in this affair, had nothing at all to do with it," McClelland said.

Canadiens Boost Play-off Chances

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—Montreal's Canadiens vastly improved their chance of a National Hockey League playoff berth tonight with a 2-1 overtime victory over the slipping league leaders, the New York Rangers, who lost their fourth straight game.

The Montreal victory, spoiling the "Ott Heller Night" program, brought the Canadiens up to half a game of the Detroit Red Wings and Brooklyn Americans, who are tied for fifth place.

Many Stars Dissatisfied With Terms

Joe DiMaggio Heads List of Top Players Who Have Rejected Their '42 Contracts

By Judson Bailey
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Feb. 17.—Little has been heard of contract controversies in the major leagues this winter for various reasons, but a check today showed that many outstanding players still are unsigned on the eve of the training season.

Joe DiMaggio, who will be the highest salaried star in baseball this year, has returned his contract at least once without a signature. Most amazing, perhaps, is the fact than only Pitcher Lefty Gomez and Shortstop Phil Rizzuto of all the regulars among the world champions have agreed to terms.

The New York Giants opened their training camp at Miami yesterday with no more than a dozen performers signed and several other clubs similarly have big groups of players outside the fold.

All Are Not Discontented

Not all the players unsigned are discontented. The war has posed so many more important problems for the magnates that some contracts were not mailed out until last week and a majority were not offered the players until the first week in February.

As the result some players will bring their signed contracts into camp with them and others will come to terms as soon as they get on the scene and have a chance to talk over their desires.

DiMaggio, who set a sensational record by hitting in 56 consecutive games last summer, leading the Yankees to the world championship and earning the most valuable player award for himself, reportedly was offered a contract for $37,500, the same amount he received last year. Most observers believe that he and President Edward G. Barrow of the Yanks, will compromise on $40,000 with a minimum of argument.

There has been no indication of what is delaying the signing of the other Yankees, whose camp opens next weekend.

Wrangle on Bonuses

Bonus arrangements, which some clubs have written into this year's contracts because of the uncertainty of attendance in war time, have caused some balks. A case in point is First Baseman Dick Siebert of the Philadelphia Athletics, who, it is understood, wants a definite commitment in five figures.

Connie Mack said he has given Siebert his final offer, adding, "He can take it or leave it. He has given me trouble every year . . . always felt he was entitled to more money. That may be all right as far as he is concerned, but I am not going to raise my offer this time."

Mike Kreevich and Bob Johnson also are unsigned among the A's.

Luke Appling, who alone of all the Chicago White Sox has not come to terms, presumably also is opposed to a bonus plan.

First Baseman Elbie Fletcher is the only Pirate not signed and is reportedly at odds with the club over $2000.

Newsom Dissatisfied

Bobo Newsom, among the Tigers, has been grumbling about a reported pay cut and Pitchers John Gorsica and Paul (Dizzy) Trout have been made open holdout declarations.

Relief Pitcher Mike Hyba has notified the Red Sox that he is "dissatisfied with the contract terms but is still considering them."

The Indians have not yet signed Jeff Heath, Gee Walker, Hal Trosky and some others, but Trosky is the leading question mark. He has remained silent since his contract was mailed in January.

Sir Marlboro Equals Record Winning on Grass at Hialeah

Don Meade Brings Home 2-to-1 Shot

6-Year-Old Veteran Scores by 3 Lengths Over Trois Pistoles; Minnelusa Is Third

By the Associated Press

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 17.—Mrs. J. Eitinger's Sir Marlboro, which became known as the best of the turf course horses here when he won the Miami Beach Handicap on the grass, substantiated that claim here today. Running over the velvety strip he likes best, the 6-year-old horse carried 126 pounds and easily defeated four rivals in the Indian Creek Purse. His time for the 1 1-16 miles — 1:44 4-5 — equaled the turf course mark shared by himself and Air Current.

E. K. Bryson's Trois Pistoles trailed the victor by three lengths while beating Joe W. Brown's Minnelusa by a head for the place. Greedan and Pomiva brought up the rear. Sir Marlboro was a 2-to-1 shot.

Trois Pistoles was installed a slight favorite over the winner because there was a 9-pound weight shift in his favor over Sir Marlboro since their clash in the Miami Beach 'Cap. On that occasion Sir Marlboro won easily under 115, with Trois Pistoles second under 114. Today the winner spotted the Bryson gelding 10 pounds, the latter being weighted at 116.

Since winning the Miami Beach, Sir Marlboro had started once on the main track, showing little. But he was at his best again today on the infield strip. Don Meade hustled the bay veteran right to the front and nursed him along ahead of Trois Pistoles all the way.

Selections at Hialeah

Dear Al:

Only six weeks from today Bowie opens the Maryland racing season. Hats off to J. P. Mahoney, member of the Maryland Racing Commission! He invented a nerve detector, at his own expense, to weed out horses being run under false pretenses. Yesterday, Florida accepted Mahoney's advice and to me that seems the start of a campaign that will end in the barring of horses who have been forced to undergo the cruel operation which leaves their legs hollow shells. Although others have taken up the cry for the end of "nerving," I have conducted a one-man campaign for years. Mahoney, who is the most on-the-job racing commissioner I have ever known, deserves the credit. He is a young man, does a thorough job and Maryland should be proud of him. Lest we forget, the first horse competition of the year around the Washington area will be the Redland Hunt's point-to-point races on March 7. Bowie can't be far away. The publicity has begun to roll in. Here's some: Mrs. Anthony Pelleteri's Bay View, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap last year, is one of 22 horses that the Millsdale Stable, Pelleteri and A. B. Letellier establishments, are shipping on from New Orleans to Bowie, which ushers in Maryland's 1942 racing season April 1. Principally through Bay View's sensational victory in the richest race run yearly in America, Mrs. Pelleteri was able to finish seventh on America's list of money winning owners in 1941. Her small, but well-balanced stable, finished the year with 18 firsts, 10 seconds, and as many thirds to earn $136,095 in purse money. Tony Pelleteri, who with Mel Emerich, of Chicago, race under the nom de course of the Millsdale Stable, is sending on 18 horses from Craw Fish town. Cleo, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pelleteri, and America's youngest race horse owner, is shipping on Bostonite, a 2-year-old bay filly for the initial meeting of 1942 along the Atlantic Seaboard.

Handy Tom, winner of five races last year, who is owned by Mrs. A. B. Letellier, mother of Mrs. Tony Pelleteri, completes the shipment from New Orleans. Nominations for the four $5,000 stakes to be run here in April won't close until midnight March 16; therefore it's reasonable to expect that many of the Millsdale-Pelleteri-Letellier horses will be made eligible for the big events.

BILL.

First Race—TELL ME NOW appears the best suited of the juveniles gathered for the day's opening hop, skip and jump. James will do the riding and I'm going to string along. MISS GOSLING has speed and is dangerous. OVER ICE to take care of the others.

Second Race—JUST TOURIST breaks off the rail and promises to make the most of that position in this distance event. I see no reason for mistakes. MISS HIGH HAT is good now and will be a keen factor. MIGAL FAY is a long-shot possibility.

Third Race—SANDY BOOT is hard to guess but he has worked well and may be ready to turn back this kind. MULTITUDE promises to be in the thick of contention. INCONCEIVABLE to take care of the others.

Fourth Race—PHARIEN, of the Burch entry, looks like a good thing in this field. Needs only the right handling. FATE and YELLOW BALLAD belong close in this brand of company.

Fifth Race—I've been trying to run this one down. HORN seems well placed in this and I'm going to string along. DOUBLRAB and QUAKERTOWN should fill out the money bracket.

Sixth Race—THE RHYMER has worked well and may be ready to turn back this field. I'm going to take my chances. WALLER is good now and belongs close. RINGIE is getting in shape and could awake with a bang.

Seventh Race—HADA MOON likes this route. He is a doubtful starter but will be a hard horse to beat if sent postward. WAKE and FRENCH TRAP appear ready to fill out the money bracket.

Eight Race—SUERTERO gets my call in the day's finale. Needs only some help from the saddle. HASTY WIRE and IDA ROGERS to fill out the money circle.

BEST BET—JUST TOURIST.

New Machine Joins Crusade On 'Nerving'

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Feb. 17.—The Florida Racing Commission announced today the adoption of a machine invented by George P. Mahoney as its official instrument for determining whether horses have been nerved or desensitized.

Horesmen will be warned, the commission said, not to ship nerved horses or horses that must be desensitized to Florida next season because rules against the running of the animals will be enforced.

Mahoney has demonstrated the machine to commissioners and has offered free use of the plans and specifications for construction of a duplicate.

Rules against the nerving and desensitizing practices have not been enforced, Commission Secretary C. C. Vega, jr., siad, because there has been no sure fire test.

Nerved or desensitized horses are treated so that they cannot feel pain. They lose control, and racing men consider them a menace.

Brewer Five Faces Trenton in Finale

The American Professional Basketball League season locally will come to a close Sunday night at the Heurich gym, Twenty-sixth and D Streets Northwest, when the Washington Brewers will engage the Trenton Tigers.

It will be the final game of the second half, and developments of the week and week-end will determine whether the Brewers will remain in the scramble for league honors.

Wilmington Blue Bombers already have won the first half, and at present are leading the second half by one game. Trenton and Washington are tied for second with three victories and three defeats.

Lions Battle Indianapolis Sextet on Uline Ice Tonight

Washington Club Gets Another Chance to Make Up Ground; Providence Plays New Haven

Washington's Lions get another chance to gain ground in the race for the American Hockey League title playoffs tonight when they meet the Indianapolis Capitols at Uline Arena, 8:30 o'clock.

That is to say, they get another chance if the New Haven Eagles help Washington's cause by beating the third-place Providence Reds, the Lions' main obstacle in the play-off struggle.

Four points behind the Reds now, the Lions through a victory tonight can make it just two scant markers, providing the New Haven club does some yeoman service and spills Providence.

Of course, the Indianapolis club has other plans that conflict with those of the Lions. They are not satisfied with their third place position in the Western division, which virtually assures them of a place in the title play-offs. No, they now have their eye on the exalted position of the leading Hershey Bears. And they have a good chance of overtakng the Bears, being only 3 points behind them and 2 points behind the Cleveland Barons.

The "Caps" bring a splendid admixture of youngsters and veterans into Washington to accomplish that trick. Such freshmen as Dick Behling, Doug McCaig, Adam Brown, Jerry Brown, Sandy Ross, "Wendy" Jamieson, Norm McAtee, Roy Sawyer and goalie "Fats" Turner. And such old-timers as Hec Kilrea, Hal Jackson, Foe Fisher and Jack Keating.

The Lions, now regarded as the most improved club in the American League, again will be banking on Bert Gardiner to regain his whitewashing speciality. Bert, after scoring three shutouts in a row at home, missed up a little last week and hopes to resume blanking operations at the expense of the "Cap."

Coach "Ching" Johnson indicated today after a fast workout that he will spring a stepped-up offensive against the Indianapolis club. Heretofore, the Lions have been regarded by other league teams as a better defensive aggregation than a scoring machine, despite the fact that Lou Trudel is among the leading scorers.

The Lions will leave for Buffalo immediately after tonight's game to meet the Bisons tomorrow night. Saturday they visit the Philadelphia Rockets' arena, returning to Uline ice Sunday for one of the banner battles of the season—that with the Hershey Bears.

Chet Ross May Get Chance at First Base

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 17 (AP).—Chet Ross, Boston Braves outfielder, announced today he has signed his 1942 contract with the National League club, and said he may become a first baseman.

"Bob Quinn (owner of the Braves) told me to fetch a first baseman's mitt to camp," said Chet. "I've played there some in sandlot ball and like it."

sucking apologies at the time. The real reason was that they were spending every yen they had to build up the military machine that was then gnawing at China's vitals and which later bombed hell out of our outposts.

A couple of American cities made bids for the orphan 1940 games, but by 1940 there weren't many nations abroad which could or would have sent teams. Their athletes were in uniform; their minds were bent on tearing down bodies, not building them up.

So the American Olympic committee reincorporated itself, got in touch with the amateur officials in the other countries on this side, and some months ago sat around a table in Buenos Aires and made enough speeches to formulate plans for the games. Judge Jerry Mahoney, the American official, charmed the congregation by saying America would send about a thousand athletes and raise a million dollars to do the job. Sumner Welles said it was a dandy idea and since that time money has been collected toward defraying the expected expenses of loading a boat with the cream of our athletic amateurs and sending it on its long voyage.

First cloud on the horizon was an announcement a short time ago by the National Rifle Association that it could not endorse a rifle team in the Pan-American games, in times like these. Then the State Department began worrying over what might lurk beneath the surface of the waters en route—and, we fear, the lid was clamped down on the whole wonderful dream when the first tanker was attacked off Aruba.

Two Referees Asked for Thursday Bout

The two-man team wrestling match between Rudy and Emil Dusek and Ace Freeman and Maurice LaChappelle tomorrow night at Turner's Arena has brought forth a challenge from one outstanding team and also resulted in a demand for two referees.

Promoter Joe Turner revealed yesterday that Eddie Newman and Lou Plummer, who operated with great success around these parts last winter, have hurled a defi at the winner of this feature bout, with the purse to be on a 60-40 basis.

The Duseks also petitioned Promoter Turner to have two referees work the match, fearing that Casey Berger "might let it get out of control," as they put it. Turner said he would consider using Burley Brown and Berger, with the big Airport guard to work inside the ring and Brown on the outside. LaChappelle and Freeman, it appears, would be content with just one official.

Meanwhile the supporting card for Turner's variety show was closed out. Latest to be signed up are Frank Judson, former Harvard wrestling coach, and Art LaGrand, of Texas, who will clash in a 30-minute battle.

Yvon Robert, former world's champion, and now holder of the Canadian title, will take on Gino Garibaldi in a one-hour time limit semiwindup, while in a special 30-minute scrap Cowboy Luttrall will tangle with Milo Steinborn.

Lavagetto Sworn in As Machinist's Mate

San Francisco, Feb. 17 (AP).—Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto, regular third baseman of the Brooklyn Dodgers last year, was sworn into the Navy today as an aviation machinist mate. The 28-year-old infielder asked for duty at the naval base at Alameda, located near his Oakland home. Disposition of his request was withheld.

Dodger executives anticipated Lavagetto's enlistment in the service and last December closed a deal for "Arky" Vaughn with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Juniata Plays at American U. Tonight; Columbus Also Host

Terps Visit Army; Hoyas At Loyola

Georgetown Frosh Seek 14th Straight; Shenandoah Visits Columbus at Tech

American and Columbus University basketeers will occupy the home stage tonight as Georgetown and Maryland go out of town in the first of 14 games in the next four days for the city's college teams.

American will take a modest winning streak of three games into the Juniata clash at A. U. at 8:30 p. m. The Eagles beat the Pennsylvanians last year by 9 points and with Bing Byham getting scoring help from the freshmen of late Staff Cassell's boy may make it four in a row.

Columbus is also sporting a budding three-game winning streak and will risk it against the little known visitors from Shenandoah College, of Dayton, Va., tonight in Tech gym at 8:30 p. m.

Terps Face Cadets

Maryland will make a quick trip to West Point to meet Army, making the third District area club to face the Cadets this year. George Washington and Georgetown beat Army by 11 and 12 points, respectively. The Terps will be out to better their .333 average for the season, having won six and lost 12 to date.

Georgetown has a date with Loyola in the Greyhounds' gym tonight in Baltimore. The hosts are current leaders of the Mason-Dixon Conference with nine straight victories and have won 12 and lost two for the tseason, losing only to Villanova and LaSalle.

Last year Georgetown, with a team that won 16 and lost four for the season, opened with Loyola in Baltimore, lost by five points and then went on to win 11 straight games. Elmer Ripley would like to partly atone for that defeat tonight as his club makes a last stand to win more than they lose for the season.

The Hoya freshmen, said by several basketball officials in this section to be the finest first-year team they have ever seen, will be favored to keep their season's record clear in a preliminary with the Loyola Jayvees. The G. U. frosh have won 13 straight.

Terriers Invade

Catholic University will be alone tomorrow when the Cards entertain the Mason Dixon Conference champions, Western Maryland, in the C. U. gym. With Dick Scanlan's ankle injury, withdrawals from school and loss of players to the Services Coach Carmen, Pirro has been having a tough time of late and the Cards must win one or two of their four remaining conference games to make certain of a place in the Baltimore March playoffs. Washington Colleeg is the team moving up threatening C. U., Johns Hopkins or Delaware.

The week's home feature, George Washington's Saturday night date with Duke in Riverside Stadium, gained added importance Monday when the Blue Devils brushed aside North Carolina State for Southern Conference triumph number 11, against no defeats. G. W. is in a perfect spot for an upset as the schedule was so arranged that the Colonials had an entire week to prepare for their major conference encounter. On the other hand Duke will be playing its third tough game of the week as they meet Wake Forest tomorrow night.

The Colonials could lose and still be fairly certain of a berth in the Raleigh championship playoffs the first week in March as they meet Washington and Lee and V. M. I. twice next week and on the basis of past performances figure to win at least two of three or sweep the series.

Hyattsville Wins, 43-22; Kidwell Star

National Training School's rugged courtmen held Hyattsville High's ace scorer, Bill Sideroff, to a meager five points yesterday, but the effort was wasted. They were swamped by other Hyattsville players, 43-22, on the latter's gym.

Rody Kidwell, captain and center of the winners, replaced Sideroff in the high-scoring role with 17 points as Hyattsville swept to its twelfth triumph against five losses.

After building up a comfortable margin, St. Albans five was forced to hang on yesterday to down Fairfax High quintet, 24-23, at the suburban court.

While the hosts were splitting their scoring fairly evenly, St. Albans depended for the most part on George Elliott, its stellar forward, for points. He amassed 14 as the Saints hung up their ninth victory in 11 games.

Great West Virginia Battles Navy Today

Mountaineers Risk 9-Game Winning Streak Against Tars

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Feb. 17.—Navy's basketballers face their sternest test of the season tomorrow when West Virginia University's rampaging Mountaineers bring their "point-a-minute" aggregation and a nine-game winning streak to the Naval Academy.

Beaten only by Duquesne, the Mountaineers have won 11 of 12 games. To date they've rolled up 658 points for an average of 54.9 points per game, shattered all existing West Virginia records for consecutive victories and seem certain to finish the campaign with one of the highest seasonal scoring totals in their alma mater's history.

By way of impressing the Middies, the Mountaineers bowled over the University of Maryland Terrapins, Saturday, and Bethany (Pa.) College, last night, scoring 121 points to 68 for their opponents. Bethany was overwhelmed, 80 to 41.

Lost to Duquesne

Only once during the season did West Virginia fail to score fewer than 41 points. They lost to Duquesne, 30 to 22, in the third encounter of the season.

Navy Coach Johnny Wilson, who saw the West Virginia whirlwind in action at College Park, Md., last Saturday, mopped his brow today as he estimated the chances of his erratic midshipmen.

"West Virginia is quicker than light," he moaned. "I only hope we give 'em a good workout."

Navy, victor in four of eight contests, has never been beaten decisively. Duke's 41-to-31 triumph stands as the low point of the season while the Middies have trimmed Columbia, Delaware, Virginia and Maryland impressively. Their other setbacks were inflicted by Pennsylvania, Penn State, and William and Mary.

Has Stern Task

However, Navy's forces will be asked tomorrow to hold down Mountaineers Dick Kesling and Rudy Baris, who have accounted for more than 300 West Virginia tallies during the year. Both deadly shots from the floor, their individual averages are a shade under 15 points a game.

Wilson claims it's almost impossible to set up a defense for West Virginia's mystifying attack. "If you check them near the basket they start firing long 'ones; when you come out to put a stop to that, they dazzle you in close," he asserted.

Since starting their winning streak, the Mountaineers tipped over the university's consecutive victory record of seven straight, established in 1923 and later tied in 1929 and 1936. At their present pace, the Mountaineers may register a West Virginia record which will stand for all time.

Navy, refusing to throw in the towl, points to the Army-West Virginia game which the Mountaineers won, 57 to 40, and makes a solemn pledge. Say the Middies:

"We'll top that!"

Dodgers Fly Today To Camp in Havana

Miami, Fla., Feb. 17 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers baseball team, 41 strong, will fly to Havana tomorrow afternoon in two special Pan American clipper planes to begin spring training.

General Manager Larry MacPhail will follow the club to Havana Sunday. The Dodgers will remain there until March 9.

Kent, Old Superbas, Coach at Northwestern

Evanston, Ill., Feb. 17 (INS).—Appointment of Maury Kent, who played with the Brooklyn Dodgers way back when they were known as the Superbas, and a member of the Northwestern University coaching staff since 1922, to the post of head baseball coach was announced tonight. Kent succeeds Stan Klores, who resigned to join the Navy.

to 3-0. Pete Horeck got a running start on the Washington net, fed the puck to Johnny Kitts, took a return pass and fired the third visitors' goal at 3:42.

The Eagles, slipshod and seemingly indifferent through all this scoring by the Sea Gulls, broke through for their first marker at 9:44 of the period. With Atlantic City minus winger Laroche by penalty, Adie Hallowell, Washington's most underrated player, stood at the side of the nets to grab a pass from McLenahan and poke the puck through Goalie Johnny Jones, the Gulls' recent addition from Akron of the Tri-State League.

Art Lessard, at 1:36; Rollie Bleau, at 2:44, and Freddy Weaver, at 7:53, tallied in a row in the third period to deadlock the count for the amazingly improved Eagles. Play rocked back and forth then, with Washington missing innumerable times by the closest of margins, until Wheeler received a pass from Burlington once again to install the Gulls in the lead at 7-6. Then even before the Eagles' fans had a chance to root for one goal, they were needing two, for Burlington at 17:32 whacked in what was for him the all-important shot.

Adequate funds for carrying out desirable wildlife management programs are not always available. The income derived from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses is often sorely inadequate for financing the necessary game and fish protection, for restocking depleted streams and coverts and other necessary improvements.

The Pittman-Robertson Act has proved to be one of the most effective measures for wildlife conservation ever adopted by the Federal Government. This act provides that the funds collected each year from the excise tax on sporting firearms and ammunition shall be set aside for distribution among the States to help finance approved wildlife projects, and has made possible the tremendous advance in Virginia's and other States' wildlife programs. The work now being carried on by the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries is far more extensive than would have been possible without the additional funds provided by this act.

Virginia is about to embark on a new game restoration project which will involve large scale environmental improvements on the vast public hunting areas within the national forests. This work has been planned jointly by technicians of the United States Forest Service and Virginia's game commission, and the whole project is to be carried out cooperatively by the two agencies.

Deer, ruffed grouse, wild turkeys and other game will be benefited by many needed clearings and openings which will be established in the national forests. A large number of food bearing plants will be set out and these improvements are expected to prove especially successful now that deer and turkey are being restocked in many sections where brood stock is scarce or lacking.

The commission is also engaged in restocking raccoons, rabbits, and beaver in some sections of the State. Habitat restoration for farm game is being carried out in cooperation with the United States Soil Conservation Service.

The angler, indirectly, derives many benefits from the excise tax too. Streams and waters are improving, largely through the acquisition and development of cut-over lands to improve conditions for deer and other woodland types of game.

A companion bill, was proposed late in the past year to provide a similar fund by a 10 per cent tax on all sport fishing gear. The revenue so collected would be allocated to the Fish and Wildlife Service, for the betterment directly of sport fisheries.

The Associated Fishing Tackle Manufacturers, after first opposing this bill, later indorsed it in principle. It was understood at the time a possible defense tax would be imposed on all fishing goods, including tackle. At the time the manufacturers announced that they would absorb the tax, feeling that it was their duty, along with all other manufacturers to bear their share of the tax burden. However, later they indorsed the bill contingent upon there not being an additional tax on tackle. That contingency has now become a practical reality with the passage of a 10 per cent defense revenue tax on all sport fishing tackle.

There was considerable discussion among the fishing fraternity regarding this proposed fund, and in view of existing circumstances it was decided to defer passage of the Buck-Clark bill until a more appropriate time, when the emergency tax has served it's purpose and is ready to be repealed, and the tax be kept on but definitely allocated to a sport fisheries improvement program.

Coach Faber Urges Playing Of Freshmen

By the Associated Press

Jack Faber, acting athletic director of the University of Maryland, sees no alternative to permitting use of freshman athletes on varsity teams for the duration of the war.

Faber says schools which now have trouble because of scanty material will find themselves in much direr straits before the war ends.

He suggests that the Southern Conference could maintain its qualification standards by requiring the entrance grades of freshmen to be posted with eligibility reports on upper classmen.

Another requirement suggested by Faber would be passing grades in 12 hours of work during the first half of the school year to be eligible for sports during the second half. This would correspond, he said, to the rule now in force which requires passing of 24 hours each year to be eligible the next season.

Meanwhile, Maryland's indoor season is rapidly drawing to an end. This is the last week of action for the Maryland freshman quintet and the final dual meet of the season is scheduled for the Maryland boxers.

The frosh five plays a home game goes to Annapolis to meet the Navy against War College tonight and plebes Saturday. The varsity boxers' last dual meet of the season takes them to Chapel Hill, N. C., to engage the North Carolina squad Saturday.

On Friday, the Tarheel quintet comes to College Park for a basketball game which may decide North Carolina's chances for a spot in the Southern Conference title tourney.

'Hale American' Movement Backed By Head of A.A.U.

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 17.—Dan Ferris, executive secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union, said today it was not concerned with criticism of the "Hale America" movement voiced by the Middle Atlantic district of the A. A. U. and is giving it full support.

"We went on record officially at our last meeting as offering our full support to the movement headed by John B. Kelly," said Ferris, "and that is where the matter still stands. We are offering no criticism. We have our own athletic program and a real job to do, and we are cooperating with Kelly in every way possible. After all, we have been building up athletics for 50 years."

The Middle Atlantic meeting last night in Philadelphia charged that the "Hale America" movement lacked a definite program, that some of its lesser officials were unfamiliar with athletics and suggested A. A. U. be given charge.

Little Hoyas Beaten, 43-35, By G. W. High

Special Dispatch to The Post

Alexandria, Va., Feb. 17.—Despite a 20-point barrage by its center, John Showell, Georgetown Prep's newly crowned Catholic Prep champions lost to a stretch-running George Washington High five here today, 43-35.

Joe Hensley and Bob Blackburn, Alexandria stars, marked up 9 points apiece between them in the last three minutes to decide matters. A few seconds before Prep had rallied to cut its deficit to 32-31.

The Little Hoyas, seeking their tenth triumph against four losses, rushed into an 11-7 margin during the first period. They sagged to allow the Presidents a 21-17 halftime lead and still trailed, 30-27, going into the final quarter.

Bailey led the winners with 13 points, one more than registered by Guard Hesick.

Bethesdans Bow, 38 to 37, To W.-L. High

Washington-Lee High's crack cage crew stopped a desperate Bethesda-Chevy Chase fourth-period rally last night and came out on the long end of a 38-37 score in a thrill-packed basketball contest at Ballston before a packed house.

The Generals took command in the first period when Bobby Phillips, star forward, dropped in a snowbird for the initial two points and led throughout, except for a few brief moments in the second quarter. The little Generals had an 11-8 margin at the end of the first period.

Carll Jullien, of the Maryland five, took matters in his own hands in the second stanza and scored all of his team's ten tallies for that period. He had the Barons ahead, 18-16, near the end of the half before Johnny Grinnell, big W.-L. center, sank the last goal of the half to make the score stand 18-all as the intermission gun sounded.

The Bethesda-C. C. Jayvees took the Littlest Generals over the hoops in the preliminary clash, 23-17. Billy Earl, of the Generals, was high scorer with 10 points.

Bobby Phillips, General forward, again captured high scoring honors with 18 points.

Power Output Here Up 17% During Month

The Potomac Electric Power Co. yesterday reported kilowatt hour sales in January totaled 91,862,559, a gain of 16.9 per cent when compared with 78,588,087 in the same month last year.

Largest gain was shown in sales for railroads and railways which increased 20.8 per cent. The only decrease was in sales for public street and highway lighting which dipped 6.5 per cent due to the "dim-out" in effect during January.

Results of the new wartime schedule are not known yet inasmuch as the clock change went into effect in February.

Prudential Votes To Redeem Stock At $1500 a Share

Newark, N. J., Feb. 17 (AP).—The Prudential Insurance Co. of America announced today that an agreement had been reached with holders of the 536 shares of stock outstanding for its acquisition by the company.

The outstanding issues had been held mostly by the heirs of Leon and Milton E. Blanchard, whose father, Noah Blanchard, was one of the original stockholders of the large insurance company.

The rest of the 40,000 shares, excepting directors' qualifying stock, is now held by trustees for the benefit of policyholders. Under a mutualization plan set up by State statute, the stock was valued at $455 a share in 1914 by court-approved appraisers.

The company's board of directors voted yesterday that the offer of the remaining stockholders to sell at $1500 per share be accepted. Purchase at a price greater than $455 a share cannot be concluded until approved by the chancellor.

C. & N. W. Seeks Loan

The Chicago and Northwestern Railway Co. asked the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday for authority to borrow $3,750,000 on second equipment trust notes toward the purchase of 1750 new cars.

War Doubts Depress Pivotal Stocks; Oil Issues Weaken on Tanker Sinkings

New York, Feb. 17.—Renewed war doubts assailed the stock market today and, while pressure was light, leading issues suffered their most severe losses in a week.

The list lacked rising animation at the start and, as bidders withdrew in many cases, prices retreated fractions to a point or more. At the worst a few "blue chips" were off better than 5. Prices improved slightly here and there in the final hour.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks ended with a net decline of .6 of a point at 36.5, largest setback since last Tuesday. Volume was negligible throughout and transfers for the full proceedings amounted to 389,100 shares, compared with 376,180 the day before. It was another of the smallest aggregates since last June.

The consensus in the financial sector still was that the market had discounted to some extent the Singapore disaster and other Allied reverses, but the question arose as to whether repercussions from Japanese Far Pacific conquests might yet have to be taken into account in adjusting speculative and investment portfolios. The inclination, consequently, was to conserve buying power pending a turn in the news tide.

Chrysler was off 1⅜ at 47½ and, after the close, directors voted a dividend of $1 on the common, compared with $1.50 disbursed in the four previous quarters. The company reported 1941 net of $9.22 a share, against $8.69 the year before.

United Fruit, Air Reduction, Du Pont, Dow Chemical and Allied Chemical hit new lows for the year with recessions of 2 to 4 points. United Fruit apparently was depressed by the appearance of U-boats on its South Atlantic routes. Du Pont sold off after yesterday's cut in the dividend.

Oils softened with Standard of New Jersey down 1⅝. Chilling this issue was more tanker sinkings and threats to the company's important refineries in the Dutch West Indies. Another handicap for the petroleum group was talk of substantial curtailment of oil products on the East Coast, suggestions of nearby rationing to consumers and falling gasoline sales as automobile and tire shortages grew.

Rails, on the whole, followed a narrow course and were up at one time in the wake of another batch of pleasing revenue statements and hopes for a freight rate boost soon.

Prominent on the downside were United States Steel, Bethlehem, American Can, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, Texas Co., United Aircraft, American Smelting, Union Pacific, General Motors, Montgomery Ward and International Harvester.

Bonds were irregular. Commodities were resistant on prospects of Senate approval of farm bloc legislation. At Chicago wheat was up ⅝ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel, corn ⅜ to ¾ advanced and hogs ahead 10 to 20 cents at new four-year tops. Cotton finished 35 to 45 cents a bale higher.

Southern New England Telephone, in the Curb, tumbled 26½ points on a 20-share sale, first since December 1. Moderate losers were Gulf Oil, Humble Oil, Lake Shore and Pantepec. Turnover here approximated 78,000 shares versus 71,000 yesterday.

New York Cotton

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—A last-minute flurry of demand from trade interests lifted cotton futures to final gains of 35 to 45 cents a bale today.

Caution was the keynote of the session, however, with buyers wary of the possible effect of hedge selling which might accompany February sales of Government-owned cotton. The trade still awaited outcome of the current bids for Commodity Credit Corporation cotton.

Net Increases, Chrysler Cuts Dividend to $1

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 17.—Chrysler Corporation directors today cut the dividend on the company's common stock to $1 a share from the $1.50 rate which was paid quarterly in 1941.

The dividend was reduced in the face of a gain in 1941 profits over the previous year but the company explained in the preliminary report that the year's taxes amounted to $66,982,920, the equivalent of $15.39 a share on the capital stock. It also said that by Government order production of civilian passenger cars stopped on last January 31 and output of light trucks terminated February 10.

In lowering its dividend Chrysler followed the action of its fellow member of the automobile industry's big three—General Motors, which recently announced a distribution of 50 cents on the common stock, halving the rate paid in the three preceding quarters. Chrysler's latest dividend is payable March 14 to holders of record February 28.

Nets $9.22 a share

Chrysler's 1941 net profit (including wholly-owned subsidiaries) from United States operations was $40,114,419, equal to $9.22 a common share against $37,802,279 or $8.69 a share in 1940.

Sales totaled $888,366,410, compared with $744,561,239 in the previous year.

K. T. Keller, Chrysler president, in an accompanying letter to stockholders said:

"During 1941 we delivered war materials and munitions of one kind or another valued at $116,693,067 to the various services and agencies of the United States Government and of other united governments, and procured facilities for production for the United States Government of $24,451,475.

"When all of the facilities for the manufacture of war material for which we now either have orders in hand, or have been officially designated as a prospective source of supply for the Government, our annual capacity for producing munitions will be in the neighborhood of one and three-quarter billion dollars at present prices.

Sales Are Tripled

"This is nearly three times our average annual sales during the past five years and considerably more than twice our greatest annual sale of peacetime products.

"Chrysler Corporation is taking a significant part in this country's war efforts. It has undertaken a great war program which will tax its resources, but we believe we shall be able to meet these new expanded undertakings. The production of war materials is essentially an engineering and mechanical business for which the corporation's experience in making automobiles has prepared it and the experience gained during this period similarly should strengthen the organization for its future operations in the automobile field."

Latest Profit Statements

Western Auto Supply Co. (Mo.) reported net income for 1941 was $3,200,710, equal to $4.26 a common share, compared with $2,916,578 or $3.88 a common share in 1940. Don a Davis, chairman, and W. W. Humphrey, president, in a letter to stockholders said forward purchases had been made where necessary but that "sales volume in 1942 cannot be expected to be as large as it was in 1941." They said the company entered 1942 with the largest inventory in its history.

Ward Baking Co. showed a net profit for the fiscal year ended December 27, 1941, of $150,820, which contrasted with a net loss of 46,745 for the year ended December 28, 1940. Faris R. Russell, chairman, commenting on the 1941 report, said the company operated at a loss "until some improvement in bread prices was obtained in August," pointing out that low fixed prices for baking products made difficult the meeting of "sharply upward spiraling costs" for ingredients, supplies and labor.

Lima Locomotive Works, Inc., reported for 1941 net income of $1,270,144 after all charges and taxes, equal to $6.02 a share on its capital stock. This compared with 1940 net income of $87,007, or 41 cents a share.

The Childs Co., restaurant chain, reported 1941 loss of $121,963, compared with a 1940 loss of $719,153.

American Seating Co. had a profit of $505,031 in 1941, equal to $2.28 a capital share, against $456,679, or $2.07 a share, in 1940.

Alpha Portland Cement Corporation reported for 1941 net profit of $1,325,672, equal to $2.09 a capital share, compared with $918,084, or $1.44 a share, in 1940.

Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis reported net income of $625,084 for 1941, an increase of $400,211, or 178 per cent, over 1940.

Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway in a preliminary report for 1941 today disclosed net income of $30,236,581, equal to $9.90 a share on common stock. This compared with $12,745,371, or $2.69 a share, in 1940. Santa Fe's December net income was $5,001,379, compared with $3,444,566 in the same month of the previous year.

Atlantic Coast Line Railroad reported preliminary 1941 net income of $11,132,472, equal to $13.51 a share on the common stock against $1,823,537, or $2.20 a share, in 1940. December net income was $2,087,714 against $1,035,854 in December, 1940.

Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad reported 1941 preliminary net income of $2,013,908, equal to 70 cents a share on common stock against net loss of $604,345 in 1940.

Missouri-Kansas-Texas Lines showed a 1941 preliminary net loss of $645,525 against net loss of $2,841,135 in 1940.

Beneficial Industrial Loan Corporation and subsidiaries reported consolidated net income after Federal income and capital stock taxes of $5,828,118 for 1941, equal after preferred dividends to $2.35 a common share, compared with $6,431,382 or $2.61 a common share in 1940.

Midvale Co., which Baldwin owns in part, reported 1941 earnings of $3,304,050, or $5.51 per common share. The 1940 figures were $3,227,737 and $5.37.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Feb. 17 (AP).—Wheat and rye futures soared as much as a cent a bushel and corn advanced ⅞ cent at times on lend-lease and price control legislation reports from Washington.

Best levels were reached during the final few minutes and extreme gains were shaded only slightly at the close. At the peak levels, prices were the highest since January 30. The undertone in all grains was firm from the start. Soybeans, however, were under pressure and closed as much as 1¼ cents lower.

Closing prices for wheat were ⅝ to ⅞ cents higher than yesterday's final quotations; May, 1.31@1.30⅞; July, 1.32¾@1.32⅝. Corn finished ⅜ to ¾ up; May, 88¼@88⅛; July, 90¼. Oats advanced ⅛ to ⅜; rye, ¾ to ⅞, and lard was unchanged to 5 cents a hundred pounds higher. Soybeans declined ½ to 1¼ cents.

Fifth District Leads Nation In Retail Gain

The increase in department store sales in the local Fifth Federal Reserve District thus far in 1942 has been the widest of any section in the United States.

Sales in this area show an upturn of 41 per cent from January 1 to February 7, as compared with the corresponding period of 1941. This compares with a gain of 31 per cent in the entire country for the same period.

The relatively large expansion in sales in the local district is attested by this comparison of percentage gains for each of the 12 Federal Reserve districts:

Reserve District—	Week Ended Feb. 7.	Year to Feb. 7.
Boston	6	32
New York	15	27
Philadelphia	25	36
Cleveland	30	39

Washington is second only to Norfolk in store sales gain. January figures, reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, showed percentage gains over the same month last year as follows:

Norfolk, 56 per cent; Washington, 50 per cent; Baltimore, 44 per cent; Charlestown, W. Va., 39 per cent; Huntington, W. Va., 42 per cent; Lynchburg, 39 per cent; Richmond, 37 per cent, and Winston-Salem, N. C., 30 per cent.

Policy Business Of Conn. Mutual Gains 51 Million

The Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co. reported a gain of $51,079,479 in insurance in force at the end of 1941, according to the annual statement received last night by John L. McElfresh, general agent at Washington. This was the largest gain in 11 years and brought total insurance in force to an all-time high of $1,135,915,272.

Assets reached a new peak of $423,993,718, having increased $29,112,162 during the year. The net rate of interest earned on assets was 3.86 per cent.

Payments to policyholders and beneficiaries amounted to $25,707,678. In addition, $27,387,694 was added to policy reserve, bringing the total to $342,305,729. Surplus stood at $16,351,007 and reserves for dividends payable in 1942 was $5,650,000.

G. M. Financing Ban Extended

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 17 (AP).—A consent decree prohibiting the Chrysler Corporation from acquiring an interest in any automobile financing company has been extended for one year, starting last January 1.

Federal Judge Thomas W. Slick ordered the extension yesterday on recommendations of Government attorneys and over objections of corporation counsel, who plan to ask a review by the United States Supreme Court.

Judge Slick found General Motors Corporation guilty in 1939 of violating antitrust laws by requiring dealers to finance car sales through General Motors Acceptance Corporation, a defendant in the case in which Chrysler and the Ford Motor Co. signed consent decrees restraining them from further similar practices.

Egg Output Shatters All Records in Month

The Nation's 367,650,000 hens broke all records by producing 3,371,000,000 eggs in January, the Department of Agriculture announced yesterday.

But the egg-laying population will have to improve if it hopes to escape the butcher's ax. The Department of Agriculture has set the quota for 50 billion eggs in 1942, and woe to the poor chick that falls below her quota.

Your Federal Income Tax

No. 45—Personal Exenses

Personal, living or family expenses and capital expenditures are not deductible items in the computation of the statutory net income, whereas all the ordinary and necessary expenses of carrying on any trade or business are deductible.

In the event a taxpayer is engaged in an occupation which requires the use of equipment, as in the cases of Army officers, ball players, firemen, aviators, nurses and surgeons, the cost of such is deductible only to the extent (1) that it is specifically required and (2) that it does not take the place of ordinary clothing. Thus, expenditures for the purchase and cleaning of jockeys' uniforms and baseball uniforms of professional baseball players and the cost of raincoats, boots and helmets are allowable deductions, while the cost of uniforms of Army and Navy officers, nurses, railway trainmen, barbers and surgeons is a personal expense and not deductible.

Among other nondeductible items of expense paid or incurred by taxpayers during the taxable year there may be mentioned premiums on life insurance policies, insurance paid on a dwelling owned and occupied by a taxpayer, amounts expended in seeking a position or in traveling to the place of a new position, commuters' fares, the cost of postgraduate courses, bar examination fees, expenditures for the maintenance and operation of an automobile used for personal convenience and not by reason of necessity in connection with a business, sums paid out as alimony and as an allowance under a separation agreement, penalty payments with respect to Federal taxes—whether on account of negligence, delinquency, or fraud—amounts paid by a parent to unemancipated minor children for services rendered by such minor children, and amounts deducted and withheld from the basic salary, pay, or compensation of employes in the civil service of the United States for the retirement fund or from the wages or salary of other employes as Federal old-age benefit tax.

C. I. T. Profit In Year Climbs To $17,324,310

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 17.—The Commerical Investment Trust Corporation, a finance company, reported today combined net earnings for 1941 of $17,324,310, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $4.78 a common share, compared with $15,805,222 or $4.35 a share in the receding year.

The total included undistributed net earnings of the National Surety Corporation, a wholly owned but unconsolidated subsidiary.

The volume of obligations acquired during the year was largest in the concern's incorporated history at $1,638,679,148. Outstanding receivabls at the end of 1941 were $585,703,686, an increase of $79,790,986 over a year earlier.

In a letter to stockholders, President Arthur O. Dietz and Chairman Henry Ittleson said:

"The earnings reported . . . were realized under conditions which have undergone abrupt and significant change because of the war. Although we start the new year with a larger backlog of receivables on the books than a year ago and a large deferred income reserve, earnings will decline because the new business volume in the installment credit field (which in the past has contributed the larger part of our earnings will be greatly reduced until the manufacture of motor cars is resumed and the manufacture of other consumer durable goods is increased.

"On the other hand there have been some new opportunities presented for the employment of our funds and services. Some financing has been extended to industries having primary or secondary contracts for the production of war materials."

ODD BODKINS — BY FRED FOX and CHASE CRAIG

GOTTA WHISPER, EDDIE — SO LISTEN CAREFULLY! IT WORKED! THAT FAKE ROCKET SHIP WAS JUST THE BREAK I NEEDED TO CRASH HOLLYWOOD! NOW I'M A "TALKING BABY!"
Z-Z-Z-
I WROTE MYSTERIOUS NOTES ALL OVER THE HOUSE, SO BODKINS WOULD THINK MY LIFE WAS IN DANGER, AND TAKE ME WITH HIM TO "MARS!"
THEY STILL THINK A GHOST WROTE THOSE NOTES! COLOSSAL HIRED A NURSE TO ACCOMPANY ME TO HOLLYWOOD! SHE'S A HONEY! BLONDE — WITH BROWN EYES!
MEET ME IN HOLLYWOOD — AND KEEP YOUR MOUTH SHUT! GOTTA HANG UP NOW, BEFORE BODKINS WAKES UP AND GETS SUSPICIOUS!

WINNIE WINKLE — So Far—No Good — BY BRANNER

MR. BIBBS WOULD LIKE TO USE WINNIE'S TWINS AS THE BIBBS BABIES IN HIS ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN, BUT HE IS AFRAID TO BROACH THE SUBJECT TO HER. THEREFORE HE HAS DECIDED TO DICTATE A PHONY LETTER TO HER, THUS SUGGESTING WHAT HE HESITATES TO ASK -----
MRS. H. I. JAY - DEAR MADAM: WE WOULD VERY MUCH LIKE TO USE YOUR BEAUTIFUL TWINS AS THE BIBBS BABIES IN OUR FORTHCOMING CAMPAIGN TO ADVERTISE OUR NEW STICKLESS PINS!
WE ARE PREPARED TO PAY YOUR BABIES $1000 AND SHOULD THE CAMPAIGN WARRANT IT, WE MAY EVEN DOUBLE THAT AMOUNT! IF DEPOSITED IN A SAVINGS BANK, THIS MONEY COULD SEND YOUR CHILDREN THROUGH COLLEGE LATER!
OH-ER-DID YOU SAY SOMETHING, WINNIE?
NO, MR. BIBBS, I DIDN'T SAY A THING!!

OF COURSE THE PRINCE DIDN'T SAY EXACTLY WHERE HE WAS - I GUESS HE'S DODGING AROUND, BUT — DIDN'T HE TELL HER HOW TO GET IN TOUCH WITH HIM?
OH SURE - SURE - HE GOES UNDER A PHONY NAME NOW — TUBBY — TUBBY — FOR THE LAST TIME — THINK WHAT YOU'RE DOING!
WHAT IS THAT NAME? GIVE US THAT AND WE'VE GOT HIM!
I HOPE SO — THAT WILL PUT ME EVEN WITH THAT BIRD — THE NAME HE GOES UNDER NOW IS — ADOLPH BRUN!

If any of you are short wave addicts, and you happen to tune your set in on such significant words as "Burasi New York, Birlesik Amerika Devletrinde . . . Beynelmilel WCBX istasyondur," it's only fair to tell you that you'll be listening to C. B. C.'s International Short Wave Station WCBX and that those words will be coming from the latest addition to its staff, Raif Erisken.
The language is Turkish, and it brings to 12 the number of tongues in which WCBX is broadcasting to the world the news and views of the United States of America. The others are English, of course, German, Italian, Polish, Serbo-Croatian, Spanish, Portuguese, French, Dutch, Swedish and Arabic.
The addition of Turkish to the imposing roster comes at significant time in the world struggle between the Axis and democratic forces, when there's the possibility that Hitler, thwarted in Russia, may swerve his military machine southward through Turkey and try to reach England's lifeline, the Suez.
Erisken was born in Istanbul, of a family distinguished for generations in Turkey's diplomatic service. His father was a high ranking deputy in the Grand National Assembly of the country. He himself was educated at Roberts College, the American-endowed institution in Istanbul, and then later at the University of Chicago and the Indiana University School of Economics. Before joining C. B. S, he was secretary to the Turkish Consul in New York City.
Incidentally, the cryptic words above, just in case you're not Turkish, merely mean "This is New York, United States of America, International Station WCBX."

Contract Bridge

An amazing hand was dealt at a recent contract game at the Cherry Valley Club, Garden City, Long Island. If it were not reported by a dignified superintendent of schools we might be inclined to think some one was having a little joke. F. R. W. writes:

"The entire 13 cards of two suits were held by the respective partners; spades and diamonds being entirely in the East-West hands, and hearts and clubs in the North-South hands. Each hand held the ace, king, jack of one suit and the queen, ten of another."

The cards:

	♠ None ♡ Q 10 9 7 5 2 ◇ None ♣ A K J 8 7 5 4
♠ A K J 9 7 6 3 ♡ None ◇ Q 10 8 6 3 2 ♣ None	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ Q 10 8 5 4 2 ♡ None ◇ A K J 9 7 5 4 ♣ None
	♠ None ♡ A K J 8 6 4 3 ◇ None ♣ Q 10 9 6 3 2

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
4 ♠	5 ♣	6 ♠	7 ♣
7 ♠	Pass	Pass	Dble
Pass	Pass	Redble	Pass

This hand illustrates perfect symmetry, a nebulous field which is to contract bridge what the theory of relativity is to the world. But it does seem that the wilder the distribution of one hand, the more likely it is to repeat itself in the other hand.

No Trace Found Of Abandoned Baby's Parents

No trace had been found last night of the parents of a two-week-old boy who was left abandoned in a doorway at 2324 I Street Northwest, Monday night.

Taken to Gallinger Hospital, where he was found to be in perfect health, the boy was said to be well fed and well cared for, by Dr. Edgar Bocock, superintendent of the hospital.

Investigation from the Police Women's Bureau, under Capt. Rhoda Millekin, checked all District hospitals, but none could identify the baby.

Draft May Exempt Much Farm Labor

Selective Service System and Agriculture Department Seek to Avert Shortage

Threats of a serious shortage of farm workers vital to the war effort brought cooperative action of the Selective Service System and the Department of Agriculture yesterday to prevent the drafting of essential farm labor.

The United States Employment Service simultaneously projected an inventory of the Nation's industrial war manpower to be compiled by sending questionnaires to Selective Service registrants.

Meanwhile, an estimated nine million men 20 to 44 years old who signed up in the Nation's third Selective Service registration Monday awaited the lottery, slated for the middle of March, to determine their order number in the draft.

Boards to Get Information

In view of an increasing farm labor shortage and the urgent need for accelerated agricultural production in wartime, Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey announced a plan whereby the Agriculture Department's county war boards throughout the country would provide pertinent information to local draft boards on the agricultural and farm labor situation in individual localities.

While the county war boards are not to interest themselves in individual cases of registrants, Gen. Hershey said, they will provide facts "concerning the importance of certain products and the scarcity of men qualified to produce them."

In addition, Gen. Hershey reported, the Department of Agriculture has agreed to inform him periodically on agricultural activities deemed essential to the war effort, and this information will be passed on to local draft boards.

Wages Competition Stiff

In nearby Virginia and Maryland Counties, agricultural leaders welcomed the cooperative plan as a possible help but attributed the main cause of the farm labor shortage to the inability of agriculturists to compete with the attractive hours and wages offered by industry and Government construction projects.

P. E. Clark, Prince Georges County, Md., agricultural agent, suggested that the Government insert in contracts for construction projects a clause forbidding the hiring of farm workers needed for production of essential agricultural commodities. He said the Federal office building project at Suitland had resulted in a serious drain on the county farm labor supply.

The United States Employment Service's inventory of industrial war workers, to start early in March, "will give us exact knowledge of war labor supply problems," supplementing information on war labor requirements already gathered from employers, said Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator.

Employment Questionnaires

Special questionnaires from the employment service will go out to men who registered for Selective Service Monday along with their regular draft questionnaires. Subsequently, similar questionnaires will be mailed to other civilians between 18 and 64 years of age—those who registered previously or have yet to do so.

When the inventory is completed, said McNutt, the employment service will have information on the occupational skills of 40 million men.

Disabled Service Men Getting Many Jobs

Increasing numbers of soldiers, sailors and Marines, disabled in action, are being placed in private industry for which they are best suited, H. C. Corpening, director of Rehabilitation Services for Washington, said yesterday.

In a paper delivered before the Council of Social Agencies, 1101 M Street Northwest, Corpening declared that the increased demands for rehabilitated workers to serve as replacements for those drafted into the armed services had opened up a new field of opportunities for the former service men wounded in active duty. The intensive industrial need for workers has stepped up the hiring of other employables in addition to the disabled veterans, Corpening added.

"Those partially disabled, but still able to perform certain mechanical duties have attained a status practically preferential," Director Corpening said, "in that they are exempt from potential military service."

The Rehabilitation Services conducts training courses, for the adjustment of the partially incapacitated so that they can be fitted into the type of work for which they are physically and mentally best equipped, according to Corpening.

Boston Undergoes First Major Blackout

Boston, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—The Nation's first major blackout test under war-time penalties that provide a year in jail or a $500 fine for even minor violations was staged here tonight.

Except for a score of defense plants and several Government buildings the city was dark as an abandoned coal mine during the blackout which started promptly at 10 p. m. (E. W. T.) and lasted 20 minutes.

Bomb Hidden In Powder Factory Junk

A crudely constructed bomb, 2 feet long and loaded with a pound of blasting powder, was discovered yesterday in a shipment of old powder containers which arrived at a Washington junkyard from the Naval Powder Factory at Indianhead, Md.

Federal Bureau of Investigation and Naval Intelligence agents immediately opened a probe to determine whether saboteurs had plotted an explosion at the vital powder plant, the railroad along which the empty containers were shipped, or perhaps the junk yard of Joseph Smith, 3619 Benning Road Northeast, where the bomb was found shortly after noon.

The bomb was turned over to Washington police when an employe of the yard discovered it inside one of the galvanized iron powder containers shipped out of Indianhead Monday as scrap.

Sealed at either end with paper and rags, it consisted of a heavy cardboard tube with a wire fuse running into the black powder. There was a metal cap on the end of the fuse.

The possibility that sabotage was aimed at the Indianhead factory was scouted by Capt. M. L. Hershey, jr., inspector of ordnance in charge of the plant, who said he believed the bomb was placed in one of the powder cans after the shipment had left Indianhead.

The cans shipped to Washington, all obsolete, had been lying "for years" in an open field at least 1000 feet from any building containing explosives, he said.

Straus Blasts 'Slum Industry' As He Retires

(Washington Bureau of the Chicago Sun)

Nathan Straus last night stepped out as United States Housing Authority Administrator with a blast at the "slum industry," which, he charged, is attempting in and out of Congress to sabotage the Federal housing program.

Straus' resignation, submitted January 5, became effective at close of work last night upon its acceptance by President Roosevelt. In accepting the resignation, the President made public a letter from Straus, charging the attempt to destroy USHA.

"The ownership and operation of slums is still one of the largest and most profitable industries in American," Straus said. "This industry has decreed that the successful USHA public housing program must stop; they have decided that the hour to strike is now. They are determined to end the USHA program—not because it is a failure but because it is a success.

"The device which they are using to accomplish this purpose is to divorce the housing program for low-income workers in war industries from the USHA program for low-income families in the slums. If this can be done, the housing program now will be considered an emergency war measure to end when the war is over. Meanwhile, the USHA and the 600 local authorities will be allowed to die.

"In accordance with this carefully worked out plan, a bill has been put through the House of Representatives that denies all funds to the only agency of government with a record of success in building defense housing and turns over the program to an agency without experience or competence in this field.

"To clinch this deal, the House bill provides that defense housing projects may not be acquired by local authorities when the war ends, but must be sold to private interests. In effect, this means that housing built with public funds shall not be used to service public needs, but shall instead be sold at bargain prices to real estate speculators, to become the slums that will blight our Nation for generations to come."

Straus said that he understands on "unimpeachable authority" that enemies of housing plan to smash this bill through Congress unless he steps out as USHA administrator.

"If my continuing as administrator offers even the slightest pretext for the enactment of housing legislation that will jeopardize our war effort and will blight the face of America with a scourge of new slums," Straus said, "then I must go. I owe this to the cause of public housing to which I have devoted almost every waking hour for the last four years."

In accepting the resignation, Mr. Roosevelt wrote Straus that "much remains to be done but you have shown how it can be done, and your achievements will stand as an example which communities in all parts of the country can study with profit in their efforts to solve similar housing problems."

Runaway Horse Treats D. C. To Picture Out of the Past

A sight Washingtonians have seldom seen since the abolition of the old Center Market and the cobblestone streets that surrounded it was enacted yesterday in the Mount Pleasant section of Washington when a huckster's horse-drawn wagon was marooned and the horse ran wild through the streets.

The Runaway

The runaway started in an alley near Eighteenth and Lamont Streets Northwest when neighborhood children frightened the horse by tugging at the reins, according to police of the Thirteenth Precinct.

The horse and wagon, owned by Casey J. Diggs, 326 M Street Southwest, sped south on Eighteenth Street to the corner of Irving, where the horse slipped and fell and the horse and most of the wagon parted company. Neither Diggs nor his load of vegetables was harmed.

No longer hindered by the wagon, the horse reared, placed a firm hoof on the roof of an auto whose owner police had not identified, and started off on a run that unfortunately no one in Mount Pleasant had the foresight to clock.

With only the wagon shafts and the two front wheels to pull, the runaway galloped down Irving Street to Mount Pleasant Street, where the wagon wheels swerved into a taxicab, causing only a slight damage. From Mount Pleasant Street to Columbia Road to Eighteenth and Willard Streets Northwest, the more courageous people who braved the sidewalks, were treated to a sight such as that seen only on Hambletonian Day at Goshen, N. Y.

At the corner of Eighteenth and Willard Streets, the horse and his unmanned, ill-fashioned sulky came to a halt. The horse was either winded, tired of it all or possibly impressed with the size of a bus that stood squarely in his way. Police then took him in tow.
